In Our HOUSE

★ ★ ★

Today we will leave the British Columbia Legislative Assembly to its flurry of late-session housecleaning while we investigate a proposal made Wednesday by NDP John Squire. The member for Alberni believes our provincial parliament should broadcast and televise its sittings.

This suggestion opens up some interesting vistas, one of which we will now explore.

SCENE: A suburban living room, half an hour before dinner. The family—Mummy, Daddy, Dick and Jane—are disposed in chairs and on rug. Mummy wears a church-bazaar apron, Daddy reads The Times with a dry martini at his elbow. In a corner squats a television set with 23-inch screen. It is tuned to the new show, "In My House."

MUSIC: A clever arrangement borrowed from "The Smile You Gave to Me," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and "Happy Talk."

Smiling Face

VOICE: Your premier . . . and mine.

JANE: He looks like Daddy.

MUMMY (gazing at screen): That's Mr. Bennett, dear. In a sort of way, he's everybody's daddy.

MUMMY: Really, darling, I think you should watch this. Those reporters only pick and choose, they don't give you the whole picture.

DADDY: Thank God! If I had my way . . .

MUMMY: Please, not in front of the children. I think we should all try to be . . . well . . . a little more parliamentary.

DICK: Hey! Golly! That guy, the one flapping his arms, he just called those other guys in the far corner little runts.

Not 'Guys, Dear'

MUMMY: Not 'guys,' dear. Men. That is Mr. Perrault, starting to get up.

DICK: Those other guys . . . I mean men . . . the ones making the funny noises . . . they're telling him to sit down and he's yelling back at them, and Mr. Bennett's shaking both arms now . . . Oh, boy

MUMMY (Pink in the face): Don't call me Toots! And if you'd put down that old paper . . .

JANE: Mummy, you get after us when we tell each other to shut up. That man said it two times, real loud.

DICK: Heck, she wants to watch parliament. It's fun: Look . . . look . . .

Restoring Order

JANE: See . . . see . . .

MUMMY: The trouble with some people, they just don't want to broaden their horizons. They don't care how our province is governed: Watch this, children. The man in the black hat banging with the gavel is the Speaker. He's restoring order. Everything will be nice now.

ON SCREEN: An honorable member rises. He begins to speak. He keeps on speaking.

Hall Sends Wire to Trustees

Appeal to Court Expected Next

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union of North America, arrived in Montreal today following the dismissal of Hal Banks and fired off an angry telegram to the Maritime Board of Trustees.

The trustees, appointed by the federal government, ousted Banks Wednesday as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) and replaced him with Charles Turner, 40, a trustee employee, for the last two months and formerly an officer of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC).

Hall said he would visit the SIU headquarters later today and invited the trustees to meet him there. The telegram was sent from Hal Banks' swank residence in suburban Pointe Claire.

The telegram charged the removal of Banks was arbitrary and denied him the right to a fair hearing "in accordance with the principles of fundamental justice."

The trustees replied in a telegram:

"We consider the matters mentioned by you are not appropriate for discussion between you and us but if you wish to say anything further to us you may do so at our office tomorrow morning."

Hall objected to the naming of Turner as Banks' replacement on the grounds he had never been a member of the SIU. He charged the trustees had confiscated hundreds of thousands of dollars of property and assets of the international union.

NOW BEFORE COURTS

The telegram claimed police forces were used unnecessarily and came at a time when the constitutionality of the federal act setting up the trustees was before the courts. This action was taken by SIU treasurer Don Swaite and is before the Quebec courts.

The Hall intervention follows objections to Banks' firing voiced in New York by Peter McGavin, secretary - treasurer of the AFL - CIO Maritime Trades Department.

The reaction of Hall, considered a power in the AFL-CIO, appeared to contradict reports that Banks had been fired as the result of an agreement among the Canadian and U.S. governments and the SIU of North America.

Meanwhile, Banks remained unavailable for comment.

Banks was reported in conference with his legal advisers. It is understood he plans to fight his ouster in the courts.

NEGOTIATE CONTRACTS

The dismissal came at a key time on the eve of negotiation of 42 contracts between the SIU and shipping companies. Some shipping firms reported they believed there would be no trouble manning their Great Lakes ves-

CYPRUS FIGHTING RENEWED

NICOSIA (AP)—Heavy fighting with bazookas and machine-guns broke out at a village 28 miles west of Nicosia today in the first clash between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots in a week.

UN officials managed to arrange a temporary cease-fire as Turkey dispatched a new warning that violence must be stopped on Cyprus.

One Turk was reported killed in the fighting at Ghaziveran which began shortly after dawn and lasted about five hours.

The Ankara government sent messages to UN Secretary-General U Thant, President Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus and to the commander of the peace force on Cyprus, calling attention to the outbreak of fighting at Ghaziveran.

SAME LINE

The contents of the note were not immediately disclosed here but a government spokesman said the warning took "the same line" as Turkey's warning of last weekend, that it would intervene if killings of Turkish-Cypriots were not stopped.

It was the first fighting since Canadian troops arrived to join in the UN peace force. With the UN force not yet fully constituted, peacekeeping duties remain in the hands of British troops.

EXTENDED

The temporary cease-fire became effective at 11 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) to permit the peace talks to get under way. It later was extended.

The Greek-Cypriot police and auxiliary forces launched an attack in the early morning hours after 500 Turks in a village refused to obey an ultimatum to lift the roadblocks around Ghaziveran.

A Greek-Cypriot government spokesman also accused the Turks of cutting communications between Nicosia and the coastal areas.

The Turkish-Cypriots said the attack was premeditated and that the village had been surrounded by Greek-Cypriots for days.

PROBE VIOLENCE

Greek - Cypriot Interior Minister Polycarpos Georgadjis and several Turkish-Cypriot leaders went to Ghaziveran to investigate the new violence.

In Ankara, Turkish information minister Ali Ihsan Gogus denied reports that Turkey was planning reprisals against the Greek community in Turkey if Greece failed to change its Cyprus policy.

Gogus described as "exaggerated" Turkish press reports to the effect that the Ankara government's notice it was abrogating the 1930 Turkish-Greek treaty of settlement, commerce and navigation was meant as a warning to Greece not to continue support for President Makarios of Cyprus.

TURKS PART?

Gogus also said it was "absolutely natural" that the Turkish battalion stationed on Cyprus under the island's independence treaty should form part of the United Nations peace force there.

In Nicosia the build-up of the UN peace force continued with the arrival Wednesday of additional Canadians troops, bringing the Canadian contingent on the island to 446.

The aircraft carrier Bonaventure slipped out of Halifax Harbor Wednesday night, the bulk of her obscured by wet, driving snow.

ANOTHER CLAIM that Hitler aide Martin Bormann is still alive popped up in Brazil today. A man claiming to be his brother told police Bormann is living in Matto Grosso state. Bormann disappeared in 1945 and was sentenced to death in absentia by the Nurenberg war crimes tribunal.

Surveyors Rescued In Peru

LIMA (AP) — Rescued by jungle - trained rangers, a haggard party of road engineers was escorted out of danger today after fighting off a week-long attack by Indians in Peru's wild Amazon River basin. One engineer had been killed and two injured.

The 50 - man rescue detachment reached the besieged men Wednesday. The Indians slipped silently back into the rain forests without a fight.

The rangers planned to lead the survivors back to the Yavari River, where a gunboat dispatched from Iquitos, 830 miles northeast of Lima, awaited them. The trip back to civilization was expected to take two or three days.

The road party was made up of 30 engineers and surveyors and eight armed guards. The men held out on a knoll.

The party suffered its casualties when it stumbled on a village of hostile Indians eight days ago, then conducted a running fight to the knoll.

Before the relief column hacked its way through the jungle to the party Wednesday, the aviation ministry here received a radio message that "the Indians are closing in on us."

6 Charged In Hospital Death

TORONTO (CP) — Five doctors and the administrator of Toronto East General Hospital were charged today with a total of 40 counts under the Coroner's Act and Vital Statistics Act in connection with the last Nov 4 death of 32-year-old Patricia Morgan after surgery at the hospital.

All six men were charged with six counts each under the Coroner's Act. In addition, Dr. Kenneth Brown, who began the operation on Miss Morgan but did not finish it, was charged with four counts under the Vital Statistics Act.

A coroner's jury found that a surgical clamp left in Miss Morgan's abdomen during an operation for suspected cancer last Oct. 18 was the cause of her death 18 days later.

OTHERS CHARGED

The others charged were Dr. Burns Plewes, chief surgeon at the hospital, administrator Eric Willcocks, and three doctors involved in a pathological examination of Miss Morgan's body — S. F. Penny, Allan Noble and Alexander Kennedy.

Metropolitan Toronto homicide detectives laid the charges in suburban Scarborough magistrate's court on the orders of John Hollihan, special counsel for the attorney-general's department.

PROCEDURE BREACHES

Crown officials said the six charges against all six cover different breaches of procedure outlined in the Coroner's Act relating to the duties of persons to notify a coroner of deaths in certain circumstances.

The other charges against Dr. Brown allege that he falsified Miss Morgan's death certificate.

Hoffa Files Appeal

Ruby's Kin Name Texan To Ousted Belli's Job

BELLI
. . . out of work

HOUSTON (AP)—Jack Ruby's brothers and sisters employed Percy Foreman of Houston Thursday as chief defence counsel for the slayer of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused presidential assassin, Foreman announced.

Foreman is one of the top Texas lawyers specializing in criminal cases.

The appointment followed the Wednesday night dismissal of Melvin Belli. Ruby at that time expressed dissatisfaction with Belli's services and shock over the lawyer's bitter tirade Saturday against Dallas.

Soon after the jury sentenced Ruby to death for the slaying of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy, Belli declared the verdict a "Kangaroo railroad" by a jury that was "shoved down our throats."

Over television networks, he called Dallas a "festering sore" District Attorney Henry Wade a "hog caller," and said "now we see the shame of Dallas in all its glory."

His remarks have brought widespread criticism from state officials. The president of the American Bar Association called them "a discredit to him and to his profession."

DISREGARDS CODE

Walter C. Craig of Phoenix, Ariz., the bar association head, said Wednesday in San Francisco Belli's "unrestrained comments" were a "flagrant disregard of the code of professional ethics and his oath as an attorney." He said many unethical conduct complaints about Belli's remarks have been received.

Eva Grant, sister of Ruby, told the Dallas Morning News she sent a letter airmail Wed-

NO COMMENT, SAYS BELLI OF FIRING

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — "I don't know anything about it," Melvin Belli said today when asked if he had heard he would be replaced as attorney for Jack Ruby, convicted killer of the alleged assassin of President Kennedy.

Belli said he will have a statement to make on the reports when he returns to San Francisco by plane this afternoon.

In reply to other questions, the lawyer told newsmen:

"I'm sorry but I cannot say anything now since I don't know anything about those reports. I'll make a statement when I get home this afternoon."

12 Injured By Tornado

MOC HOA (AP)—A wall of Communist Viet Cong guerrillas launched a spectacular frontal charge into two government infantry companies in South Viet Nam's Mekong River delta Wednesday, inflicting heavy causalties.

U.S. Arms Proposal 'Trick by Pentagon'

GENEVA (AP)—The United States proposed today that it and the Soviet Union each destroy 480 strategic bombers over a two-year period. The Russians immediately rejected the proposal as a Pentagon trick.

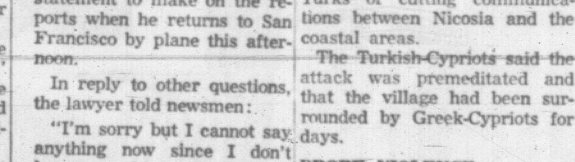

The proposal for destruction of American B-47 and Russian TU-16 Badget bombers was made before the 17-nation disarmament conference by U.S. negotiator Adrian S. Fisher.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin replied that the proposal was an attempt to dress up as disarmament a "routine military decision taken inside the Pentagon to scrap obsolete planes and replace them with A-11s and other new multi-purpose planes being ordered and tested by the defence department."

The Russian repeated his demand, made Jan. 29, for destruction of all bomber planes, both old and new.

Fisher suggested that the two big powers should each destroy 20 planes a month during a two-year period. In addition, he said, the United States is prepared to destroy an additional agreed number of planes in its inactive reserve fleet.

Fisher stressed that the destruction of planes would have to be carried out under strict observation by the other nation.

Seems Mister Belli wuz too bellicose.

THE TREES IN THE FOREST

Perpetual Forest Yield Goal of Varied Licences

(Times reporter Pete Loudon, in a six-part series, takes a look at British Columbia's sustained yield forestry policy; how it has worked since it began 17 years ago, and what future prospects appear to be.)

By PETE LOUDON

Do British Columbia's sustained yield logging laws really ensure a perpetual supply of timber for future generations?

Or do they merely create a system where monopolies gained perpetual control of our forest wealth?

Almost 15 years after these laws were passed, the question is still debated. But before we can form opinions we must understand something about the methods adopted.

Four major steps have been taken to ensure that we won't deplete our forests before they can be replaced.

Loudon

First came the creation of the public working circle or public sustained yield unit. Eighty such areas were set up, most of them surrounding communities dependent on logging and sawmill operations.

Within these areas, which had been inventoried by the forest service, the government decreed how much timber could be removed each year on a perpetual basis. This became the allowable cut.

Cut Too Much

Existing operators were told they might bid for timber sales. They were given quotas equal to the average volume they had cut in previous years. In some areas they had been cutting too much however and here they sometimes found their allowable consumption reduced greatly.

Their answer was to seek additional timber from private timber holdings which means some of them are still over-cutting.

Other problems arose, not all of them solved yet. The laws governing bidding were criticized. There were criticisms that new firms couldn't break into the timber business because they couldn't obtain quotas.

Quotas Traffic

Traffic in quotas became another source of headaches, as operators gobbled each other up and some speculators made fast profits. But generally, the government had accomplished its first aim with the SYUs — it had limited the cut to balance the new growth.

Within the SYUs the forest service assumed responsibility for fire control, scientific replanting and the war against insects and decay.

The second form of temporary tenure to be established was the forest management licence area, now called the tree farm licence area.

This was partly a move to bring back under government control the vast timberlands which over the years had passed into the hands of half a dozen large companies with sawmills

$100 MINIMUM

Basic Fee Urged For Timber Bids

A $100 minimum bidding fee on Crown timber sales to curb blackmail threats was recommended Wednesday by the legislature's forestry committee.

Legislation allowing Forests Minister Ray Williston to impose a fee was given second reading earlier in the House.

The legislation does not set a specific amount, but the committee recommended between 1 and 5 per cent of the bid with a minimum of $100.

QUOTA TRADE

The committee, headed by Omineca Socred Cyril Shelford, said it was concerned about trafficking in timber quotas. During public hearings loggers complained that quotas were being bartered at high prices.

The report suggested a thorough study of quota trading and the possibility of a government fee each time a quota is sold.

Threats of blackmail bidding on timber sales to force up prices on timber sales were also charged by loggers before the committee.

The bidding fee is aimed at curbing this practice, and the committee said it was not recommending any further action pending more study.

The committee asked the legislature to give it power next year to study pulp harvesting licences and to review methods of appraising logs.

It also proposed further study next year of sub-contracting logging within the big tree farm licence areas.

Licence holders at present must allow independent loggers to cut between 30 and 50 per cent of their timber.

The committee said loggers are not taking full advantage of their opportunities, and recommended no changes in the present regulations.

INFLEXIBLE CLIMATE

However, the committee asked for more representations from the forest industry and suggested further review of the situation next year.

It also suggested that written contracts be made available for study.

The committee said that forest policy based on royal commission recommendations created "an inflexible climate" which was not in the public interest.

However, policy discussions through the committee have resulted in a frank and open climate which is more effective, it suggested.

sels. While most of the companies regarded Banks as a tough union leader, some officials thought he had brought a certain amount of order into the system of hiring sailors.

TURNER
. . . in charge

The trustees were in conference an dwere not immediately available for comment on whether they would meet Hall.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, about 100 angry seamen gathered Wednesday around John Meredith, newly-appointed local representative of the trusteeship, as he walked into their downtown hiring hall.

At one point, Mr. Meredith, an official of the New Westminster national employment office, was greeted by a shout of "Heil Hitler." He took the name of the man who did the shouting.

Simultaneously, commissionnaires hired by Mr. Meredith took up 24-hour duty at the hall.

HAD NO COMMENT

Mr. Meredith conferred briefly with Rod Heineky, Seafarers' local vice-president. Mr. Heineky had no comment following the meeting.

Mr. Meredith denied suggestions by seamen that Mr. Heineky had been "muzzled" or that his dismissal was imminent.

He said the wire was signed by 150 of his mates and read: "We protest the arrogant, overbearing action in dismissing our president without consulting the membership. We demand an explanation of this vicious act."

Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labour Congress, said in Ottawa the trustees would not have fired Banks "without good and sufficient reasons."

"This confirms the opinions expressed by our Congress that democracy can only be established in the SIU in Canada by removal of the present leadership," he said.

HOFFA TELLS MEMBERS:

'If I Lose—You Will Pay'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Convicted Teamsters' President James R. Hoffa is seeking to quell any budding revolt in his giant union by personal appeals to its 1,700,000 members. There are 37,200 members in Canada.

His approach, in a previously unpublicized letter, is that he will eventually upset his eight-year federal jury tampering conviction — and that if he doesn't, all Teamsters would have as much to lose as he does.

Hoffa's letter to all Teamsters' officials and members seeks to identify the unions' interests with his own in his long battle against justice department efforts to put him behind bars.

Hoffa told his members:

"I have never backed away from a fight in my life. In all my 32 years in the labor movement, I have consistently refused to 'conform' as a price of peace, for the simple reason that I have always known that the price would come out of the pockets of the rank-and-file I was elected to represent."

Hoffa apparently was not referring to the thousands of dollars in legal fees piled up on his trial at Chattanooga, Tenn., and numerous previous court battles.

THINKS HE'S BEST?

Rather, the reference appeared to be an attempt to persuade Teamsters' members that no one can represent them better than he at the bargaining table, or run the huge union as well as he has in the last seven years as its president.

"Even though the vendetta of the justice department against me personally has occupied a great deal of my time, the business of the international union has gone forward in such a manner that we are the envy of the labor movement, both in gains which have been made for you, the members, and in the administration of the union," his letter said.

There has been no open move among high - ranking Teamsters to dump Hoffa, but the 51-year-old labor chieftain is worried and eager for reassurance from his members.

"The business of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters will be conducted as usual. Whenever possible, I will be in the field talking with you, the rank and file, finding out first-hand what your problems are and working with you to come up with solutions," Hoffa's letter said.

'DOOR STILL OPEN'

"The open - door policy in Washington headquarters will continue. I am still available to any one of you desiring to speak with me," he added.

Most of Hoffa's top fellow Teamsters officials who have commented publicly on Hoffa's March 4 conviction have urged members to reserve judgment until appeals are completed.

But Hoffa was reported to be furious at one union official's statement to reporters that "something will have to be done" if Hoffa goes to jail.

Charles Bell, president of the Washington joint council, made the statement at a recent press conference called by the Teamsters' eastern conference to try to improve the union's public image.

The eastern conference includes some 500,000 of the Teamsters' members.

nesday night to Belli's California office saying that his services were no longer wanted. She said Ruby signed the letter.

EXPRESSED SHOCK

The Ruby family and the defendant "were dissatisfied with the defence presented by Belli and expressed shock at the tirade he delivered after Saturday's verdict," Mrs. Grant said.

Belli's televised bitter comments have brought wide criticism from Texas officials and from officials of the American Bar Association.

Ruby's brother, Hyman Ruby of Chicago, said "the opinions this man expressed about Dallas, the jury, Judge Joe B. Brown and District Attorney Henry Wade are not shared by Jack or any member of his family."

As early as Jan. 22, the letter maintained, Ruby "tried to disengage" Belli after a disagreement over tactics used by the lawyer. Belli "bitterly opposed and forced himself" on Ruby and "would not consent at that time to any local adequate, competent counsel," the letter said.

PLEADED NOT GUILTY

Ruby pleaded not guilty of shooting Oswald by virtue of insanity. In the month-long trial, Belli tried to prove that the balding night club operator was a victim of a form of epilepsy and not in control of himself Nov. 24 when he lunged forward and shot the manacled Oswald in the Dallas police jail basement.

Ruby signed the two - page letter. Copies were sent to the two other defence lawyers, Joe Tonahill of Jasper, Tex., and Phil Burleson of Dallas, but it was not immediately known how their status was affected.

"My brother has been disturbed and upset by reports of Mr. Belli's action both in and out of court," said Ruby's brother, Hyman Ruby of Chicago.

Hyman said Belli "never consulted us about anything regarding the case so he certainly wouldn't consult us before he blasted all those people Saturday afternoon . . . I had the feeling he was evading the whole family."

The letter outlined the family's disagreement with Belli's "constant bitter criticism of Dallas and the people of Texas" that it contended were aimed at "promoting only Belli's personal fame and fortune."

OFFERED FREE DEFENCE

The family said it has a note Belli wrote Ruby, saying the lawyer's defence would not cost anything.

Hyman Ruby, however, said "he has put all of us deeply in debt . . . there was no communication between Belli and the Ruby family except when he wanted to discuss finances and his expenses—which were considerable."

The family also said Jack Ruby told Belli he wanted "no part" of a movie or a book or anything for profit.

They quoted Belli as telling the defendant, "I can sign my own contract — I don't need you."

NEWSPAPER SERIAL

The convicted slayer gave permission to a California author to write a newspaper serial based on his life up to the time of the trial. The $24,000 it produced for Ruby helped finance the trial, a relative said.

One member of the family said Ruby predicted the outcome of the trial in a sealed note 10 days ago.

DOCTORS ACCUSED

Cigs, Medicare 'Deal' Charged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. (D—N.J.) accused the American Medical Association today of siding with the tobacco industry against U.S. government efforts to label cigarettes a health hazard in return for support in its fight against medicare.

The accusation was vigorously denied by the AMA. A spokesman for the organization said: "It's a ridiculous charge. There is not any truth in it whatsoever."

Thompson said the AMA opposed the regulation, proposed by the Federal Trade Commission, as part of a deal to get tobacco state congressmen to vote against the administration's proposal for a health insurance plan for the aged under social security.

SURPRISE TURN

"It's an outrage and it's an obvious ploy," Thompson said, adding that the AMA position was not sound medical logic and did not "reflect the thinking of its constituent doctor members."

The AMA's opposition was one of the surprise developments of the Federal Trade Commission's hearings this week on the proposed cigarette advertising and labeling regulations.

Dr. F. J. L. Blasingame, AMA executive vice-president, in a letter to the commission, said that the health hazards of "excessive smoking have been well-publicized for more than 10 years and are common knowledge." He said the answer to removing the hazards from cigarette smoking lay in more research, not in any labelling rules.

DIRT COSTS FUEL

Tanker Blast Not Caused By Bomb

SEATTLE (AP) — A Coast Guard investigating board says the explosions which sank the tanker Bunker Hill were not caused by a bomb.

Five men died when the 504-foot vessel went down off Whidbey Island March 6 after a series of three explosions. Twenty-five men were rescued.

The board ended a seven-day hearing Tuesday. Rear Admiral R. D. Schmidtman, chairman, said more testimony might be taken after the board reviews the record.

But Schmidtman added: "Any further testimony referring to bombs will be ruled out as irrelevant."

Edward C. Biele, attorney for the Keystone Shipping Corp., operator of the tanker, had suggested the tanker might have hit one of the "unexploded bombs" marked on some coast and geodetic survey charts of the area.

Navy spokesmen said the notation refers to three 750-pound bombs jettisoned last May by two bombers from the Whidbey Island naval air station. They said the bombs were unfused and a passing ship could not have actuated them.

Not Guilty of Rape

NANAIMO — Eighteen-year-old Robert Joseph Hicks of Parksville was found innocent of a rape charge by an Assize Court jury late Wednesday. The youth had been charged in November with the alleged rape of a 21-year-old Parksville woman.

TORONTO (CP) — Dictaphone Corp. Ltd. reports higher sales but lower profits for the year ended Dec. 31, 1963.

The firm said sales were $38,237,777 compared with $37,151,936 in 1962, and net earnings fell to $1,159,086 or $1.90 a share from $1,246,912 or $2.05 a share the previous year.

Tree Farms

Where these firms would place some of their own holdings into a managed area, the government was willing to include crown lands so that both would be managed as tree farms. The Goliaths of the industry obtained a 21-year tenure where they agreed to build access roads, provide fire protection, guard forests against disease and insects and replant as they cut under forest service supervision.

The farms were big enough to provide a perpetual timber supply for huge sawmills, plywood mills and pulp mills and subsidiary industries which would ensure fullest use of all the raw materials our forests could supply. As it worked out mostly big boys got tree farms. Only the big boys could afford their upkeep.

A third approach to sustained yield came in a government offer to give tax concessions to privately-held Crown granted timber lands where the same conservation practices were carried out.

Pulp Areas

Finally, last year, to attract more pulp and paper producers to B.C., the pulp harvesting area was set up. The first was located in the area surrounding Prince George, the second at Kamloops and other licence applications are pending.

Pulp harvesting areas were superimposed on groups of sustained yield units where the independent loggers and sawmillers were chopping out their lumber. But in so doing, they had been largely overlooking trees that were too decayed or too small for sawmill use. In some areas there had been a sale for this material, but in other parts of the province 40 per cent of every logged patch was being left to rot in the woods and a further waste occurred at the sawmills, where trimmings, bark or edgings, burned.

Permanent

It is intended to ensure a perpetual supply, just as the trees suited for lumber may only be cut on a perpetual yield basis. Knowing that this pulp log supply is assured, a PHA operator could plan a stable operation if he could also find firm markets and the tremendous financial backing needed for constructing a modern, economic mill.

This measure of security of supply for the small operator, the large sawmill, pulp mill and plywood mill gradually began to affect the industrial pattern of the province.

Where once the logging camps were transient things moving ever farther from the communities they nourished, they could now be built with permanence.

First Benefits

The first benefits of the Sloan recommendations began to appear—stability of employment, large sawmills and pulp mills and plywood plants which paid school taxes and contributed to stable towns and cities.

Perhaps it was undesirable to create a monopolistic form of renewable long-term tenure. But to attract the heavy investment required for fullest utilization of the forests on a planned oasis, the forest service had to offer assured supplies of raw materials.

Later chapters explore the benefits of the system further.

Japanese Factories In Canada?

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's three major business firms are studying the possibility of establishing chemical, pulp and bus assembly plants in Canada.

Their efforts are in response to a call for Japanese investment by a Canadian economic mission that visited Japan last year.

The trading concerns, Sumitomo, Mitsui and Mitsubishi said "there are great quantities of natural resources to be developed in Canada and the Canadian market is steadily and rapidly growing."

However, as Canada is related with the British Commonwealth, it imposes rigid restrictions against imports, a spokesman said.

They asserted the only way to drum up Japanese exports of heavy machinery, fertilizer and cars to Canada is to set up full Japanese or joint ventures there.

Sumitomo sent a team to Canada last year for a resource and market survey for pulp and potash fertilizer plants. The team visited Saskatchewan, Alberta and B.C.

COLUMBIA HEARINGS IN B.C.?

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — The 35-member Commons' external affairs committee may hold some of its Columbia River treaty hearings in British Columbia.

Proposals for such a trip —to give the MPs a first-hand look at the Columbia and to obtain testimony from B.C. people — were made by three MPs today as the committee held its first meeting on the Canada-U.S. treaty.

No decision was taken on the idea, but it will be considered by a seven-man steering subcommittee and by the whole external affairs committee as Ottawa hearings proceed.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A dead man's brief was read to the royal commission on the Workmen's Compensation Act Wednesday.

The brief, a personal appeal written by A. C. Poole, a former Vancouver contractor, before his Jan. 25 death, was read by commission counsel Gordon Rae.

Mr. Poole said he was injured by a helicopter propeller in 1951 and had received a pension of only $1,600 a year since. As a result his wife had to go to work and they had to rent out part of their home.

He asked the commission to give some consideration to those pensioners who were receiving low pensions that were set before revisions were brought in in 1959.

MENTAL HEALTH

Four Socreds Speak Against Vote for Bill

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Four Social Crediters spoke against new mental health legislation Wednesday—then hopped back into the government fold when it came to a vote.

The bill—basicaly aimed at decentralizing mental health care—was given second reading with only the New Democratic Party opposed.

But sections on admission of patients to Woodlands School for the retarded and other institutions caused an hour-long debate.

COURT UPSET

One section leaves admission of patients up to the medical superintendent. This was the procedure under a cabinet order which the courts upset late last year. The government has appealed a ruling that admissions could be ordered by a court.

"This is legislation of a disastrous kind for a government with a primary responsibility in this field," Mr. Dowding said.

"No longer will it be your family doctor and another doctor who decide whether you get treatment," he said. "Why should a superintendent, who knows nothing of the case, decide this?" Mr. Dowding asked.

He said this is "putting the doctor (superintendent) in a dreadful dilemma" in deciding between duty to patient and to the legislation as a government official.

FEAR 'JOKERS'

Bert Price (SC — Vancouver Burrard) said there are "jokers" in the section. "I can't help feeling something is being taken away. I question the right of the legislature to take away rights of the people accepted by the people for many generations.

"I'm afraid of this section," the MLA said, referring to the lengthy waiting list of children seeking admission for years to treatment centres such as Woodlands.

"What's the matter? How is it people can't get the help they need . . . help that is a social responsibility. Parents of such children are in a tragic position . . . It is unfair, inhumane and certainly something about which something can be done . . . It destroys the right of an afflicted person to have treatment," Mr. Price said.

ADDED VOICE

"I'm afraid I will have to add my voice to that of my colleague from Vancouver Burrard," said Vancouver Centre Socred Alex Matthew. He urged Health Minister Martin to get mental health facilities "in adequate form."

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said the act puts too much power in the hands of the superintendent, who, being human, will not want his institution overcrowded.

John Tisdalle (SC—Saanich) said the lack of mental health facilities in B.C. is the "need of the hour." It is an admission of guilt not to provide these facilities.

'CONDEMNS US'

"Our prisoners can cry out at the lack of facilities in some of our jails, but they go of their own volition in most cases.

"But these children do not. This act is a hard thing to support because it condemns us, it does not justify us," Mr. Tisdalle said.

Ernest LeCours (SC—Delta) said he believed some persons are only technically entitled to admission and get in, while others in greater need of care do not get treatment. He thought the section is unnecessary.

"I think the first responsibility is to the handicapped, and let's get to it and provide necessary accommodation," he said.

De Gaulle Avoids Cuba Visit

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle today was reported to have ruled out any meeting with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro during his next Latin American tour this fall.

Government sources said De Gaulle's decision to skirt Cuba is not based so much on fear of annoying the United States, but rather on the French leader's lack of real sympathy for Castro and his pro-Soviet policies.

French diplomats have worked hard behind the scenes in recent weeks to head off an invitation from Castro and to save De Gaulle the embarrassment of having to turn it down formally.

De Gaulle will follow up his Mexico visit with a major swing through South America this fall. Both trips are aimed at promoting better political and economic relations with Latin Americans as part of De Gaulle's drive to revive France's power in world affairs.

Castro has made it clear De Gaulle would be welcome in Cuba, but the French general, who recently recognized Communist China, has not taken the bait.

JOHNSON REQUEST

$3 Billion Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress today for $3,400,000,000 in foreign aid to help "build a world in which the weak can walk without fear."

In a special message to a Congress which has become increasingly resistant to foreign aid in recent years, Johnson depicted the program as a bulwark against both war and "the ambitions of Communist imperialism."

He promised "no waste" in the operation and asked for permanent authority for U.S. arms aid abroad.

On Capital Hill, there were prompt predictions of trouble ahead for the President's proposals.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said there were "still possibilities for real economies." Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana commended the president for the reduced requests but said "as always, the program will have to plow a difficult road."

House committee hearings on the measure may open next week, but Senate hearings are not expected to begin until after the easter recess.

A Plan for Security

IT IS RIGHT THAT ELDERLY Canadians should have financial support for their years of retirement. It is right that they should contribute towards such support during their working years. Granted these premises — and few would argue with them in these days—the federal pensions scheme becomes mainly a matter of working out details.

The parliamentary opposition, like the public, has indicated support in principle for the government's proposed contributory pension plan, to supplement the existing old-age security program financed from taxes. The plan has undergone numerous revisions since it was first advanced last year; there may yet be more amendments, but the general structure is now formed and implementation would put this country in the forefront of nations with advanced state-sponsored pension programs.

At the same time it should be remembered that large numbers of Canadians are already participants in private and employer-sponsored pension plans. The government program must dovetail into and supplement these existing plans; while it provides a basic minimum income for old age it should encourage individuals to supplement their retirements.

Government figures show that while 1,800,000 employed Canadians now support private pension schemes of one kind or another, there are 7,000,000 who have none. The general effect of the new legislation is that these persons will be helped to provide for their old age and so reduce the risk of their having to depend on charitable assistance in their final years. Since both payments into the plan and income from it will be tied in with prevailing wage rates through the years, the effects of a rising price level will be mitigated at least in part.

It is to be hoped that some agreement may be reached with Ontario to integrate the federal plan with the plan proposed for that province, and that Quebec eventually will find it possible to join in with the rest of the country. The difference between the benefits of the proposed Quebec plan and the federal program will put residents of the province at a distinct disadvantage compared with other Canadians. Premier Lesage must balance that cost against the advantage of having under his own control a large pension fund from which to provide loans to Quebec industry.

Spring on the Prairie

SASKATCHEWAN PREMIER Woodrow S. Lloyd has evidently decided he had nothing to gain by waiting until June, the traditional month for Saskatchewan general elections, and has pulled off a surprise call for the voting to take place April 22.

It is possible he may have been disturbed by reports that Liberals and Conservatives had agreed in a number of constituencies not to run opposing candidates, in a last-ditch attempt to rid the province of the socialist government which has been in power since 1944. Mr. Lloyd's New Democratic Party government could also be hoping to cash in on the just-issued report of the Medical Care Insurance Commission on Saskatchewan medicare costs in 1963, the first full year of operation. The commission's report shows that costs were below what had been estimated prior to the medicare plan being put in effect, and much below what had been predicted by opponents of the plan.

There are other factors favoring the return of the NDP in this election. There is the unparalleled prosperity of the province with the money from wheat sales pouring in along with rapidly increasing returns from development of potash, petroleum and helium resources. Many voters may be inclined to give undue credit to their provincial government for these good times.

Aside from the uncertain effects of a possible Liberal-Conservative entente, the government has few liabilities. The age of the government could be a factor. No matter how successful its record, voters are inclined to get tired of a party which has been in power for 20 years. Too, this will be the first time Mr. Lloyd has led the party as premier; he took over when Mr. Douglas resigned in 1961 to lead the NDP federally.

The Liberal Party, led by apostate socialist Mr. Ross Thatcher, is the only force which can possibly unseat the NDP. In the last legislature, the Liberals held 21 seats to the government's 34 in the 55-seat House.

The Liberals will pin part of their hopes for gains on the addition of four more ridings in the province, both in urban areas: two in Regina and two in Saskatoon. The Conservatives are expected to field only a partial slate while Social Credit may put up half a dozen candidates.

Hal Banks Is Out

THE DECISION OF THE GOVernment-appointed trustees to remove Hal C. Banks from the presidency of the Seafarers' International Union is the natural, and expected, epilogue to the exhaustive study made of his activities and the union's affairs by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris.

The jurist, acting as commissioner of an inquiry, left no doubt about his opinion of the leader of the violence-ridden union.

The trustees' decision had been delayed for the best of reasons since Mr. Justice Norris filed the report which led to their appointment. They have used the time to study the matter thoroughly, and have considered not only the position of Mr. Banks, but the interests of the union, the industry and the public at large. The latter concern is the compelling reason for the trustees' action.

The desk-thumping in Parliament which greeted the announcement by Labor Minister MacEachen can be interpreted as representative of the general public reaction to Mr. Banks' removal.

Now the honest and arduous task of restoring harmony to the different unions concerned, to an important segment of Canada's transportation industry and to a deeply troubled section of the labor movement can continue. The public will hope these efforts yield an abiding peace long lacking on the Great Lakes, but much of this will depend on acceptance by United States unionists of the unprecedented Canadian action.

This Is Cabinet Material?

IT IS REGRETTABLE TO FIND a member of the Legislature descending to cheap vituperation in public. It is much worse when the legislator is a member of a university faculty, and particularly when he is also being mentioned as provincial cabinet material.

Mr. Ralph Loffmark, Social Credit MLA and a professor in the department of commerce at UBC, addressed a Vancouver audience on the subject of British Columbia's new bank last week. In referring to possible subscribers to the bank's stock he employed the term "sharks from the east," admitted he had "nothing against foreigners," but warned against "some big financial bully" who might seek an interest in the bank.

No more scurrilous references could be made to Canadians—who incidentally have been urged to invest their funds in Canadian enterprises. We are a nation, not a group of foreign states. Professor Loffmark's attack on these strawmen was a cheap and shoddy appeal to sectionalism and prejudice which should shame any man in public life.

But this educationist charged with the instruction of British Columbia's youth in matters of economics and commerce had a few more generalized observations to make on Canadian affairs.

"If you have a government 2,000 miles away from the people who have to pay taxes," he said, "you have a dictatorship of a kind."

Such thinking in regard to our Confederation hardly qualifies Professor Loffmark for the highest honors in either his academic or his political career. And his further comparison of the distance from Victoria to Ottawa with the distance from Boston to London, with the Boston Tea Party obviously in mind, must have left Attorney-General Bonner, on the platform with him, with some embarrassed thoughts.

Bierman, Victoria Daily Times.

No Time for 'the Rip-Snorting Juveniles'

THE president has no reason now to worry about himself as a performer on TV. In his interview on Sunday night he was never at a loss for words or facts, or for grammar and syntax, and he was immediately and shrewdly aware not only of the meaning of the questions put to him, but of how his answers would be taken by the great audience. He showed himself to be a very formidable political man, and before he had finished he managed to occupy a great deal of the ground where the preponderant majority of the voters are to be found.

Lippmann

This is most obviously true in domestic affairs. Here he is making it extremely difficult for any of the Republican moderates, such as Nixon, Rockefeller and Scranton, to define an issue — except to claim that they can do all the things that Johnson says he wants to do and that they can do them better than he can.

Not a Good Issue

This is not a very good issue against a president in office who has all the facts at his disposal and who has Mr. Johnson's experience in the operation of the United States government.

So, as Senator Dirksen has just said, the issue must be drawn in foreign affairs. The president is quite aware that this is what his opponents will have to try to do, and it was fascinating to watch him make this very difficult as we can see by watching the hawkiest candidate avoid calling for a military showdown anywhere.

The president put his finger on the crux of the whole problem of our inability to have ourselves followed, often indeed listened to, in so many parts of the world. There are, he said, "people who feel that all we need to do is to mash a button and determine everybody's foreign policy.

Not That Kind of World

"But we are not living in that kind of a world any more. They are going to determine it for themselves, and that is the way it should be. And we are going to have to come and reason with them and try to lead them instead of forcing them."

These are, I believe, among the most important words spoken by an American president since the Second World War. They recognize the reality of things. They recognize the profound change which has taken place in the power balance of the globe since the end of the postwar period.

These words are the key to most of what so many find so puzzling—for example, the policies of General de Gaulle, the evolution of Latin-American attitudes toward this country, our frustration in Southeast Asia.

My own impression, indeed conviction, is that our people are in the mood to believe these words when they hear them from a president whom they trust completely. So, barring calamities that no one can foresee, it does not seem likely that the rip-snorting juveniles will carry the day.

FROM LONDON — By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

Great-Power Conflict Root of Schism

THE great quarrel between Moscow and Peking is moving swiftly towards a new climax. The satellite capitals and Communist parties outside the bloc are busy with rumors of imminent action by Moscow following the recent intensive round of meetings between Russians and East European Communist leaders. It is believed that Mr. Khrushchev is waiting only for the return of the self-appointed Rumanian mediators from Peking to determine his next move.

This could be either an unrestrained denunciation of the Chinese Communist party, supported by the publication of hitherto secret documents calculated to put the Chinese in the wrong, or else a call for a high-level conference of Communist parties, which the Chinese would almost certainly refuse to attend.

Certainly the Russians must do something, and soon. For months past they have stood on the defensive, allowing the Chinese to ignore the call for a cessation of public polemics and to go on winning adherents, sometimes amounting to formidable groups in Communist parties outside the bloc. The comrades outside Russia have been getting restive for some time: the present situation cannot endure, they think, without causing irreparable damage to the movement. Either the Russians must demonstrate conclusively the justice of their cause—or, if they cannot do this, they must show themselves ready to make their peace with the Chinese and to compromise a little in the interests of unity.

Secret Circular

An important clue to Soviet thinking in this matter is provided by a secret Communist party circular disseminated by Moscow, which has found its way by a devious route into The Observer office. This circular, sent to all parties loyal to Moscow, is the summary of a note addressed by Mr. Khrushchev to Mao Tse-tung in November of last year in which, for the first time in public, the dispute was transferred from the ideological level to the great-power level, with the Chinese accusing the Russians of breaking treaties and fomenting border incidents.

After stating that the differences of opinion between the Soviet Union and China had been multiplying, the note went on to say: "Ideological differences between our two parties have now carried over to affect relations between our two countries and to shake the foundations of our friendship."

Mr. Khrushchev then went on to suggest that it was high time to make a new start. He did not ask much to begin with. Let us, he said in effect, agree on a joint objective: the defence of peace and the struggle against imperialism. He asked that the two countries should meet in 1964 to negotiate in this sense. If progress could be made, he went on, then the Soviet Union would be prepared once more to send experts to China, and he hinted that China might be brought into the economic system of the Comecon bloc, with mutual advantage to all.

He went farther than this: he offered to negotiate in a friendly way on the demarcation of the frontier between the two countries (thus admitting that there might be something to be said for certain Chinese claims). The present state of relations between the Soviet Union and China, he said, was all too reminiscent of the days of Tsarist Russian and Imperial Chinese aggression. He ended with an appeal for an international conference of Communists with an eye to "the establishment of a healthy relationship and the expulsion of all disruptive and schismatic elements."

Peace Effort

Thus, in November of last year, Mr. Khrushchev was going a long way to make his peace with the Chinese—or at least was trying to impress the Communist parties of all lands with his reasonableness and his readiness to go a long way.

The formal Chinese reply to this interesting and important contribution to the great debate is not known. But their actions since last November have suggested that they simply tore it up. In recent weeks particularly, while European Communist leaders have been engaged in a feverish round of meetings, the Chinese seem to have set themselves the task of provoking Mr. Khrushchev into proclaiming a formal breach, in the belief that, if they can force the Russians to call for their excommunication, doubting comrades all over the world will react against such high-handed action and rally to the Chinese cause.

As far back as early February, the Peking People's Daily was clearly preparing the ground for such a situation. On the fourth of that month it published an article strongly suggesting that splits of this kind were, indeed, called for by the dialectical pattern for revolutionary progress: "Unity—Struggle—Splitting—Renewed Unity on a Higher Level."

The Albanian radio on February 27 spelt out this concept in simpler terms: "The modern revisionists are expending much energy in innumerable meetings. They plan new action against the healthy forces in order to make divisions more acute. . . . They seek a unity which would isolate and expel from the Communist movement those parties which stand on revolutionary positions, to expel from all parties those elements which resolutely defend the spirit of Marxism-Leninism."

The broadcast finished by welcoming such action as the first step toward achieving a higher unity.

Certainly to judge from various reports which have reached this country, the Russians have been actively considering precisely this step and sounding out the views of the fraternal parties. When Peking showed by its behavior that it completely rejected the appeal made in Mr. Khrushchev's note of last November, it must have seemed that there was nothing else to be done. But in fact the Russians have lost a good deal of ground as a result of their own indeterminate attitude during the past nine months, and to demand the expulsion of the Chinese from the bosom of the movement would be, at this stage, to risk a major schism within the party as a whole.

Sooner or later just such a schism must arise; but Mr. Khrushchev may very well decide to fend it off for as long as he can. In that case, the calling of another great conference of the Communist parties, and the exposure to this conference of the real reasons for the quarrel, which have far more to do with the great power relations than with Marxist doctrine, cannot be postponed much longer.

That Old Promise

In turning out some newspaper cuttings recently, I came across one from the News-Herald at the time of Mr. Bennett's 1952 campaign. It is written by Erwin Kreutsweiser. The caption reads: "Socreds Promise Sales Tax Removal," and the first paragraph begins: "Removal of the 3 per cent sales tax is promised by the Social Credit party."

Did Mr. Bennett abolish the sales tax when he was elected? No, instead he increased it to 5 per cent.

One Prime Minister

A day or two ago I heard a minister of the crown twice refer to Premier Bennett as prime minister. I would advise the honorable gentleman to read the B.C. Constitution Act. There he will find a reference to the premier but if he can find one word about a prime minister I will donate him the price of the microscope he will have to use.

I believe that in some provinces the terms are interchangeable but when a conference of premiers is called it must refer to heads of provincial governments and no other. The prime minister is quite evidently not included.

Anyhow it is more clear and distinctive to have one prime minister and 10 premiers than otherwise. To have 11 prime ministers in Canada is about as confusing, it would be, to have 50 presidents in the United States though their state control is much wider than that of our provinces.

The statement of Mr. W. G. Clark of Trail, president of the B.C. Society of Morticians, which was published in the Times on March 3, simply must not pass unchallenged. Let's be specific.

1. Present-day funeral customs and practices (such as embalming, elaborate cosmetology, fancy coffins, public display of the remains in deep-carpeted slumber rooms, expensive funeral cars, earth burial, etc.) do not have their origins in the Hebraic-Christian tradition of which we are a part. Such customs were virtually unheard of on the North American continent a hundred years ago, and are virtually unheard of in the rest of the world today.

2. Recent studies of grief and grief-therapy indicate that for many people (though not all) the modern-day funeral with its emphasis on physical remains and denial of death by making the deceased appear "asleep" retards the grief process rather than aiding it. Dr. Granger Westberg of the University of Chicago points out that grief is normal but that in any case good grief is preferable to bad grief.

3. The cost of a funeral is not determined primarily by the cost of the coffin, or even by the cost of services rendered. The largest item in the cost of a funeral is overhead. There are many more funeral directors than the number required to handle the business effectively. In the U.S. a few years ago, 60 per cent of the firms averaged one funeral per week and 95 per cent averaged fewer than 300 per year. What other business could operate at all on such a low volume, except by charging fantastic prices?

Much more could be said if space were available. I would simply invite your attention to the large, active Memorial Society of B.C., a non-profit, nonsectarian group incorporated under the Societies Act. Its objectives are: "to direct into channels consistent with spiritual truth, good taste, and present-day living, the universal and proper desire to honor the dead; and to develop a pattern of final observance that will be simple, dignified and inexpensive. These objectives can be accomplished for less than $200.

A group of interested citizens is now forming a branch of the Memorial Society of B.C. here in Victoria. Interested persons are invited to address their inquiries to the undersigned at Post Office Box 43.

Gerald Waring ... REPORTING

OTTAWA—Yukons and Hercules transport planes of the RCAF are dropping down onto the runways at Nicosia this week to disgorge their platoons of the Van Doos and the RCDs—and even at this distance the strange sweetish smell of Cyprus is in my nostrils.

It's strongest late in the day when the breeze is off the land—land fertilized for three millennia by the ordure of men who wrestled livelihoods from the soil of this semi-arid island 140 by 60 miles in size.

In that period Cyprus has been ruled by Phoenicians, Assyrians, Egyptians, Persians, Romans, Byzantinians, English Crusaders, Franks, Genoese, Venetians, Turks and modern Britons—but never by ancient Athens or modern Greece despite the distant Greek ancestry of 80 per cent of Cyprus' half-million people.

Now the Cypriots have proven that political independence after 3,000 years of vassalage confers only the right to govern themselves—not the ability. The United Nations' peacekeeping force of 1,022 Canadians, plus some 6,000 British, Irish, Swedes and Finns, has the responsibility of ensuring that the breakdown of the three-year-old federation of Greek and Turkish Cypriots does not trigger a Greco-Turkish war, or worse.

★ ★ ★

It would be ironical if after overcoming such explosive situations as Berlin, Korea, Suez and Cuba the West lost the game in Cyprus—irony that the world cannot afford. Already this dry bone of an island has destroyed the Balkan Alliance and left the Greeks and the Turks NATO allies in name only.

As a result the strength of NATO's eastern flank defences against Russia is dubious, yet we in Canada remain committed under NATO to defend the territorial integrity of both Greece and Turkey. Not the least embarrassing question is whose integrity we defend if Greek fights Turk over Cyprus.

Cyprus' importance is strategic. Forty miles from the Turkish coast, it outflanks the Turks' Mediterranean defences—and the Turks are unwilling to see it come under the sway of Greece, as President Makarios wishes it to, because Greece is not a very stable member of the democratic camp. It could turn Communist.

Although Cyprus' military importance has diminished in the atomic age, otherwise the situation remains basically as it was when the British leased Cyprus from the Turks in 1878 to guard against further Russian encroachment. As long as Russia is in the Caucasus, promised Disraeli, the British will remain in Cyprus.

It took EOKA, the National Organization for Cypriot Resistance, only five years to win independence on terms that still leave the British with treaty bases on the island. I was there in 1955 shortly after EOKA launched its terror campaign of bombings, murders and sabotage.

★ ★ ★

EOKA promised "Enosis," or union with "Mother Greece," and this unfulfilled dream underlies Makarios' efforts to nullify both constitutional guarantees to the Turkish minority and the treaty rights of Britain and Turkey to intervene in Cyprus.

One doesn't have to look hard to see a growing parallel with Cyprus in Canada—not only the terrorism, but the deepening French-English antipathy in Quebec, and moves towards economic and cultural enosis with Mother France.

CREDITISTE CENSURE MOTION

Commons Searches Its Soul

OTTAWA (CP)—It was a day of soul-searching for the Commons and other pressing business was sidelined for the occasion.

The reason: A motion Wednesday by Creditiste House Leader Gilles Gregoire to censure the deputy Speaker of the House, Lucien Lamoureux.

The charge was that Mr. Lamoureux, 43, had disregarded a Commons rule designed to protect the rights of minority members.

Only rarely has a presiding officer of the house been so challenged. The last non-confidence motion against a Speaker was presented, unsuccessfully, by the Conservatives in 1956 against the then Speaker, Rene Beaudoin, as a result of the Trans-Canada Pipeline debate.

"Nothing could be more serious than a challenge to the integrity of the chair," said Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre), an expert in Commons rules and traditions.

He and others, while agreeing an error had been made, urged Mr. Gregoire to withdraw his motion.

ONE BITE ALLOWED

"In courts of law a dog is entitled to one bite—surely a deputy Speaker is entitled to one mistake," said Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

But Mr. Gregoire declined to withdraw, and his motion—holding precedence over all other Commons business—comes up for debate again today, delaying further the start of the six-day budget debate.

Mr. Gregoire's motion arose over a procedural issue which cropped up last Friday night when Prime Minister Pearson won parliamentary approval to send troops for the United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus.

The issue: The ruling then by Mr. Lamoureux that Mr. Pearson had asked for—and in effect was given—unanimous consent to introduce his Cyprus resolution. Unanimous consent is necessary to set aside the rule requiring 48 hours notice of such resolutions—a rule designed to protect members from being surprised by sudden legislation.

Mr. Gregoire argued that the Creditistes had made it plain earlier Friday they wouldn't consent to waiving the rule. Yet, he said, Mr. Pearson that evening had presented his resolution without seeking unanimous consent.

BELANGER PROTESTED

He said that 14 seconds after the prime minister started, Antoine Belanger (Creditiste—Charlevoix) had protested. But deputy Speaker Lamoureux had ruled that Mr. Pearson had requested consent and received it, since no objection had been raised immediately.

Mr. Gregoire charged that Mr. Lamoureux overlooked Mr. Belanger's right to object in order "to accommodate" the prime minister.

He also put blame on the prime minister, saying he had knowingly violated the rules which he should be the first to uphold.

Both Mr. Pearson—at home with a cold—and Mr. Lamoureux were absent as Mr. Gregoire's charges were made and debated.

Mr. Diefenbaker laid the blame at the government's door, saying the trouble arose because of its haste to present itself to the world as a benefactor of mankind.

'HE MISUNDERSTOOD'

The opposition leader said the deputy Speaker had misunderstood the situation.

"Are we to condemn him because of a misunderstanding? . . . I will not join in this. This is too serious a resolution."

External Affairs Minister Martin denied that either the government or Mr. Lamoureux was to blame.

"I'm not prepared to admit fully that there was an error," he said. But if there was, the error was shared by every member of the House.

Mr. Knowles said a mistake had been made and members—by remaining silent—shared responsibility. Mr. Lamoureux had acted with the consent of almost the entire Commons, and shouldn't be made a scapegoat.

SEEKS WITHDRAWAL

Urging Mr. Gregoire to withdraw his motion, Mr. Knowles said that even if it were defeated on a vote, Mr. Lamoureux would be under obligation to resign if a substantial number voted for it.

The deputy Speaker shouldn't be put under the stigma of two, three or 13 votes—"he has done too good a job."

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) agreed that responsibility for what happened lay with all members.

The debate had a sequel during the final hour of Wednesday's sitting—a period allocated to debate on private members' resolutions.

It was the turn of a resolution sponsored by Douglas Alkenbrack (PC—Prince Edward-Lennox) urging purchase of the former Kingston, Ont., home of Canada's first prime minister, Sir John A. Macdonald.

Despite Liberal protests that the resolution was clearly out of order—the government already has decided to buy the house—Speaker Alan Macnaughton decided to let Mr. Alkenbrack be heard.

Mental Retardation

It is remarkable that in the last three years there has been a tremendous increase in our knowledge of what causes many a child to be mentally retarded, or handicapped, or deformed from birth. A geneticist says to many a troubled mother, she just must not blame herself, because the defect in her child was prepared for at the moment of its conception.

Alvarez

Few people outside the medical profession know that in order for the ovum and the spermatozoon to prepare for uniting, each has to throw away half of its chromatin. The chromosomes are tiny bodies—46 of them—which are found in the nucleus, or all-important central part of each cell of the body of a man, woman or child.

Today we know that in some instances, as the ovum and the spermatozoon try to throw away half of their chromosomes, they keep one that ought to have gone out. If this happens to be one that is called the 21st, the resulting child will have three of them instead of the normal two, and this is called trisomy. Most of the children who have trisomy are mentally retarded, and look so much like an Oriental that they are called mongolians or mohgoloids.

For some reason not yet clear, this defect is three times more likely to occur in women who have a child late, after they are 40 years of age. There is also a hereditary influence as shown by the fact that there are a few cases on record in which there were from two to four mongolians in one generation of a family. I know of a family in which four cousins are mongolians. I know, also, of a family in which, out of five children, one is a mongolian and one is an ordinarily mentally retarded youngster. The father, for all his days, has been mentally disturbed. Often, if one talks to the mother of a mongolian child, one hears that she previously had two or three miscarriages, and these may have been due to the same disturbance which produced the mongolian.

In England, Dr. S. J. Crews of the Birmingham and Midland Eye Hospital recently wrote that the prolonged taking of drugs like cortisone—even in small doses—can produce beginning cataracts, and hence, when a person is under treatment, his eyes should be watched by an eye specialist.

For many years physicians have tried to find out just what change in the atmosphere causes many an arthritic patient's joints to start aching. Some arthritics are "human barometers" who can tell when a storm is approaching, perhaps 50 or 100 miles away. I can remember when, back around 1927, Dr. Leonard Rowntree and his associate at the Mayo Clinic tried in vain to find out what change in the atmosphere causes the flare-ups in joint pain.

Later, several men in several medical schools built specially-constructed rooms in which the barometric pressure, the temperature, the dryness or moistness, and the electric charge on particles in the atmosphere could be kept constant, or changed at will, and they, too, had trouble trying to find what the change is that causes pain.

Now I read that Dr. Joseph L. Hollander of Philadelphia, who studies patients in a specially-built constant-temperature room, has found that usually he can cause arthritic pains to flare up if he lowers the barometric pressure, and at the same time raises the degree of humidity.

To me, who all my life have puzzled over why certain persons are "human barometers," these findings are very interesting, and I am sure they will be interesting to my readers who often wonder why at times their joints ache so much more than they usually do.

Liberals Spurned By Sask. Tories

REGINA (CP)—The Liberal party's courting of Progressive Conservative co-operation in the April 22 Saskatchewan election appears to have been spurned.

Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher has suggested that Conservatives support Liberal candidates in certain areas as part of an "anti-socialist" vote to defeat CCF candidates. Premier Woodrow Lloyd described the move as "public lovemaking."

The CCF government leader said in a speech in the legislature that Mr. Thatcher was saying to the Conservatives: "Walk into my parlor."

Mr. Thatcher said that because both the Liberals and the Conservatives ran full slates in the last election in 1960 the "anti-socialist" or combined Liberal-Conservative vote was split and the CCF was returned to power with less than half the popular vote.

"If you will come along with us," he said to the Conservatives in a Moose Jaw speech, "we will finish the job and then we can have our squabbles after the job (of defeating the CCF) is done."

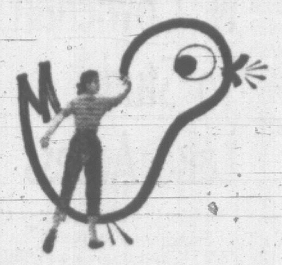

He suggested that in Moose Jaw, a single constituency electing two members, the Conservatives and Liberals each nominate only one candidate.

The two incumbent CCFers could be defeated as the Conservatives and the Liberal each garnered support from both parties. In a two-member constituency, each voter must cast a vote for two candidates.

Mr. Thatcher suggested similar "saw-offs" in Saskatoon, Regina East and Regina West, all constituencies returning more than one member and all traditionally strong CCF areas. In addition the Liberal leader suggested that in rural constituencies where strong Liberal candidates face incumbent CCFers the Conservatives not nominate. Mentioned in this category were Moosomin, Elrose, Yorkton and Souris-Estevan.

Conservative Leader Martin Pederson in December said some members of his party were attracted by the Liberal proposals. But now, with the Liberals having all but completed their full slate of 59 members, he says all but a handful of Conservatives have rallied to his view that "we are not interested in any arrangements with the Liberals."

Mr. Pederson says while the Conservatives do not expect to increase their present 25 nominees to a full slate before April 22, a number of other nominating conventions are scheduled. He says "we'll certainly have enough candidates to form a government."

Boys Play 'Chicken' With Deadly Bomb

VERNON, B.C. (CP)—RCMP said Monday three boys played "chicken" with a live mortar bomb for 30 minutes before turning it over to police.

The boys found the two-inch bomb about 50 feet down an embankment at Kalamalka Lake south of here while on a cycling trip Sunday.

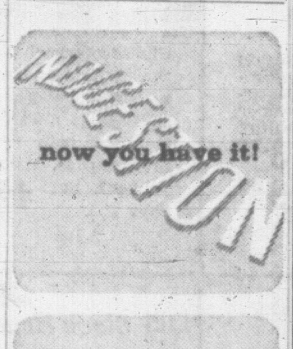

They tossed the bomb to each other, yelling "chicken", for 30 minutes before one of them persuaded the others to turn it over to RCMP.

Police called bomb disposal experts. They said one of the boys was a friend of two Boy Scouts killed by a mortar bomb near here last year.

Capt. D. R. Yeomans of the army's disposal squad here repeated warnings that persons finding the Second World War bombs should not touch them but report them to authorities.

$8,000 Pledged For Museum Land

NORTH COWICHAN—North Cowichan municipal council Wednesday pledged $8,000 towards the purchase of four acres of land for the re-establishment of the Cowichan Forest Museum, owned by Gerald Wellburn, of Deerholme.

Council also offered to pay $5,000 for road inprovement at the museum's new site at Drinkwater Road and Somenos Lake.

The announcement followed a unanimous decision by Duncan council to contribute towards the $37,000 needed for the purchase of a total of 19 acres of land to re-establish the museum.

Lake Cowichan village council, headed by Mrs. M. Child, has agreed in principle to the project, and it is expected the commission will make an official announcement at council meeting next Tuesday.

Municipal representatives on the Cowichan Forest Museum committee will be Coun. Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn, who stressed Wednesday that the council "should not wait for somebody else but should go ahead with assisting the museum project."

Fire Damages Emergency Schoolroom

LAKE COWICHAN—A fire which broke out Wednesday in the IWA Hall has disrupted school for the second time in three months here.

Emergency classrooms had been set up in the Hall following the $500,000 fire which destroyed the high school in January.

Wednesday's fire broke out about 4 p.m. but was brought under control in about 30 minutes.

Fire Chief B. R. All reported damage to the downstairs office and smoke and water damage to one of the three emergency classrooms.

The damaged classroom accommodated about 30 students and arrangements are being made to overcome the new problem.

Legion Complains Of U.S. Flag

N. Cowichan To Study Lake Access

NORTH COWICHAN—Council Wednesday appointed a two-man committee consisting of councillors George Whittaker and Dennis Hogan to investigate a request for a public access to Quamichan Lake at Henderson Road.

Council received a petition signed by 300 taxpayers demanding that an access to the lake be provided. The committee will also investigate two other prospective access points on the opposite shoreline, at the Stanhope and Moose Home subdivision areas.

The delegation supporting the Henderson Road petition was told that another access to the lake was needed. Costs have been estimated at $3,500.

FEAR CONTAMINATION

Another petition from Quamichan Lake and Maple Bay residents was referred to the medical health officer, Dr. Gerald Bonham, for recommendation. The taxpayers pointed out in the second petition the possibility of contamination of the lake which is used for drinking water.

They fear the danger of contamination will rise with the increase of motorboat traffic on Quamichan Lake. Council tabled the petition pending a report from Dr. Bonham.

Tenders Called for $7 Million Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert Ship

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett's dream of a car and passenger ferry service linking Vancouver Island with Prince Rupert on the northern B.C. coast should be a reality next year.

Specifications now are out for an 18-knot ship with accommodation for more than 400 passengers and 120 cars. She may cost up to $7,000,000.

The new ferry will be a long-haul vessel, differing radically from the present provincial fleet of short-haul vessels. It is based on a successful Baltic Sea design.

20-HOUR TRIP

It is planned to operate the proposed vessel vetween Kelsey Bay, northern terminus of the Island Highway, and Prince Rupert, where she will link up with the Alaska State Ferry system. The passage is expected to take about 20 hours.

The specifications call for a ship with streamlined funnel and mast, 325 feet long and a breadth of 56 feet nine inches, and fin stabilizers for the benefit of queasy passengers.

There will be cabin space for 190 passengers on the lower deck, 80 double-berth cabins with baths on the promenade deck, and 16 de luxe cabins on the bridge deck.

There will be a dining salon with accommodation for 200 passengers, and a cafeteria with seating for 150. The forward lounge will have 250 seats.

There will be no cargo accommodation apart from the car deck.

She will have twin screws and a bow propeiler, and specifications call for four Mirlees National diesels developing 8,000 shaft horsepower. She will be 3,500 tons gross and will have a crew of 56, with 13 officers.

Bids have already been called for the new ship.

The federal subsidy will account for 35 per cent of the cost, and it is likely that the provincial government will seek a further grant on the grounds that the ferry will be an extension of the Trans-Canada Highway system.

Ancient War Chant Opens Indian Talks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tom Ompkit, white - haired elder from the upcoast Alert Bay Indian band, stood up and opened Wednesday night's session of the B.C. Native Brotherhood with a talk in Chinook and an Indian war chant.

The war chant, he said through an interpreter, had been passed down to him from his forefathers almost a century ago.

But he couldn't say how old he actually was.

"I don't know," he said in Chinook. "I don't know when I was born."

The Brotherhood, embracing Indian delegates from various parts of the province, gets down today to consideration of the tricky question of the lands they claim were taken from them by whites without compensation.

"The white people took away our land without treaty or compensation and have refused to give us a proper hearing," said delegate Tom Gosnel from upcoast Port Simpson.

He said legislation proposed at Ottawa does not come up to expectations.

The Brotherhood hopes to formulate a new policy on the matter.

Chief Willard Sparrow of the Vancouver Musqueam Reserve threw the meeting into a bit of an uproar with a charge that Indian fishermen have been "pushed around" by Homer Stevens, secretary of the independent United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union.

"Why should we be pushed around by this union?" Chief Sparrow asked. "We never have had a voice in their affairs."

The chief was finally ruled out of order.

HURTS JUST AS MUCH TO BE HIT BY CROWN

The Queen can do no wrong—but she sometimes gets poor advice, an MLA said Wednesday.

Tony Gargrave (NDP—Mackenzie) was urging the government to allow anyone to sue the Crown without first obtaining a fiat—official permission.

The legislature unanimously approved a resolution giving consideration to such a move, but as Mr. Gargrave pointed out, this does not necessarily mean the government will act.

The resolution was proposed by Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby).

"I know the Queen can do no wrong—but sometimes she gets pretty poor advice," Mr. Gargrave said.

"To the ordinary citizen on the street it seems incredible that if a public works department truck runs you down you can't sue in the same way as if a taxi runs you down."

SIDELINED BY SENATE

Western Bank In Pigeon Hole

OTTAWA (CP)—The proposal for the new Bank of Western Canada went to the all-important Senate banking and commerce committee Wednesday. But it got short shrift, at least for the time being.

The senators—some of them directors of major financial institutions including existing banks—listened to short statements by the two chief petitioners, Sinclair Stevens and James E. Coyne of Toronto, then adjourned indefinitely without asking a single question.

The case may not be revived until late April or May, informants said.

With at least three other bank petitions expected, the Senate had sent the Bank of Western Canada bill to committee for detailed scrutiny on the tacit agreement that it would languish there pending the report of the royal commission on banking and finance.

EASTER RECESS

That report is not expected until mid-April, possibly later. Meanwhile, the Senate is to take an Easter recess lasting until either April 7 or April 14 with the latter date considered the most likely.

By that time, Parliament may have three more proposed charters to deal with—those sought for the proposed Bank of British Columbia, the Laurentide Bank of Canada, and the one being proposed by a group led by Jean-Louis Levesque, president of Trans-Canada Corporation Fund.

Mr. Stevens detailed the financing, saying nearly $13,000,000 now has been raised or committed for proposed bank stock. He said the bank would have around 8,000 shareholders, participating either directly or through the main corporate subscribers, Wellington Financial Corporation, Canadian Finance and Investments Limited, and York Trust and Savings Corporation. Mr. Stevens is president of all three companies.

He said an impression had been built in Canada that a new bank could not be established.

"We are here to say we believe it can be done. "It is not proposed that our operation would deviate from the sound banking principles that have so far been the backbone of the Canadian banking system."

LAURENTIDE NAMES BANK DIRECTORS

VANCOUVER (CP)—A petition for a charter of a Laurentide Bank of Canada will probably go before the Senate Monday, Peter Paul Saunders said Wednesday.

Mr. Saunders, president of Laurentide Finance Corp., and president of the new bank, said the petition will be sponsored by Liberal Senator Donald Cameron of Banff, Alta.

Mr. Saunders also gave the names of directors of the proposed bank: himself, Andrew Saxton, executive vice-president of the new bank and Laurentide Finance, Paul B. Payne, W. C. Mainwaring, Howard T. Mitchel and Edgar Saba, all of Vancouver; Bernard Bourgeoise and Lionel Leroux, boht of Montreal.

Fair Symbol 'Affront' Hit By Dief

OTTAWA (CP) — Decision of Montreal world's fair directors to adopt a symbol rejected by the Commons was an affront to Parliament, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Tuesday.

He told the Commons that Parliament is voting large sums of money for preparation of the fair to celebrate Canada's centenary in 1967 and that Parliament expects more co-operation from the directors.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he did not blame Prime Minister Pearson for the move, but asked what the prime minister had done to point out to the directors that Parliament had rejected the controversial symbol.

The symbol, a geometric representation of man encircling the world, was in a bill presented to the Commons last session by the government and rejected by the House, Mr. Diefenbaker mentioned that Justice Minister Favreau had helped draft the amendment deleting the clause.

Prime Minister Pearson said he was unaware of the fair directors' decision until he read about it in newspapers and would look into it and report to the Commons later.

Caouette Urges Bank For Quebec

MONTREAL (CP)—Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said Wednesday night Quebec should establish a provincial credit bank.

He told the Montreal Fleur de Lis Club such a bank "could be a branch of the Bank of Canada and could issue money in relation to the province's resources."

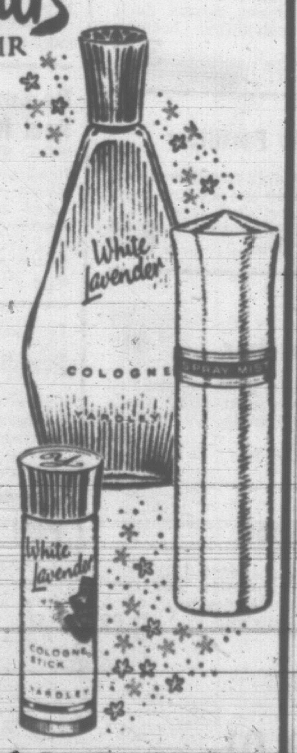

The leader of Le Ralliement des Creditistes said establishment of a credit bank "is the first thing to do to become masters in our own house."

Other means were: absolute control of immigration, absolute control of imports and exports, and return to Quebec of its direct taxation rights.

Canada's problem is financial, Mr. Caouette said. "In Ottawa, the government is broke. In Quebec, the budget is battered. The same exists in Montreal. We are governed by a battered clique and we also find ourselves battered."

SCHOOLS DEMONSTRATION

'Sound of Music' Ranges From Purrs to Screeches

By TERRY MATTE

Eight Greater Victoria schools banded together Wednesday night to present The Sound of Strings — and they did.

The sounds ranged from palatable purrs to catlike screeches, but that was the whole idea.

FIRST YEAR

Five first-year violinists from Margaret Jenkins Elementary School, accompanied by an equally novice pianist, scratched their way through A Little Waltz in G and In a Garden.

Very young children can learn to play a musical instrument. They're eager, receptive, and some schools of thought say the youngsters develop musical "talent" at the same time.

In fact, some experts say notoriously difficult instruments like the violin, viola, cello and bass are comparatively easy to learn at a young age, and the younger the better.

Contrasted to the first-year violinists was the Oak Bay Secondary School string ensemble.

The eight players exercised their experience on Stoessel's arrangement of Mozart's A Little Night Music.

It was a nice, tight performance; the nuances of the difficult piece were carefully and sometimes beautifully executed.

There were other contrasts. Tallis' Canon, performed by Oak Bay Junior Secondary School, was an entirely agreeable arrangement, noted for the sure, steady work of two girls who held their own for a few seconds.

The same group didn't do so well with the Muller-Rusch arrangement of Three Blind Mice Down on the Farm.

It was probably lots of fun for the players, but the plucking was annoying for the audience.

The ensemble did a fine, if somewhat weak, interpretation of Edward B. Jurey's Indian Lament.

The audience was plainly surprised by the Shelbourne Elementary School. Its musicians had trouble getting started and ran into grief in a few isolated spots. But at their best, the violinists were beautifully co-ordinated and at times the music was excellent.

The concert was an enjoyable one, certainly worthwhile, and augurs well for similar efforts in the future.

OTHER CONCERTS

The wait won't be long. On April 2 there will be a concert featuring bands, choirs and orchestras from Greater Victoria schools.

And on April 3 a band, choir and orchestra, each made up of 100 students throughout the province, will give a concert at the Memorial Arena.

Both events will be sponsored by the B.C. Music Educators' Association Conference.

D. B. Rogers Retires

REGINA (CP)—The retirement of D. B. Rogers as editor of the Leader-Post after 24 years and the appointment of Tom Melville to succeed him effective March 31, was announced Wednesday night by Michael C. Sifton, president of the Leader-Post. Mr. Sifton also announced the appointment of William Thomson as executive vice-president.

'Bitter Ash' Sordid But Good in Spots

By BETH BOYLE
And AB KENT

Bitter Ash smouldered on the screen at Lansdowne auditorium for 80 minutes Wednesday before some 400 University of Victoria students who paid $1 a head for the privilege.

They were the only persons in Victoria permitted by censorship to view the controversial art film made last year by UBC student Larry Kent and subsequently banned in Ontario. The B.C. censor passed the black and white sound movie for showing only within university walls.

It depicts youth's material problem in a seamy, Vancouver setting. It is at times tedious, amateurishly heavy - handed, sometimes shocking.

SHOWED ABILITY

Dialogue matches three and four-letter words larded in somewhat self-consciously, but the principal actors showed ability for all their inexperience.

This is not a happy film. But it is not without its humor, and a glut of technical flubs add strength to this.

As one student commented: "It would be thoroughly depressing if the technical stuff hadn't made it so funny."

Others shared this view, although Robert Foster, arts 3, thought camera work was good, including good lighting contrast and composition of scenes.

Generally, the filming was competent, as was the jazz sound track that provided a pulsating beat in appropriate places. Sound dialogue, picture and music needed co-ordination.

GOOD TYPES

Some thought the film was not intended to be an accurate representation. Many thought the symbolism was well handled, with student "types" pictured—the idealist, the materialist, the homosexual.

One commented that the censor was justified: "It was pretty darn sordid."

And another said: "I didn't go because my mother wouldn't let me."

Mainlander In $700,000 Fraud Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — An extradition warrant has been issued for a city man for alleged fraud in connection with a $1,300,000 federal government defence contract.

John B. Jenkins, one-time vice-president of City Construction Co. of Vancouver, faces four charges here. He is believed to be in California.

The charges allege he obtained payments from the federal government totalling more than $700,000, on behalf of the company, by false pretences.

Magistrate Gordon Scott, who issued the warrant Monday, was told the false pretences were alleged to consist of statements that all debts on the contract had been paid in full, when actually there were large debts outstanding.

The statements were said to have been made in order to get progress payments.

WARNING IGNORED, TOT DROWNS

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP)—A couple who had complained repeatedly that a neighborhood excavation posed a danger to playing children found their small daughter drowned in the same water-filled hole Wednesday.

When the body of Rhonda Ekin, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Ekin, was found by her mother, she plunged into the icy water in a futile attempt to save her only child.

"I heard my wife scream," said the grief-stricken father. "I ran outside and saw my wife standing up to her hips in the water with Rhonda in her arms."

"I ran over and started to give her mouth-to-mouth resuscitation but felt it was too late . . . that she was already dead."

The child failed to respond to emergency treatment.

Mr. Aldersmith is a member of Victoria Amateur Movie Club.

Bandits Use Acid

LONDON (AP)—Three thieves jumped from a car, threw a stinging liquid into a shop assistant's eyes and made off with a tray of jewelled brooches worth nearly £15,000 ($45,000) from a Mayfair jeweler Wednesday. The raided shop was Collingwood Ltd., where John Ambler last week bought an engagement ring for his fiancee, Princess Margaretha of Sweden.

Governor Threatened

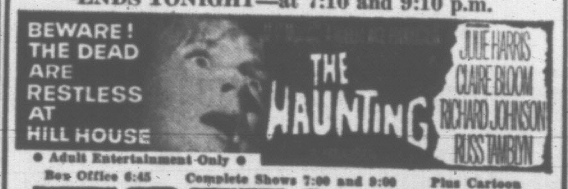

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—FBI agents arrested two women Wednesday on charges of threatening "bodily harm" to Texas Gov. John Connally in a long distance telephone call shortly after the Jack Ruby murder trial ended.

Newspaper Advertising Stimulates Buying

It delivers its message in 60 seconds.

In the next day or so, you may learn something new about the taste of rye whisky.

The message takes one minute.

And no more than one taste of a whisky called Time. A gentle whisky. The taste is light, warm, smooth.

You will find you have never known a whisky with a taste like this.

You will find yourself comparing it with the whisky you usually buy. And you may find yourself changing your mind about whiskies.

The whisky in the hourglass bottle does that. The message comes through. Not loud. But clear. 60 seconds. Time enough.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Sophie Tucker? A bawdy Brahms' bawler. Plus fours? Never amounted to much on this spindly frame. And streetcars? Drafty and bouncy, swell for catching saddle sores.

Recollections of a misspent youth are not always clearly remembered or even cherished. But throw me the name of a hockey player, Morenz or Joliat, Ace Bailey or Babe Pratt, and I'm happier than a hungry cannibal with a missionary in the pot.

FRED SANIFORD

They were the idols of a boy handed a violin and told to get on with the Viennese Waltz.

The score he never could remember but the strings on the fiddle he'll never forget. They used to snap like a ladies' girdle, whacking him across the mush as if in reprobation for his disinterest.

But game scores and individual—statistics rattled through his skull. Great Canadians were not Champlain or Wolfe or Sir John A., except at exam time. Try Charley Conacher or Red Horner. Or Dit Clapper, greasy kid hairdo and all.

Fred Saniford remembers them. All of them. And some you never heard of. Saniford? Who did he play for?

He didn't lace a skate with any of them. All he did was cook up a batch of artificial ice "so's they could get on with it."

Christmas Day, 1911, Saniford blended his engineering skills with a few fast prayers to produce the first indoor artificial ice in Victoria. The first in North America?

"No," he said. "Happened first in Milwaukee, I believe. Then in Vancouver . . . four days head of us."

Yup, the Hottest Arena In Town . . .

Icemaker Saniford stayed on at the Willows Arena, creating frozen ponds for Lester Patrick until 1929.

He trekked, in 1930, to Vancouver where the Patricks operated the Arena. Seating capacity: 10,500 . . . "and we turned people away by the thousands one year for lacrosse."

The last time the Arena played to a full house was in 1936. On a fall night a long cigarette made an ash of itself and brought half of Vancouver out to watch the bonfire . . .

For Mr. Saniford, journeyman stops followed at the Forum (1936-38) and Queen's Park (1938-52). The work stopped then but the memories linger on . . .

He shared them Tuesday in a brown frame house at 903 Fullerton where he lives with his daughter and son-in-law, the Norman Findlers.

He remembered the night in 1929 "when I had a pip of a junior team set to go. Muzz and Lynn Patrick and Red Lawson were on it. I had taken the uniforms home to be cleaned for our first game. They never did get to wear them. Fire . . ."

Dave Downey and Art Gagne, Duke Keats and Johnny Shepherd . . . they skated down his ice. So did Cyclone Taylor—"he was a team in himself"—and Cyclone's sons, John and Fred.

'Hail! Hail! The Gan's All Here'

Two years later, in 1926, Saniford "sort of helped out" a Victoria team carrying the noble title of "Rink Rats."

A left-winger on that club, James Smart, 508 Lampson, occupation: Police Chief, Esquimalt, happened to find a picture of the "Rink Rats" the other day. Showed it proudly to Joseph Iannarelli, the poor man's Conny Smythe, at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

"Let's invite all the boys to one of our senior games," Iannarelli suggested. "Make them guests of honor and introduce them to the crowd."

Iannarelli knew the pitfalls of his proposition. The boys could be spread across the map, farming in Lockjaw, Sask., or mining in Ooo La La, P.Q. Fate and fortune decreed otherwise.

All 11 members of the man-eating Rink Rats are domiciled in Greater Victoria, tax-paying and in some cases corpulent citizens.

How About a Spin, Mr. Saniford?

Check these names for nostalgia: Bill Symons, goal (3017 Austin); Harry Symons, centre-forward and captain (224 Island Hwy); Harry Bates, right wing (1050 Roslyn); Jim Smart, left wing (508 Lampson); Frank Pomeroy, defence (1235 Montrose); John Kirby, defence (3973 Douglas); Richard Benwell, defence (1224 Hillside); Andrew Spouse, right wing (1748 Emerson); William Griffin, left wing (206 Regina).

"And say, Joe," Chief Smart said to Iannarelli, "how about the icemaker?"

"Sure," said Iannarelli, a young iceman who has stirred his share of brine in metropolis' from Newfie to Esquie.

So have a look when they call out "Saniford, Fred." The Rink Rats know one another but this fellow watched them all, Rink Rats to Royalty, over four decades.

He might even consider going for a spin around the ice. After all, he's only 83.

Cool Dagg Capitalizes On Scots' Inflexibility

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff Writer

CALGARY — "They were playing the game we were most happy to see them play."

"They" being the Scots, the "happy fellas would have to be members of Lyall Dagg's Canadian champion curling crew. And that's how it was late Wednesday after the Vancouver rink carried Canada's colors over the preliminary hurdle in the world series of curling.

Dagg's 9-7 triumph over the Scottish champions skipped by Alex Torrence, gave Canada a 5-0 won-lost record in the preliminary jousting. It also stamped the B.C. crew as the all-mighty favorite to keep the Scotch Cup in Canada for a sixth straight year.

Canada, the Scots, United States and Sweden stepped into this afternoon's semifinals. Norway and Switzerland, campaigning in the event for the first time, are "out" but have some "good lessons" as their only consolation.

The Canadians were drawn against the Norwegian rink skipped by Per Holaker in one semifinal while Bob Magie's American champions, the third-place finishers, tackled the tough Scots.

But back to the opening quotation.

The opening line is credited to Dagg. The inference is that Scottish strategy smoothed the victory road more than somewhat for Canada.

The same suggestion was put forth by Hec Gervais, Edmonton's famous potato farmer who skipped the Scotch Cup champions of 1961.

"The Scots have improved their takeout ability by about 50 per cent," said Gervais. "Certainly, there's nothing wrong with their draw game, but they haven't mastered the strategy that goes with the knockout game."

'We Would Have Been In Trouble'

The most obvious Scottish errors in strategy came on the eighth and 10th ends.

Playing the eighth, Dagg held a 7-3 lead but the Scots had last-rock advantage. Dagg asked his lead, Barry Naimark, to put the first rock into the House. Naimark was light. The rocks wound up about six inches in front of the house.

Rather than use the Canadian stone as a guard, the Scot skip beckoned for a runner and promptly removed it.

"If I were four shots down," Dagg said later, "I would have switched to the draw game. If Torrence would have tucked something behind that rock of ours, we would have been in trouble."

"Ditto," said Gervais.

As it turned out, the Scots counted two. Dagg scored one on the ninth end and they opened the 10th with Canada ahead, 8-5, last rock to Scotland.

When Torrence went down to shoot his first rock, the only stone in play was a Canadian one, in the eight-foot circle at the back of the house.

GERVAIS SQUIRMED

So this was the situation: a Canadian rock counting at the back of the house, the Scots with two rocks left (and trailing by three), and Dagg with only one stone to come.

Torrence indicated he would play a runner, and Gervais' almost-300-pound frame squirmed in anguish.

"I dunno . . ." Hector muttered. "If I was three down at this late stage, I would gamble for two."

The shot to play, he said, was a freeze to the Dagg stone. (Dagg agreed wholeheartedly on that point later).

Cougars Take Nap In Second Period

Cougars played hockey for two periods and kept their exertion to a minimum in a third Wednesday night at Memorial Arena.

It cost them heavily.

ROUGH PERIOD

Les Johansen, who collected a 10-minute misconduct penalty in the rough final period, paced the Cougars with two goals. Other Cat tallies came from Don Wilson and Watne Anderson.

Busiest snipers for the Canadians were Toby Wilson and veteran Del Brown, each with two goals. Padding out the Safeway account were Bob Holness, Art Binks and Lonnie Restall.

Victory gave the league-champion Canadians a 1-0 lead in the best-of-five playoff final.

Simpson Tops Inlet Anglers

Bert Simpson has grabbed the lead in the March fishing competition of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association.

Simpson moved in front in the monthly contest by boating a 22-pound, two-ounce spring salmon at MacKenzie Bay. Alf Clinch holds down second place with a 20:07-pound spring.

MUSKETEERS AND CANNON . . .

There is no such thing as a triple play in basketball . . . or is there? Jim Lynch-to-Paul Baines-to-Heinz Lissy often snap the ball around smartly for St. Louis College. They are three reasons why Collegians' bantam team is a game away from the Island championship. Lynch is club's top cannonader, will lead mates into second game of total-point series at Alberni Saturday night. St. Louis has 21-point bulge going into final.

'Mary' McKenney No Joke to Leafs

Canyens Feel Slick Centre's Scoring Punch

Canadian Press

Don McKenney's light approach to his work when the other guy has the puck has earmarked him as something less than a two-way performer.

It's said that he should put a lot more oomph into the defensive aspects of playing in the National Hockey League.

But on the attack McKenney is as slick as the best of them.

And he's made this much evident since joining the goal-starved Toronto Maple Leafs less than a month ago as part of the Andy Bathgate deal with New York.

His ninth goal in 13 games with Toronto helped the Maple Leafs salvage a 2-2 tie with the Canadiens Wednesday night at Montreal in the schedule's only game before 14,177 fans.

The sawoff stifled Montreal's bid to regain a share of the league lead with Chicago Black Hawks. But the Canadiens still have two games to play to Chicago's one.

LEAFS STRUGGLE BACK

Second-period goals by the 29-year-old McKenney and team captain George Armstrong pulled Toronto even after Montreal grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first 20 minutes on goals by Billy Hicke and Claude Provost.

Gilles Tremblay, Montreal's 22-goal left-winger, was struck on the ankle by Tim Horton's slapshot in the second period and left the game. It was feared he would be lost to the team for the weekend stretch run.

Rookie defenceman Terry Harper was also hurt but it didn't incapacitate him. He took three stitches over his right eye after Eddie Shack gave him a going over along the boards and later he was hit on the left ankle by the puck and that raised a welt.

It had to happen and in the third period Shack and Harper finally tangled. They each drew five-minute majors for fighting.

McKenney's goal — a power-play effort—meant that in 13 games with Toronto he equalled his output in 55 games as a member of the Rangers. In the penalty box at the time was Hicke.

Don made it to the NHL's exclusive 200-goal circle last season when he went to New York in a swap after eight full seasons with Boston Bruins.

JEERED IN BOSTON

In Boston, the fans started taking him to task with the raspberry for his checking deficiencies, hooting at him whenever he took a turn and shouting "Mary, Mary" when he touched the puck.

Hicke's 10th goal of the season and Provost's 15th got Montreal off strongly. Andre Boudrias, a junior playing his second game in the big time, was in on Hicke's goal.

McKenney's 20-footer—set up by Bathgate—and Armstrong's No. 19 this season squared things.

It was Bathgate's 55th assist and left him one shy of his league record for right-wingers and three short of Jean Beliveau's all - encompassing seasonal mark.

Because of the swap, Bathgate gets an extra game to work in.

Goalie Johnny Bower of the Maple Leafs made 31 stops to 23 for Montreal's Charlie Hodge. But the two goals charged against each were costly in the Vezina Trophy competition.

HUNT EXTENDS KOMIYA

Calgary Youth Upsets Rollick

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP)—Jamie Paulsen, a 15-year-old Calgary junior, created the biggest stir in the opening matches of the Canadian badminton championships here Wednesday despite failing to survive third-round play.

Paulsen, unseeded in the junior ranks and given no chance of taking even one match in the seniors, defeated seasoned Bruce Rollick of Vancouver, a member of Canada's Thomas Cup team, 9-15, 17-14, 15-6 in the second round of the men's singles.

"I didn't expect to beat Rollick," said the slender youth after the win, "but I thought there was a slight chance I might outlast him. I did just that as he tired badly in the third game."

However, Paulsen, who earlier dumped Bill Waterbury of Toronto 15-4, 15-7, was knocked out in the third round by Torben Kops of Denmark, 15-2, 15-3.

Torben is the brother of the world badminton champion, Erland Kops, who withdrew from the tournament to return to Denmark to play this weekend.

MAKES QUARTER-FINALS

Wayne Macdonnell of Vancouver, winner of the Canadian closed crown last year, defeated Eiichi Sakai of Japan 15-7, 15-5 in the third round to advance to the quarter-finals. Earlier Macdonnell, seeded second behind Chan - Narong Ratanasaengsuang of Thailand, trounced David Charron of Toronto 15-0, 15-2.

Ratanasaengsuang plowed through singles, doubles and mixed doubles play undefeated.

The Thailand star, ranked second in the world, drew a bye into the second round and defeated Tom Graham of Toronto 15-6, 15-2. He advanced to the quarter-finals with a 15-8, 15-8 win over Vancouver's Ed Paterson.

Bob Hunt of Victoria bowed to the top - rated Japanese player, Yoshio Komiya, 13-15, 15-10, 15-4. Bert Fergus of Vancouver lost to highly seeded Dr. Oon Choong Teik of Malaya 15-13, 5-15, 15-5.

HAIDA BRAVES RETURN TO HOOP'S WAR TRAIL

Braves, who captured the B.C. juvenile boys' hoop crown last year, tangle with Vancouver Dunfords in a two-game, total-point series for the right to move into the B.C. final.

Games will be played Friday and Saturday, starting at 8 each night, at Mount View High School.

Bob Shaw Could Get A Kick Out of James

REGINA (CP) — Coach Bob Shaw of the Saskatchewan Roughriders confirmed Wednesday he has agreed to sit down and talk contract with Gerry James, one-time boy wonder of Canadian football.

Shaw said "if Gerry is physically sound—which I think he is—I'm quite sure he can help us. He's a winner, the type of boy we want. If we can agree to terms, he'll be in our camp."

The acquisition of James could solve a pressing problem facing the Western Football Conference Roughriders in their kicking department. Guard Reggie Whitehouse, plagued by an injured knee, made only 54 per cent of his field goal attempts and only 16 of 28 convert attempts last season.

FREE AGENT

James, who returned to his Winnipeg home a few days ago after spending the winter as a hockey coach in Davos, Switzerland, now is a free agent.

He said in Winnipeg, "I'll probably travel to Regina sometime within the next week or so and talk to Shaw to see if some kind of arrangement can be made."

James earned the Boy Wonder tag when he cracked the lineup of Winnipeg Blue Bombers at the age of 17. His father also was a star western football player.

James became the leading all-time Bomber scorer with the help of his place-kicking ability, but was given his release at the start of last season after a bitter contract dispute.

MENTAL EXAM RESULTS . . . . . NOT YET ANNOUNCED

Clay-Army Merger Indefinite

BY JIM HACKLEMAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Cassius Clay's merger with the U.S. Army still is in the indefinite stage, according to both the heavyweight champion and the nation's military establishment.

Reports that Clay had flunked a rematch with the mental portion of his draft examination were scotched Wednesday, here and at the Pentagon.

At his Harlem hotel, Clay said he had "not heard the results" of the tests taken last Friday in his hometown, Louisville. The army announced in Washington that "the results have not been disclosed."

The champion's draft board in Louisville confirmed it had not received Clay's papers and did not know his status.

"Right now I'm thinking about business, and my next fight," said Clay, who won the heavyweight title from Sonny Liston in an upset at Miami Beach Feb. 25.

"If the commissions would let me, I'd like to fight two out of three—Floyd Patterson, Doug Jones and Eddie Machen—on the same night."

Asked about a rematch with Liston, Clay asked:

"Is he out of jail yet? He ought to be a clean liver like me. I'm never in trouble. I live in the midst of hell and I'm not tempted."

Liston faces court action in Denver on several charges, including carrying a gun.

"I'm going to negotiate with Patterson for a fight with everything going to charity—cancer. That way it'll be for something worth while, and the government won't get it all."

TIME OUT By JEFF KEATE

"You'd better call me on the phone about it . . . I go steady with that javelin thrower and he's pretty jealous."

CUP GAME SATURDAY

Scottish Club To Play Here

There will be more than the McKechnie Cup at stake at Macdonald Park Saturday when Victoria's Crimson Tide tangles with the North-West Vancouver representative side.

First target for members of the Tide is the trophy that goes to the champion in the annual inter-city series, but they will also be trying to catch the eyes of selectors.

Good performances in Saturday's tussle could help individual stars gain places on the Western Canada representative team, which will oppose a touring Scottish club.

Scotland, due to play five times during a Canadian tour, will meet the western stars in Victoria on May 13. Also included on the Scottish schedule are two tussles in Toronto and one each in Vancouver and Montreal.

UPSET VANCOUVER

After upsetting the vaunted Vancouver Reps in the McKechnie Cup semifinal round, the Tide is given a good chance of bringing the trophy back to the city after an absence of many years. Nor-Wests tripped defending champion University of B.C. in their semifinal match.

Veteran Don Burgess, who kicked 13 points in a 19-14 win over Vancouver, will again start at fullback for the Tide and Dave Clarke, Paddy Sloane, Tom Brown, Jim Ryan and Jack Maxwell will be back for another turn in the backfield.

Working in front of 18-year-old scrum-half Don MacLean will be forwards Dick Smith, Sonny Vickery, Lin Paterson, Chris Pollard, Pat Aldous, Peter Clarke, Bob Moore and Dennis Guelpa.

Preceding the cup tussle at 1 will be the city junior final between Oak Bay Wanderers and Saanich Specials.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

Alertness probably pays off in hockey, more than any other sport, since hockey is the fastest game in the world.

For instance, when I'm circling behind my own net, having a lot of trouble picking up the puck because of rough ice and a fresh puck that's bouncing, Terry Sawchuk, our goalie may shout:

"Get moving, they're changing."

So a fellow doesn't have to worry about anybody going to hit him. I can concentrate on getting the puck under control, getting it down the ice as fast as possible.

However, if there is a fellow right on top of you as you're having a little trouble with the puck and take a peek to see where it is, Terry may shout:

"Look out, keep your head up."

★ ★ ★

Again it points out how important teamwork is in hockey. His warning can mean capitalizing on an opportunity when you have the opposition at a disadvantage because of a player change.

Or it can mean control of the puck, when losing it would mean a scoring opportunity for the opposition.

★ ★ ★

A short while back we went into Boston for a "must" game. Sid Abel came up with the idea of dropping Alex Delvecchio in back of our defense.

When Boston got the puck, they were throwing it in our end, then chasing in to recapture it, trying to force us into mistakes.

Alex easily beat them to the puck. Parker MacDonald and I stopped at the blue line and he'd throw it up to us. Because they were charging in, we immediately had 3-on-2 and 2-on-1 situations.

It caught them by total surprise. At the end of the second period I think we had them 4 to 0. After that Milt Schmidt had them stop throwing it in. They'd carry it in. It's a matter of the other fellow being alert, too.

Huck, He's Really Hot

REGINA (CP) — Fran Huck, a diminutive centre who is still eligible for juvenile play, has broken the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League scoring and points record on his way to the 1963-64 league scoring championship.

Huck, 18-years old Dec. 4, counted 153 points in the 62-game regular schedule, his first full year with Regina Pats. Huck, described as the hottest professional prospect in Western Canada, had 86 goals and 67 assists.

The previous SJHL points record was 131 set by John Rodger of Estevan in 1961. The old SJHL goal-scoring record was 66 by Gord Turlik in 1959-60 while with Prince Albert Mintos.

REGAINS CROWN

Brawling Chuvalo Stops Foe in One

REGINA (CP)—George Chuvalo of Toronto smashed Hugh Mercier of Regina to the canvas four times Wednesday night to regain the Canadian heavyweight boxing championship with a one-round knockout.

It was the 21st knockout in 37 professional bouts for the brawling Chuvalo and his 29th victory. He also has had two draws.

Chuvalo, 212, and ranked 10th in World Boxing Association listings, never allowed the inexperienced Mercier to get untracked.

"I didn't get much chance to see what kind of a fighter Mercier was," Chuvalo said later.

Chuvalo said he might meet Tom McNeeley of Boston in Regina next month. Details were being worked out by matchmaker Nick Zuber of Regina.

"I'm still looking for Doug Jones (the top contender for Cassius Clay's world title). Jones definitely wants to fight me. Maybe something can be worked out after the McNeeley fight."

Tantrum-Prone Stuart Too Pesky for Johnny

Canadian Press

The Dodgers still have pitching, the Giants still have hitting and Dick Stuart still has tantrums.

Over a two-game stretch, the big four of the Los Angeles mound staff has given up just one run as the Dodgers followed up a four-inning shutout performance by Sandy Koufax against New York Mets the day before by throttling Baltimore Orioles 3-1 Wednesday with Don Drysdale, Johnny Podres and Ron Perranoski doing the honors.

The San Francisco pitchers could have stayed home as the Giants got the best of a slugfest with Clevleand, belting the Indians for 23 hits in a 15-13 victory.

And the temperamental Stuart was labelled "selfish" by Boston manager Johnny Pesky when he twice failed to run out ground balls and ignored a coach's signal to score from second base in protest against being forced to play in a game between the B squads of the Red Sox and San Francisco. The Red Sox lost 3-1.

"That's as good as I'm going to be in that kind of game," was Stuart's angry comment. "I thought I was through with those games 10 years ago."

SCHEDULES TALK

Pesky said he would talk to Stuart about it in the morning.

"And if he and I don't see things the right way, then (General Manager) Mike Higgins will talk to him."

Pesky said he thought Stuart and the other Boston regulars would appreciate playing in the B game in the morning and having the afternoon off with their families while the rookies faced Chicago Cubs.

Apparently the big first baseman, who led the American League in runs batted in last season, had second thoughts later.

WILL TAKE ORDERS

"I am an employee of the Red Sox and I am paid by them," he said. "I will do anything I'm told to do. I didn't mean to cause any trouble. I'm sorry it happened."

Meanwhile the Boston rookies lost to the Cubs 10-9 on Mack Kykendall's two-run single with the bases loaded in the ninth.

A grand-slam homer by Joe Pepitone was the big blow as New York Yankees drubbed Kansas City Athletics 9-4.

Minnesota's leaky defence cost Camilo Pascual seven unearned runs as the Twins bowed 7-4 to Milwaukee Braves and Philadelphia Phillies committed five errors in losing 4-1 to New York Mets in 10 innings.

Neil Lifts Saints To Western Title

VANCOUVER (CP) — With the score tied, 47-47, with 10 minutes left in the game, CYO Saints of Vancouver broke away to defeat IPAC Junior Buffalos of Winnipeg, 80-63; and win the Western Canada Junior Basketball Championship Wednesday night.

CYO won the championship for the second straight year, defeating IPAC in three straight games in the best-of-five series. CYO won Monday night's opener, 69-60, and Tuesday's second game, 85-72.

"We gave it all we had, but with two starters off the floor we had no more stuff in the last minutes," Winnipeg manager Harvey Lipkin commented.

Williscroft topped Vancouver scoring all three games. He netted 32 points in the first game and 36 in the second.

Vancouver will meet Hamilton here for the Canadian championship best-of-five series starting March 30.

Grits Alone Oppose New Power Bill

By FRANK RUTTER

The Liberal party stood alone again in the B.C. legislature Wednesday to oppose what it called a denial of public rights in new power legislation.

A new power measures bill was given second reading—approval in principle—by a vote of 44 to 4, everyone else versus the Liberals.

The bill validates every action taken in the name of public power ownership since the B.C. Electric takeover in 1961.

ARBITRARY

"It is the final act of arbitrariness in the whole unpleasant matter," he said.

One section of the bill cancels all preferred shares in the old B.C. Electric company, and forces their holders to accept new 25-year bonds, Mr. Macfarlane said.

This is being done despite the fact that one of the largest shareholders won a court judgment giving him his money and interest—a total of $311,623, Mr. Macfarlane said.

Now other preferred shareholders are denied the right to seek a similar court judgment, he said.

WIDOW LOSES

He cited the case of Vancouver widow Ada Payne, who held only $1,000 worth of shares. She wrote Premier Bennett in 1961 asking for cash. Her loss on the shares now amounts to $150, Mr. Macfarlane said.

The rich shareholder had been allowed to get his money, but the small shareholder is denied that right, Mr. Macfarlane said.

"Here's a man who's been granted special privileges and here we have a bill which purports to take away from other people in the same class, owning the same class of shares the rights they are entitled to in law, in justice and in morality.

"One wonders when and to whom justice is available in B.C."

Mr. Macfarlane said the government should offer preferred shareholders immediate cash or parity bonds in exchange.

REAL ENEMIES

Attorney-General Robert Bonner charged the Liberals with trying to make political capital out of the situation. He called the Liberals "the real enemies of public power."

Tony Gargrave (NDP—Mackenzie) said his party supported the bill to rescue the government from the "desperate folly" of the way it had managed public power ownership.

"It can only be described as Frankenstein legislation of the most frightful kind," he said.

"It's an example of a government which has decided it needed to talk to nobody about anything until it gets into trouble with the courts."

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said the NDP condemns the government for the way in which it handled the B.C. Electric takeover but supports public power and approves the bill to keep B.C. Hydro from jeopardy.

14 GO BLIND

Contact Lenses Blamed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is investigating the cause of 14 reported cases of blindness or partial blindness associated by a Boston doctor with wearing of plastic contact lenses.

A spokesman said Dr. William Stone, director of ophthalmic plastic research laboratories at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston, had reported the 14 cases since last September.

Stone said the blindness was due directly or indirectly to infection following the wearing of plastic contact lenses.

The spokesman said it is estimated there are 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 Americans wearing contact lenses. He added that an FDA continuing investigation indicates that persons who have been wearing the lenses and are adjusted to them have nothing to worry about.

The plastic most widely used in contact lenses is methyl methacrylate, the spokesman said. He added that this contains methacrylic acid.

When a lens is put in the eye, Stone reported, tears may be caused and these may draw out the acid from the lens. This results in varying degrees of eye irritation, depending on the amount of acid that was retained in the lens.

'Grandstand Play' No Help to Harry

Magistrate William Ostler heard Wednesday all about the "grandstand play" that shaggy Harry Haigh put on when he confronted bearded building inspecter Alex James on Jan. 30.

The confrontation took place at Haigh's junk yard in the ritzy Rockland Ave. district near Government House.

It resulted in Mr. Haigh being charged with obstruction of the building inspector and in his being fined $500 for illegally operating a junk yard.

Mr. James went to 1586 Rockland to photograph the junk in the grounds of Mr. Haigh's home but Mr. Haigh wouldn't let him use the camera.

INVITED FIGHT

Mr. Haigh took off his coat and glasses and invited Mr. James to fight. Mr. James told him not to be "childish."

Then Mr. James said he was going to go around and take some photographs. Said Mr. Haigh: "That's the way to hospital."

When Mr. James asked him if he was refusing permission to inspect the place, Mr. Haigh replied "I bloody well am."

Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, Mr. Haigh's lawyer, asked Mr. James if he didn't think that Mr. Haigh's "bark is worse than his bite."

Mr. James said he didn't know because "I've never been bitten by him."

RESERVED JUDGMENT

Magistrate Ostler reserved judgment on the obstruction charge. The charge alleges Mr. Haigh interfered with and obstructed the entry of Mr. James but the statute defines the offence as being interference or obstruction. The magistrate said he will give judgment March 25. The magistrate fined Mr. Haigh $500 after convicting him of illegally operating a junk yard. He also fined him $100 for obstructing a policeman who accompanied Mr. James on a later visit.

Saltair Protests Shucking Shed

NORTH COWICHAN—Residents in the Saltair area who are appealing the decision of the department of lands giving a shucking-shed operator permission to process oysters have received the support of council.

Councillors Gerry Smith and Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn voiced sympathy with the Saltair residents.

Coun. Smith said he noticed several shucking sheds along the highway and it is "a disgrace" how some of them are being operated.

Referring to the Saltair area, noted for high tax assessment, he said, "it is like putting a garbage dump in a high-class residential district."

Public Servants Strike In France

PARIS (AP)—France's public services were hard hit by strikes Wednesday, hampering much normal activity in the country of 48,000,000.

The one-day token strikes for higher wages seriously crippled public transport, public utilities, schools, government administration and other services.

Estimates of the number of strike ranged from several hundred thousand to 6,000,000.

SIX MONTHS ON LONELY ISLAND

Modern Robinson Crusoe Set to Go

AMSTERDAM (AP) — A former Dutch command sergeant will leave here Thursday to recreate for six months on an uninhabited Caribbean isle the life of the fictional Robinson Crusoe.

The paper said De Water will fly to Caracas, Venezuela, then on to the island of Aves De Sotavento, or Biro Island, 190 miles away.

And though he expects to be lonely in his retreat, there should be plenty of company when he gets home. For a condition of his engagement to girl friend, Ineke, he said, is that he be allowed six months of freedom.

"I want to know if you really get crazy in complete solitude and rest." The Telegraaf quoted him as saying. "In a city, you know, I get forlorn. I think that over there it will be easier for someone like me to remain himself."

NO PREMATURE END

Lonely or not, De Water said only serious illness or natural disaster will cause a premature end to his adventure.

The Telegraaf said the idea for the experiment followed the experiences of French reporter George De Caunes who spent 118 solitary days on the Tahitian island of Elao. De Water said of this:

"That man lacked the right mentality. We commando troops have the right training. We could live on what such an island produces."

His preparations include learning how to splint a leg, fight a crocodile, turn salt water into fresh, operate a radio transmitter, tell poisonous plants and fish from edible ones and catching goats, turtles, crabs, and lobsters.

De Water will take 24 chickens and two dogs to the island, which has an average temperature of 104 fahrenheit. While there, he will radio reports of his experiences to Caracas and Holland.

Resident Here For 84 Years Succumbs at 90

Miss Lucy Davey, a resident of Victoria for 84 years, died in a nursing home Tuesday at the age of 90.

She was a daughter of the late Frederick Davey, who represented Victoria city in the B.C. legislature during the premiership of Sir Richard McBride.

Besides Mrs. Deaville, Miss Davey leaves a brother, Frank Davey, in Vancouver.

She was a member of Metropolitan United Church, whose minister, Rev. F. E. H. James, DD, will conduct a funeral service in McCall's funeral chapel Friday at 3:15 p.m. Burial will be in the family plot at Ross Bay cemetery.

Owner's View

How does an owner see his new Acadian Beaumont? With great pride! For Beaumont is '64's most exciting new car with a sparkling personality all its own. Look at the roofline and the lilt of the rear fender curve. Sheer poetry in steel! Of course, when you're enjoying Beaumont's V8 or 6-cylinder performance, everyone else will be enjoying its good looks. If you go in for off-beat views, look under a Beaumont—that's where you'll see the Full Coil suspension that provides a smooth, cushioned ride. Owners point out that's the comfort view. If you go in for panoramics, take a tour around a Beaumont—it won't take long because Beaumont is trimmer than the big cars. Or, if you like conducted tours, give your own. Take the whole family. Show them Beaumont's interior. They'll love the room. And they'll compliment you on your choice of fabrics. But if you're like most Beaumont owners, you'll keep one special view for your own. That's the most satisfying one. The one behind the wheel. Enjoy it at your Acadian-Pontiac dealer's today.

LAWYER SAYS:

Lawyers 'Unsuitable' As Jurors

Lawyers may know the law, but they are "completely unsuitable for jury duty," Oak Bay barrister Alan Macfarlane told the legislature Wednesday.

The Liberal member was speaking on an amendment to the Jury Act. He asked for exclusion of lawyers from jury duty because of their peculiar position, not in self-interest.

In a murder trial, for instance, Mr. Macfarlane pointed out, jurors receive their instruction on the law from the presiding judge.

DIFFERENT VIEW

If a lawyer was a juror, others on the panel could look to him for his view of the law, which might frustrate the direction of the court.

Also, the MLA pointed out, what the lawyer has said — within the confines of the jury room—could not be subject to review by a court of appeal as would be a judge's instruction.

Premier Bennett suggested the matter of a lawyer's daily fee could also be of consideration in a bid for exclusion of lawyers from jury duty.

SNIDE IMPLICATION

Mr. Macfarlane objected to the "snide" implication.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said the probability of a lawyer becoming a member of a jury is "so remote it is not worth considering."

A lawyer probably would be excluded in the normal course of jury selection, the attorney-general said. A lawyer could also claim exemption because of inconvenience under the act, he said.

SEEK MORE OFFICE SPACE

MLAs Squeeze Out a Plea

Members of the legislature are squeezed out of their offices at the buildings into hotel rooms in order to conduct constituency business during the session, members complained to Works Minister W. N. Chant Wednesday.

Government members joined the opposition in its annual plea for more space during debate on Mr. Chant's estimates, passed in an hour and 25 minutes Wednesday night.

Donald Brothers (SC—Rossland-Trail) suggested setting up tents on the lawn.

"The people who are suffering are those who come down here to see the members," said Cyril Shelford (SC—Omineca). "They should be able to sit down. But, then, maybe they don't stay as long . . ."

He thought a tent would be "a lot better than standing in a corridor."

Randolph Harding (NDP—Kaslo-Slocan) said members have to work in "disgraceful quarters. They have to talk in the corridors and are crowded into the committee room where the phone is ringing. And it must be worse in the government caucus room."

Mr. Harding said when a member is forced to do his work in a hotel room when the other facilities are centred in the Parliament Buildings, it is "not right."

"Surely it is not beyond the monetary resources of this government (to improve facilities) even if it means moving to another building," he said.

Ray Perrault (Lib.—N. Van), seconded the idea, suggesting no members' offices on the main floor of the House at all, and improved telephone facilities.

Mr. Chant brushed aside the pleas, saying the need for accommodation is greater in other fields.

Victoria Court Lauded In Plea for Vancouver

Victoria's court house has splendid acoustics among other enviable facilities, like court rooms, chambers and washrooms, legislative members were told Wednesday.

"You can hear every word the judges are saying in the Court of Appeal as they deliberate among themselves," said Alex Macdonald (NPD—Vancouver East) in support of a new Vancouver court house.

1,000 TO ONE

In Vancouver 1,000 lawyers must use a single urinal, he complained.

"I can never find it," chipped in Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

Mr. Macdonald said most of the litigation in the province is carried on Vancouver's archaic facilities. "What is your plan for Vancouver court house?" he asked Mr. Chant.

IN DUE COURSE

"In due course," the minister replied.

"Have you no plans?"

"Have a little patience. A great deal has been done and more will be done."

Mr. Chant had basically the same reply for Opposition leader Robert Strachan, asking about a new Duncan court house for the 12th year.

Mr. Strachan recalled a 1956 campaign promise by Mr. Chant —"within two months."

An NDP member observed the minister had not said which two months.

"Plans are proceeding," Mr. Chant said.

Mr. Strachan wanted to know when.

Father Stole To Aid Him, Child Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Leukemia victim Bradley McDonald, whose stepfather went to jail for stealing money to provide him with toys and treats, died Wednesday in hospital. He was five years old.

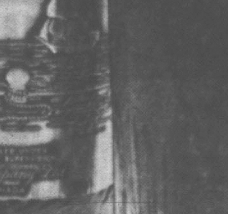

The stepfather, Gordon James McDonald, 35, served one month in prison last year for stealing $680 from his employer. His original six-month term was reduced by the B.C. Court of Appeal after it was stated that he stole only to make Bradley's last months happy ones.

Basement Flooded By Leaking Main

NANAIMO (CP) — A slow leak from an underground water main seeped unnoticed into the basement of a home here Wednesday, flooding the basement to a depth of five feet. Then the concrete basement burst and the wall of water, carrying a washing machine and other articles, ran downhill to another home, flooding the basement there. Work crews repaired the 10-inch main.

BONNETS AND BUSTLES

Quill Pens Mark Up Firm's Centenary

Canada Trust-Huron and Erie has moved backwards to mark its 100 years of progress.

Tellers decked in bonnets and bustles signed their ledgers with a quill and customers helped themselves to tree-stemmed lollipops as they waited at the wicket.

At head office in London, Ontario, shareholders attending the 100th annual meeting Wednesday saw what the founders looked like, mutton-chops and all.

At 650 View Street customers have a chance to enjoy the 100th anniversary celebration on a smaller scale as tellers in period costumes serve refreshments. It will continue through Friday.

Chairman of the planning committee, Bryan Travers-Smith, located the period costumes and furniture with ease but not the quills. They were specially ordered from Connecticut.

At the Custom House the box of feathers posed a problem—were they finished or unfinished feathers?

Mr. Travers-Smith was finally allowed to pay the 16 cents duty and take his quills back to the office to be sharpened.

Protect Aged From Quacks, Exploiters Ottawa Urged

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal action to help prevent Canada's older citizens from being swindled by promoters of worthless keep-young products was recommended here today by the government of Saskatchewan.

"Old people are a special target for swindles, hoaxes and exploitation," the Saskatchewan government said in a brief to the special Senate committee studying the problems of Canada's aged.

"Sophisticated promoters and quacks capitalize upon the infirmities of the aged through gross misrepresentation of drugs of all kinds, diets, appliances and various cures advertised to cure or alleviate conditions which require competent medical diagnosis and treatment."

The brief said a national drug research laboratory should be established to do a thorough job of testing drugs, health foods and appliances.

"Such an agency would be expected to exercise measures to inhibit high-pressure promotion of the various types of products under its jurisdiction. The Food and Drug Act should be amended to provide that no type of so - called health product, drug or otherwise may be sold in Canada unless certified by the National Drug Research Laboratory."

The brief also said that there is a need for special hearing and vision clinics in order to prevent the aged from being victimized by hearing aid and spectacle salesmen.

COFFEE BREAK FATAL —BREW WAS CYANIDE

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — A woman mistakenly poured herself a cup of boiling cyanide solution instead of coffee, sipped it and died within five minutes, police said.

"What was it?" were the dying words of Mrs. Adeline M. Kehoe, 57, Wednesday.

It was Mrs. Kehoe's first day on the job at a metals firm.

Officers said she apparently noticed the pot of amber-colored cyanide boiling on the stove and mistook it for coffee. A coffee urn was on a box nearby.

The cyanide is used in metal processing.

THREE GO, TWO COME

Halifax, Esquimalt Trade Ships

The Royal Canadian Navy has started an exchange between its Atlantic and Pacific commands which will involve five ships.

Coming to Esquimalt from Halifax will be the MacKenzie class destroyer HMCS Qu'Appelle and the Restigouche class destroyer HMCS St. Croix.

The Qu'Appelle, just recently off the ways, is commanded by Cmdr. A. G. Kilpatrick of Victoria and carries a complement of 250 officers and men.

Empty berths at Halifax will be filled by HMCS St. Laurent, which sailed from Esquimalt earlier in the year, HMCS Ottawa and HMCS Saguenay.

The Qu'Appelle sailed for Victoria Tuesday and is expected to arrive here April 24 via the Panama Canal.

To complete the first phase of the exchange, the St. Laurent has been detached from manoeuvres in the Indian Ocean with HMCS Fraser, HMCS MacKenzie and other Commonwealth fleets.

She will reach Halifax after stopovers in the Mediterranean and United Kingdom.

Her west coast crew will bring the St. Croix here in August.

JURY FREES PARENTS OF ABANDONING TOTS

KAMLOOPS (CP)—An Assize Court jury deliberated only eight minutes Wednesday before acquitting a couple on a charge of abandoning their children and exposing them to danger.

Mr. Justice T. W. Brown told the jury that evidence against the couple was purely circumstantial and they may have been only "momentarily inattentive."

B.C. Gas Reserves Gain

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

While B.C.'s proved crude oil reserves were lower at the end of 1963 than the previous year, the province's natural gas reserves showed a big increase.

Figures just released by the reserves committee of the Canadian Petroleum Association showed B.C.'s gas reserves increased by 833-100 million cubic feet to a total of 5,765,790 million cubic feet in the period from Dec. 31, 1963. The increase was the largest of any province. Alberta's gas reserves increased by 739-026 Mmcf. to a total of 39,916,388 Mmcf.

However, the CPA committee downgraded this province's proved crude reserves by 150,000 barrels to a total of 136,427,000 —a reflection of the almost complete lack of new oil field discoveries in recent years. Natural gas liquid reserves were estimated at only 33,488,000 at year end compared with 35,779,000 a year earlier. Alberta's oil reserves were boosted by 332,738,000 barrels to 4,140,847,000 barrels.

For all of Canada the increase in crude and natural gas liquid reserves was about 453,185,000 barrels for a total of 5,629,237,000 barrels. Production during 1963 was 283,847,000 barrels.

Gordon Bell

B.C.'s largest investor-owned real estate firm, First National Mortgage (1962) Co. Ltd. of Vancouver reports an increase of 78 per cent in earnings for the year ended Jan. 31, compared with the previous year.

The company, with its shares listed on the Vancouver Stock Exchange, was formed to acquire the Block Bros. Realty Ltd. interests in the mortgage, real estate, construction and property development fields.

The annual report shows net earnings for the year at $202,972 or 19 cents a share compared with $144,162 or 11 cents a share the previous year. Total revenue was $718,208 compared with $428,596.

President Arthur J. Block said that real estate sales were at a new high at $20 million, up from $16 million the year before. The mortgage operation, much of it generated through the firm's own real estate sales, showed an increase in receivables from $1,822,235 to $3,063,467.

During the year First National acquired a full city block opposite English Bay Beach in Vancouver which will permit eventual development of about 500 apartment units. Another property acquired on South Granville will be developed as an office building.

Eastern papermaker Great Lakes Paper Co. of Fort William reported a record year in 1963 with net profit up seven per cent to $4,672,324 or $1.30 a share. Per share earnings for 1962 were $1.21.

Operating at an estimated 78 per cent of rated capacity this year, Great Lakes expects even higher sales and earnings for 1964.

U.S. Cigarette Sales Drop

CHICAGO (AP) — The U.S. National Tobacco Tax Association says cigarette sales in the United States dropped during February. The decline followed the adverse U.S. government report in January on health and smoking.

The association said Tuesday a survey of tax stamp sales in 37 states and the District of Columbia showed that cigarette purchases in all but one state were below those of the corresponding month in 1962.

That one exception, it said, was Kentucky, where sales showed no change from the previous February.

The drops in the states, it said, ranged up to 31.6 per cent in Iowa and 30 per cent in the District of Columbia.

The association is an organization within the Federation of Tax Administrators, which is made up of men in the tax department of the 50 states.

A tip of the hat TO OUR ELDERS

While we certainly do not feel our age, this week Canada Trust-Huron & Erie marked the 100th Anniversary of its founding as The Huron & Erie Savings and Loan Society.

As befits a Junior Centenarian, we will try to be modest about entering the select circle of Canadian firms that have been in business 100 years or more. We stand in proper awe of the Grand Patriarch, The Hudson's Bay Company, founded in 1670. We pay due deference to at least six enterprises dating back to the 1700's.

To our Esteemed Elders, we lift our hat in respectful salute, and wish them well in all the years to come.

BENNETT NON-COMMITAL

Six Socreds Defy House To Oppose B.C. 'Hansard'

Six Socreds voted against the rest of the legislature and a Hansard Wednesday.

The House approved an Opposition resolution for government consideration of a verbatim record of its proceedings, although Premier W. A. C. Bennett refused a commitment to implement it.

This is the third year the government has agreed to consider Hansard and several of the 17 MLAs who spoke about it in an hour-long debate this time doubted anything will ever be done.

FURTHER STUDY

Mr. Bennett said the government will carry out "further studies."

"The government will accept the resolution but will make no commitment when it will come into effect," he said.

The six Socreds who opposed Hansard were Herbert Bruch of Esquimalt; Waldo Skillings of Victoria; Jacob Huhn, North Peace; Bert Price, Vancouver-Burrard; Willis Jefcoat, Salmon Arm, and Cyril Shelford, Omineca.

The other 42 MLAs present approved the resolution, moved by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

"If nothing else, for the sake of history we should have a verbatim report," he said. "We owe this to the people of the province."

A Hansard would cut out "chit-chat" and elevate the standard of debate.

The Hansard-boosters said that many other provinces now have a Hansard and Social Credit Alberta approved a resolution for one earlier in March.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault said he was tired of annual battles over newspaper clippings reporting what MLAs had said. Mr. Perrault also advocated radio broadcasts of legislative debate.

ADD TO DIGNITY

Alex Matthew (SC—Vancouver-Centre) said Hansard would add to the dignity of the House.

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver-East) challenged the premier to vote against the resolution if he really had no intention of carrying it out.

He said the Socreds are afraid that "inconsistent" policies will be exposed to the public view.

Mr. Bruch said Hansard encourages absenteeism from the legislature.

"It should be debate on the issues before the legislature and not debate to be put on record for public consumption," Mr. Bruch said.

Frank Calder (NDP—Atlin), said Saskatchewan's Hansard costs only $2,000 a week.

Arthur Turner (NDP—Vancouver-East), said if Mr. Bruch was right, then the British parliament and Ottawa's House of Commons have been wrong for many years.

J. Donald Smith (SC — Victoria), said "choice tidbits" thrown across the floor should be recorded for posterity.

DON'T EVEN SPEAK

The premier said that a big argument against Hansard is that it discourages full attendance in legislatures. In the U.S. legislators have gone a step farther—they don't even speak, just file a copy of a speech.

Mr. Bennett also criticized Ottawa's Hansard because it is being extensively edited.

Lois Haggen (NDP—Grand Forks-Greenwood), said the premier was intimating B.C. won't get a Hansard.

"It's a saying that only a nightingale opens its mouth merely to emit sound," she said. "Attendance could be controlled by other means."

Blizzards Kill Stock

PEKING (Reuters) — More than 600,000 livestock animals, mainly lambs and kids, died in blizzards in Mongolia last month, the Mongolian embassy announced in this Chinese capital Wednesday.

FORMER MINISTER of external affairs Howard Green will speak on "The Importance of the United Nations to Canada" tonight at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall, Christ Church Cathedral. Chairman of the United Nations Association meeting will be Richard J. Bower.

500 Men Idled

WINNIPEG (CP) — Virtually the entire 500-man labor force was idle Wednesday in the second day of a strike at the site of a $140,000,000 hydro development at Grand Rapids, Man. Four union locals with 138 men at the site, 235 miles north of Winnipeg, are striking Grand Rapids contractors for higher pay. Other workmen were respecting pickets.

PROPERLY ROYAL

Jubilee Records Big Year in '63

Royal Jubilee Hospital had a big year in 1963 with opening of new facilities, large jumps in services and staff, a $42,000 surplus and official recognition from Queen Elizabeth.

These were among the highlights in a 70-page annual report presented to the annual meeting of subscribers Wednesday night in the nurses' residence.

The opening of the new five-storey wing and the addition to the psychiatric wing helped push patient loads to an all-time high last year with prospects that 1964 will see a further increase.

TOTALS COMPARED

The year's statistics, with 1962 comparisons in brackets, were: 13,565 (12,396) patients admitted, 1,826 (1,802) births, 156,193 (142,778) patient days, 16,300 (15,706) nursery days, 40,667 (26,946) outpatients treated, 7,252 (6,461) operations, 19,803 (17,573) emergency department services.

NET SURPLUS

Balance sheets showed operating expenditures for the year totalled $4,321,874 with income providing a net surplus of $42,000 which was added to the previous $241,098 working capital account.

Another balance sheet showed the hospital's assets — including plant, investments, grants and other items — at a total of $5,883,598, up almost $750,000 over 1962.

Among receipts were a total of $113,173 in voluntary donations, including some $50,000 for furnishings from the hospital's auxiliaries.

Two Youth Groups Meeting Sunday

A general meeting of the Job's Daughters and DeMolay Temple Society will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Knights of Pythias Hall, Cormorant Street.

Purpose of the meeting is to inform members and advisors of bethels and chapters in Greater Victoria of accomplishments of the temple society and its future plans.

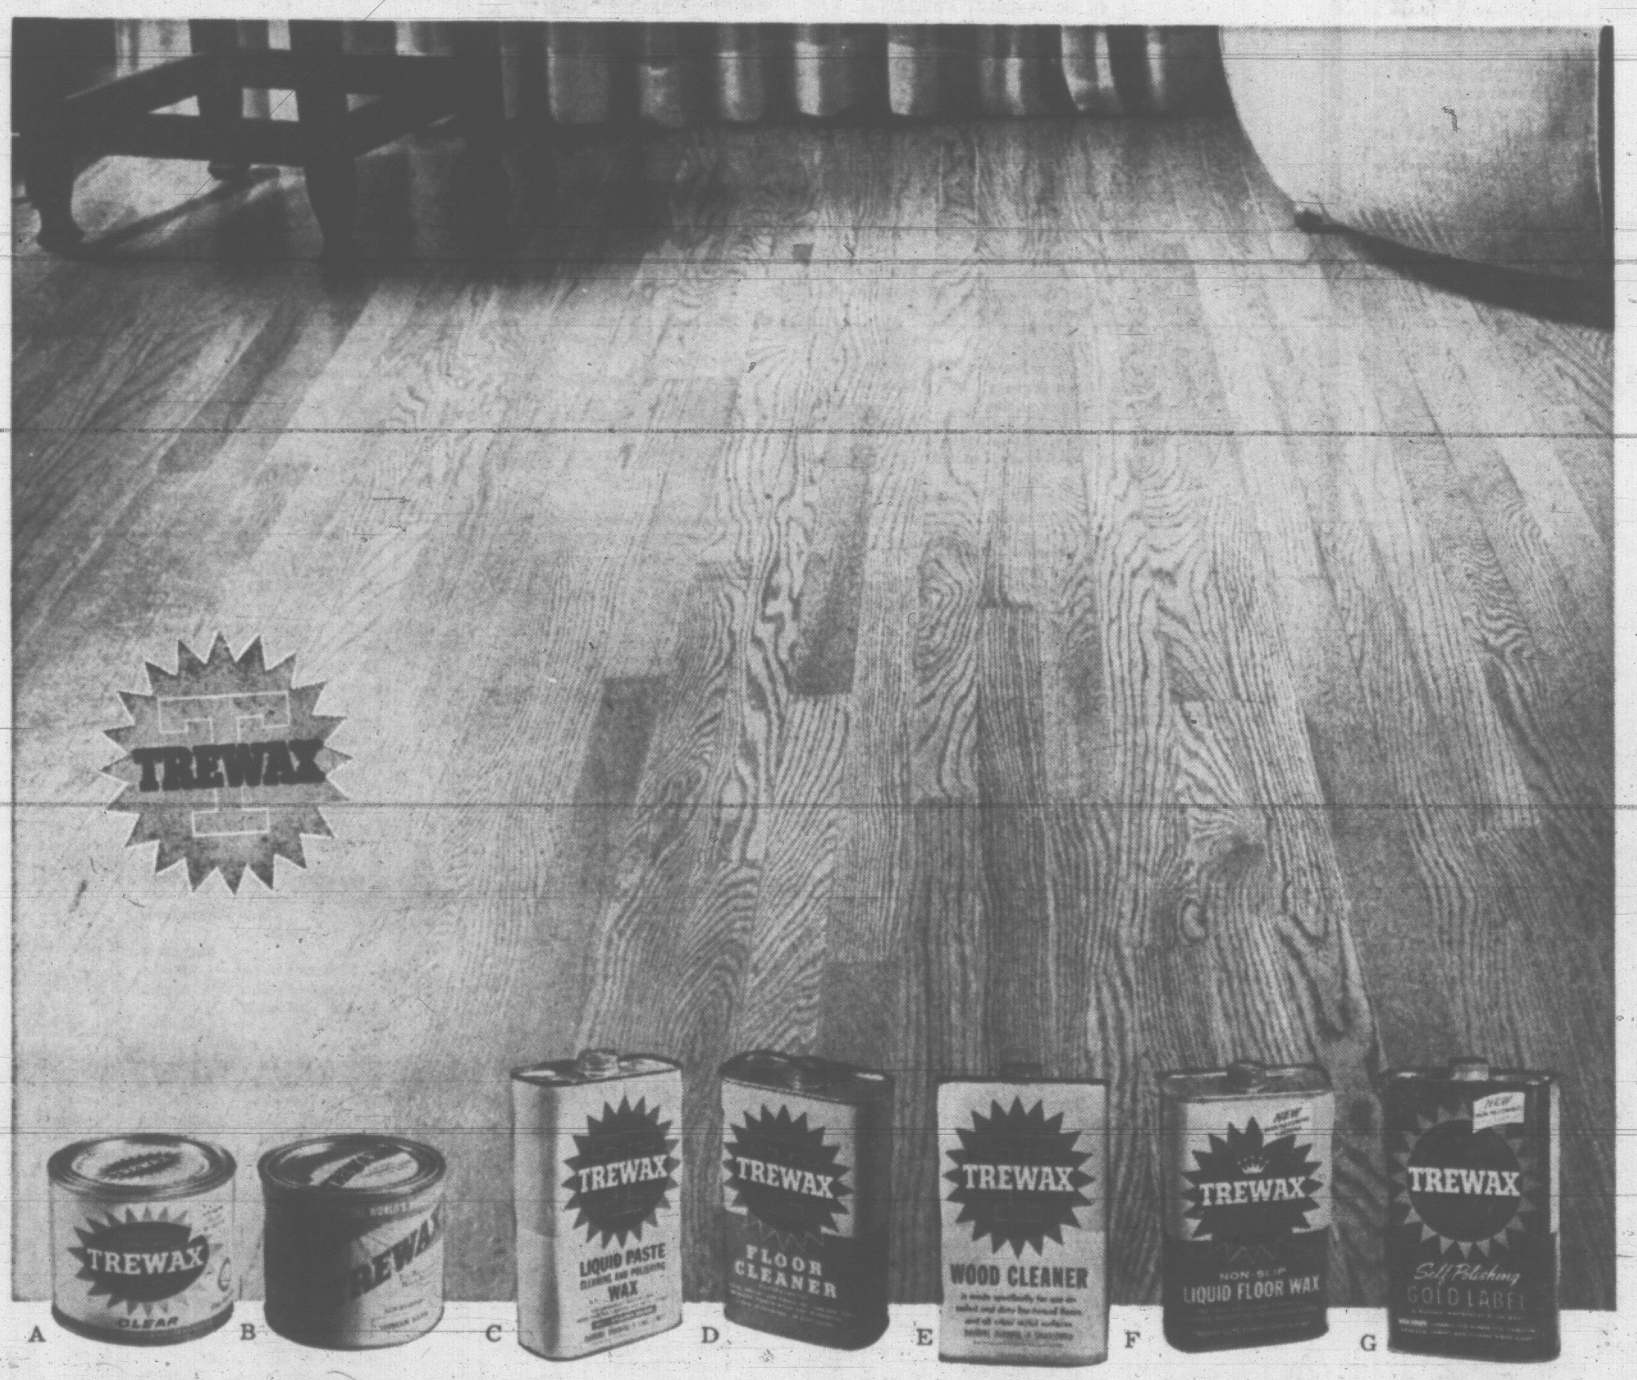

The Victoria City and District Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society reports that 35 blood donor clinics were held in the district last year. Donations of blood were made by 7,331 persons. Since the inception of the free blood transfusion service in 1947, 106,330 bottles of blood have been collected from donors in the Victoria district.

FORMER RACE HORSES WORK SADDLE RING

SOME FIND NEW CAREER ON HURDLES

Happy Bunch of 'Also Rans' Living It Up at Carley's

By MARGE GILROY

A race horse can be a loser on the track and still be a favorite in the ring.

At Victoria Riding Academy there are many such horses as well as a fair number of retired winners.

Terry Tet, age 35, was one of the winners. For many years he was a consistent winner at the old Willows Race Track and won 33 races in all in B.C. At 14 he retired to the saddle.

Another retired winner is nine-year-old Stolen Love who raced up until last year. This year she turned the racing over to her foal Our Steve who is presently in training at Sandown.

PRICES REASONABLE

Thoroughbreds who have passed their peak at the races can usually be bought at a reasonable price and trained as hacks or jumping horses.

Six-year-old Beauvale was raised in California, won four races in Vancouver, then retired to the ring. He is now a trained jump and riding horse who makes a fine show in the hack classes.

Vino Jose also retired in good grace. For 12 years he was a top racer in California, and now takes life easy at the riding academy.

Ida's Boy was raised in Victoria, raced for two years, won one race and retired.

Glen-to-Glen is a stately chestnut who raced in Vancouver but never made the finishing line. Owner Pat Newman said "he always ran backwards."

GOING AHEAD

Now he moves forward with great strides as he approaches the jumping hurdles.

Worthy Miss was raised and raced in Vancouver but didn't live up to her name. She was never a winner.

Five-year-old Settle raced in California and B.C. and was known as a winner in his racing days. Last fall he was bought by Joe Weicker and trained to the saddle.

Getting on in years is Royal Flax who was raised here by Don Carley, raced here for a number of years and now at 23 enjoys showing in the hack class.

From Ireland came The Dustman. He was imported three years ago, was a good racer and now a good saddle horse.

Rogan, Temulac Boy, Burnaby Lad and Cinnamox are just a few more of the racers who have given up the hectic pace of the track for life at a riding stable.

OLD HAND

Mr. Carley, manager at the academy, is an old-hand at retraining horses for the saddle after they have been trained for the track.

"It means retraining the horses all over again as the race horse knows only one thing—the gallop" said Mr. Carley.

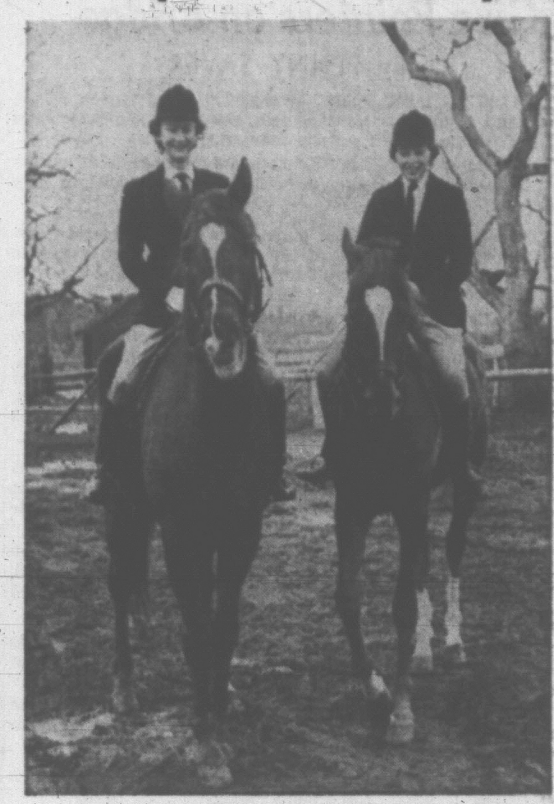

Rider Pat Newman said "It is no easy job to retrain a Thoroughbred, they are so high spirited and used to much different treatment."

Friday, March 27, the retired race horses at the academy will be cantering and jumping alongside other saddle horses at an Easter Gymkhana.

Weather permitting there will be three events in the morning and eight in the afternoon with equitation and child's hunter class featured in the two special children's events.

Lumber Firm Hopes to Keep Mill Running

City Operation Depends on Logs

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. has switched plans and now hopes to keep its recently-purchased Moore-Whittington sawmill in operation—if it can find an assured supply of logs and overcome the smoke problem.

"We are endeavoring to continue to operate it now but we have two problems to overcome—finding a firm supply of logs and also strict enforcement of the city's smoke bylaw," Mr. Barnes said.

REASONS FOR SALE

Mr. Williston said both these problems were the reason the 40-year-old Moore-Whittington operation was sold to BCFP.

"If it has to be rebuilt because of the smoke problem and so on, then the business will disappear," he told John Squire (NDP—Alberni) who asked what would happen to the jobs provided by the plant.

City Manager Dennis Young said he understood there was a possibility the sawmill could be kept going—if logs were found—without using the burner.

"Certainly, we would be loathe to take any action through our smoke bylaw which is going to lose the city a 125-man payroll," he said.

FORESEE SOLUTION

"We are confident that a solution to the problem can be reached without such drastic steps as closing down the plant."

Mr. Barnes said that if a supply of logs is found, "I think we would just go ahead and continue operating, trying of course to co-operate with the city's anti-smoke position as best we can and see what happens."

He said he did not think the company would approach the city in advance to ask for relaxation of the smoke bylaw regulations.

The sawmill's log supply was cut off when the CPR decided to develop its own timber operations in the E & N Railway land holdings instead of selling logging rights.

FIREMEN COOL HOT COFFEE AT MARKET

Coffee was double-roasted at Lake Hill Food Market, 3949 Quadra, shortly after 10 a.m. today.

Saanich fireman called to the store found fire smouldering in a stockroom, burning cartons and bags of coffee on a shelf against a chimney with a disused opening.

New owner Glen Thors was unaware the chimney was still used for heating an adjoining apartment.

New Hospital For Elderly Planned Here

Plans for construction of a $400,000 private hospital on Hillside Avenue were announced today.

Neil De Macedo, 29, administrator, said the 75-bed hospital which will cater to elderly persons, will commence construction in June or July and will open in December.

The 22,000 square foot, one-storey building will be located on two-and-a-half acres near the Gosworth intersection. It will be built in the shape of a cross, affording a maximum of natural light to private and semi-private rooms and four-bed wards.

FULL SERVICE

Patients, both private and municipally placed, will receive 24-hour care from graduate nurses, said Mr. De Macedo. The hospital will specialize in physical, occupational, recreational and creative therapy. A trained social director will have charge of events such as birthday observances, sewing bees, Sunday drives and movies.

Mr. De Macedo, whose family has operated private hospitals for 15 years, said facilities include a modern 900-square foot stainless steel kitchen, a generous lounge and dining room and a two-way nurse-patient address system. All patient rooms will be wired for television.

On the grounds, patients will have full use of a putting green and greenhouses.

Four District Burglaries

In Saanich, police reported juveniles responsible for house entries at 1265 and 1269 Union and 3371 Maplewood, where 50 cents was stolen from one house.

Garbage Dump Probe Ordered

FIRST ENTRANT in Miss Victoria Pageant sponsored by Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce is hazel-eyed honey blonde Sandy Evans. Sandy, 20, is a file clerk in the credit department of a local department store and lives at 1705 Carnegie Crescent. Jaycees will accept entries up to April 11.

Committee Heeds Local Complaints

City health committee today ordered medical health officer Dr. John Whitbread to make an official investigation and report on complaints about the Hartland Road garbage dump.

A letter from the Prospect Lake and District Community Association claimed the dump had created a serious rat and seagull problem, pollution in Killarney and Prospect Lakes and a smoke nuisance.

Health committee was told that a preliminary report by the city engineer's department showed that drainage from the dump flows away from Prospect Lake towards Heal Lake.

ABIDING BY RULES

City manager Dennis Young added that the privately operated dump is abiding by commitments to have a rodent control service at the site twice a week, daily burning of dumped garbage and provision of a round-the-clock watchman service.

"Well, if the situation is anything like that described in the complaint, it certainly is time that something be done," said Ald. A. L. Curtis.

"But we've got to get someone who knows what he's talking about to ascertain the facts."

Committee decided to ask Dr. Whitbread for a report although committee chairman Ald. Lily Wilson said the problem was for Saanich council to grapple with.

Private contractors use the dump for garbage hauled from Victoria, urban Saanich, Central Saanich and Sidney. It is actually in unorganized territory, barely outside the Saanich municipal boundary running through part of the Highlands district.

METRO SOLUTION

Mr. Young suggested the only realistic alternative to the dump-and-burn disposal system would be construction of a metro garbage incinerator to serve all of Greater Victoria.

"But this would approach a cost of $2,000,000 just for the plant," he said.

Mr. Young also said a Victoria Labor Council suggestion that the city use its garbage for a profit-making compost sideline was not practicable because there is an insufficient volume to justify the cost of establishing such a system.

OH THAT VICTORIA IMAGE!

Luxury Sedan Here For Auction Tonight

By PETE LOUDON

If any of Victoria's "landed gentry" are interested, there's a car suited to royalty going on the auction block tonight.

The auctioneers say it cost $22,000 new and its looking for a palace to park beside.

It's a 1956 prestige model sedan, so exclusive that it wears a label "hand made"—which means it didn't come off an assembly line but was custom built for the original owner.

The auctioneers say there are only four like it in the province.

Curiosity piqued, we made some enquiries and learned the car was brought here from Toronto and that this is a growing practice.

WEALTHY BUYERS

George Hankinson, president of Victoria Auto Dealers' Association, says some distant dealers have the the opinion that this city is peopled with wealthy connoisseurs.

"These people have some fixations about Victoria that aren't true. In nine cases out of 10 these cars go back whence they came," he stated.

Another dealer said it is becoming a popular practice in the Eastern car marts, however, to pay someone $75 to drive a premium car out here.

SALT IN EAST

Some of the people who have looked into the trend say buyers should remember that Eastern driving conditions mean use of road salt, which can mean rust damage.

But Mr. Hankinson says it isn't worth the risk for a dealer to send a rust-eaten car out here.

"Even an amateur can recognize rust," he states. So only top-quality cars are moved.

He pointed out that 70 per cent of the auto business in Canada is done east of Manitoba and as a result there is a broader selection of models there.

There are cars on the market there, specialty makes, which ordinarily wouldn't appear in the west.

So it's really a tribute to our reputation as the home of the wealthy recluse that is creating the situation. "Those cartoons do get around," chuckles Mr. Hankinson.

Report Asked

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday expressed "regret" with a city council decision to stick to the single polling station system for civic elections.

Delegate Fred Bevis suggested the VLC, which asked council to switch to a multiple polling station system, should write to City Hall for the report on which the council decision was based.

Service Clubs, NES Arrange 'Career' Nights

What job to look for, how to find it and how to progress in a chosen field?

An estimated 900 students due to graduate from high school will get answers to these questions next month as annual career counselling nights are held again.

The question-and-answer nights will be April 28, 29 and 30 under auspices of the National Employment Service, Victoria office, and two city service clubs.

Rotary and Kiwanis will provide counsellors and all district high schools now are participating, NES officers advise.

NES officers here extend the same counselling to youngsters who leave school to seek work, before attaining high school graduation. In the past year 810 boys and 306 girls were counselled, the emphasis being on persuasion to further school training.

At the same time interviews were held with 157 handicapped persons in an effort to fit their capabilities into the community's labor force.

Books for Novice Or Pro Give Pointers on Bridge

By PENNY SAVER

When the girls decided to organize an afternoon bridge club, and Penny was asked to join, she found she knew even less about the game than she thought.

Watching others play didn't supply enough information on the subject, so Penny went in search of books to help her out.

One well-known bridge player has written several booklets explaining the rules of the game. These are available to everyone and include valuable pointers for both the novice and the "old pro."

Booklets range in price from 29 cents to $1.39 each, and include information from easy approach and introduction to bridge up to pointers on how to improve your game.

One booklet, priced at 59 cents, includes an official point count summary and information on bidding, responses, rebids, overcalls, take-out doubles, slam bidding and opening lead tables.

To help solve any disagreements which might arise during play, the same gentleman has written a point count summary and list of responses to opening bridge on the inside cover of score pad.

The back cover of this 75-cent pad gives information on suit values, points needed for a game, honors, rubber bonus, vulnerable slam bonus, premiums, overtrick premiums and undertick penalties.

Easter Ham Takes On A New Look

HAM STEAKS WITH APPLES

Two ham steaks, cut ½-inch thick (about 2 pounds), 12 cloves, ¾ cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 teaspoons dry mustard, 3 tablespoons vinegar, ⅓ cup apple juice, 3 medium apples (about 1 pound), tart red jelly.

Press cloves into fat side of each steak and snip the fat between the cloves. Mix dry ingredients. Blend in vinegar and apple juice. Peel and core apples. Cut 6 apple rings about ¼-inch thick to garnish top. Slice remaining apples thinly.

Place one steak in a greased baking dish, cover with the thinly sliced apples and pour about ¼ cup of the apple juice mixture over them. Place second steak over apples and garnish top with remaining thick slices of apple. Cover and bake in a moderately slow oven (325 deg. F.) for 30 minutes. Remove cover and pour remaining apple juice mixture over steaks. Continue baking uncovered, about 30 minutes longer, basting occasionally. Place a teaspoon of tart red jelly in the centre of each apple ring before serving. Six servings.

OPEN-FACED APPLE HAM SANDWICH

Six slices bread, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon mustard, 6 slices cooked ham (picnic shoulder or cottage roll), 3 red apples (about 1 pound), 6 slices cheese.

Spread each slice of bread with 1 teaspoon mayonnaise and ½ teaspoon mustard. Wash and core apples and slice thinly. Place ham slice on bread and cover with 3 apple slices. Broil until apple slices are partially cooked, about 3 minutes. Top each sandwich with a cheese slice. Broil until cheese melts, about a minute. Serve hot. Six servings.

Ham is traditional for Easter weekend meals. When it can be served with the added touch of apples and tart jelly, it gives a festive appearance to the dinner table.

NEW SPICE-APPLE HAM

There's nothing better than a new taste twist to add spice and interest to your family fare at the Eastertide . . . and, ham is one of the most versatile meats you can serve in a great variety of every-day or exotic ways.

Melt 1½ cups apple jelly with 3 or 4 whole cloves, over low heat. Stir until smooth.

Place any dependable brand boneless half ham in a shallow roasting pan, and score the fat with diagonal cuts. Place whole cloves "at the crossroads" in the scoring, and brush the ham with the warm Spice Apple Glaze above. Bake in the oven, pre-heated to 325 degrees, for about an hour or until lightly browned and glazed. Just before serving, transfer the ham to a serving platter and garnish with apple wedges.

The garnish of course, is "an extra", but it takes practically no time and no trouble, and pays off in the beautiful appearance of your plate that adds immeasurable appetite appeal.

Made with a medium size half ham, this recipe will give you one generous family meal, with only enough left-overs for one tasty cold-cut lunch. You'll have none of the old nuisance of many days of left-overs that was inevitable when ham could be bought only whole.

Golden Theme Used At Chapter's Party

Daffodils decorated the hall and centred tables, carrying out a gold theme, when members, friends and Moose lodge members gathered at the Moose Home to celebrate the 43rd anniversary of Victoria Chapter No. 25, Women of the Moose. Tiny plants in miniature pots acted as table favors.

Honor guests included charter members, Mrs. M. Morry and Mrs. R. Panting who cut a birthday cake, made by chaplain, Mrs. B. Stevens and decorated by Mrs. J. Moncur. Special guests also included Fred and Frank Moulton, charter members of Lodge No. 1390.

Guests were welcomed by senior regent, Mrs. M. Marsh. Greetings were given by governor W. Fraser, Lodge No. 1390; past governor J. Johnstone, Maple Leaf Region No. 53; T. McMahon, president of district No. 2, British Columbia Moose Association.

Twenty-five-year pin was presented to graduate regent, Mrs. M. Bentham. Others who will receive pins are Mrs. M. Nealon and Mrs. M. Stone.

After a buffet supper, arranged by junior regent, Mrs. G. Norris and her committee, a concert was presented by the Twilight Singers, led by Mrs. H. Hudson.

Birthday party ended with a dance and late refreshments. Graduate regent, Mrs. C. Lokken won a ceramic bowl and swans, made and donated by senior regent, Mrs. M. Marsh.

Also to mark the anniversary, chapter members from Nanaimo and Duncan attended the chapter's regular meeting, which was followed by a supper and social.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Consider Your Neighbors

Since spring is here and summer near, the following letter seems appropriate. It came recently from a reader and says:

Lowman

"Not long ago you wrote about noise and how it can exhaust one. My husband is doing that to me. Every summer he takes the radio out into the yard. He plays it so loudly that even the neighbors complain.

"This doesn't bother him, but I am so embarrassed. He is ruining my nerves and the nerves of our neighbors. Last summer was bedlam! I just hate to see summer come around! Please print my letter because my husband just might read your answer and wise up."

I think that a lot of people do not realize how much they impose on others. Of course some just do not care about anything but their own personal pleasure and comfort. However I think that the majority of folks are just thoughtless. They do not stop to think of anyone else.

Consider the person who takes three or four of the newest magazines with her when she sits under the dryer at a beauty salon. Think of the one who parks her car at such a slant that it occupies the space which could have been used by three cars, in a limited parking area. Consider the person who slams his hotel room door at 7:30 a.m., never thinking that someone might wish to sleep later than he.

The question of noise can be truly serious. It can make sleep impossible, lead to exhaustion and irritability, and therefore injure health and happiness. Studies have shown that we are much more damaged by noise than we realize.

Dogs that bark at all times of day and night, children's noises too early in the morning or at nap-time, radios and televisions blaring constantly are all real burdens for a neighbor if not for the culprit's family.

Every home must have some freedom. We cannot always be considerate of our neighbors. I am quite sure that at times we have been too noisy for the comfort of ours. But, it is the day by day habit, the continual noise that irritates and tires. Some people have actually had to give up homes they loved because of inconsiderate neighbors.

Many years ago my husband and I had a neighbor down the block who took his radio out in the yard every weekend during spring and summer. He turned it on so loudly that it almost bumped us out of our chairs in the living room. He listened to sports and variety programs while he did his gardening. It was unbearable weekend after weekend. Finally my husband treated him to a bit of mild sarcasm and he took the hint.

One afternoon my husband telephoned the radio addict and said, "Would you mind turning your radio up a bit? We are way over on the other side of our house and we missed that last joke."

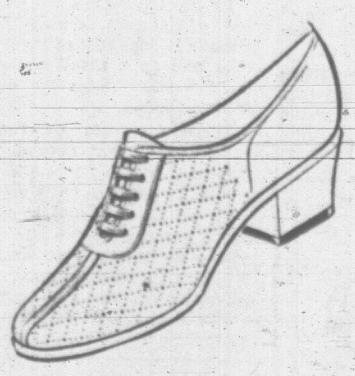

If we were all conscious of the damaging and irritating effect of constant noise we would be more considerate of those who live near us.

Everyone Loves A Ham—Easy On Budget

Boneless half hams are becoming more and more popular with smart and modern homemakers all across the country, for a great many good reasons. They are easy to handle, easy to prepare, easy to serve, and best of all, are economical too, because every penny you pay for them is for delicious, succulent meat you can eat. They have no bones and no skin to bring home and throw away.

These "modern hams" are fairly new on the market, because only in the past few years has there been a packaging that would preserve their freshness and flavour through the packer-to-retailer-to-homemaker channels. Hams had to be sold whole before, with bone and skin and all, because the skin was needed to protect the meat. Now packers can cut their hams into convenient halves and even quarters, eliminate all bone and skin and other non-edible parts, and vacuum package the meat in protective plastic film. The film holds in all the juices and cure that give ham its wonderful texture and taste. At the same time it keeps out all air which would dry and spoil the meat. Another advantage to the new vacuum packaging is that it stays clear so you can see right through to the quality of the meat you buy.

Hoops or No Hoops—Question in Texas

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—Oops! What happened to hoops in formal wear for the young belle?

The hooped underpinnings plus the traditional yardage of net or tulle billowing over them for a scarlet O'Hara look of another era still are going strong, says a clothing manufacturer from Pittsburg, Tex.

Hoops and the sweep of fabric over them are passe, says president of a Dallas firm.

The two manufacturers took divergent views on what was chic in the formal world of graduates and debutantes during the last day of spring shows by the Texas Fashion Creators' Association.

To bolster the argument for skirt volume, the manufacturer showed bouffant, floor-length formals in dotted tulle over pink, pale blue or maize; four-tiered lace panels shaping a debutante's dream in white or pink; and a long torso dress, with strapless top, whose skirt alone took 90 yards of tulle in the making.

The Dallas man, who had returned from a sales trip through the south the day his summer formals took to the runway, said he found that the "swing is away from the voluminous skirts and hoops." Instead, he said, he found today's miss in search of a mister choosing a formal gown with more sophisticated silhouette-skirt domed or bell-shaped from the waist. Curves intact, but not so accented. Tops? Barely showing the shoulders and covering the bodice.

The concluding day of the shows underscored several trends in the sports and leisure wear market which primarily belongs to this area, third largest market in retail dollar volume of the nation with sales of $168 million yearly.

—Sleeves? What are they for summer? With most manufacturers, they are erased and the cool, sleeveless look takes over.

—Collars? Haven't seen any of them except flat and unobtrusive numbers. Neat narrow scarves drape around the necklines instead. Or, the sailor's kerchief and the squared off middy collar take over.

—Hemline? Shorter in the warm weather fashions from the southwest than in clothes from the New York garment centre. Inches off the floor are anywhere from 17 to 19, and this measurement means a lot of kneecap on display.

—Color? Oh, why not settle for white for summer? Or white in combination with some of the splashiest of either horizontal or vertical stripes, or many-colored impressionistic prints to serve as toppers for white skirts?

—Fabric? If it requires any more maintenance than an occasional trip through the washing machine, ignore it. Summer fashions from Texas manufacturers exude the easy care of the drip-dry, the no-iron, the un-wrinkled, the easily packed.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Need You Ask?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 49 and have been going with a 51-year-old man for the past two years. He has been wonderful to me. He takes me to nice places and buys me lovely things. He asked to marry me, so I took him over to meet my son and daughter-in-law one evening. Well it seems my daughter-in-law became interested in him (she is 28) and I was told that she called him up and invited him over when her husband wasn't home. My son travels three days a week, so she has a clear field. I notice when my son is out of town, his wife is never home and I can't find my friend, either. He takes me out only when she can't go. They have three little children, Abby, and now I feel guilty for taking him over there. Although she ran after him, if my son finds out he will half-kill my friend. I need this man because we had plans of marriage. What should I do?

HAS TROUBLES

DEAR HAS: Drop your friend, and tell him why. He'll undoubtedly pass the word on to your daughter-in-law and it might scare some sense into them. A woman with a two-timing friend doesn't know what trouble is until she has a two-timing husband.

DEAR ABBY: This is being written by FOUR women who are all in agreement on a neighborhood problem. There is a young, widowed woman in our neighborhood who is very well proportioned. She strings a clothesline across her FRONT porch. It is very embarrassing to see her flimsy nightgowns and all the underthings that women wear flapping in the breeze. What do you suppose she is advertising?

FOUR DISGUSTED NEIGHBORS

DEAR DISGUSTED: She is "advertising" the fact that she has no clothes dryer. Neither has she a man to set up a clothesline in her back yard.

DEAR ABBY: I can understand how one of those store-bought "ACCEPT MY SYMPATHY" cards would be acknowledged with an equally impersonal printed one stating, "The family of —— wishes to thank you." But, Abby, when a person goes to the trouble to write an expression of sympathy in his own hand, don't you think he is deserving of a personal "thank you" note?

JUST WONDERING

DEAR JUST: Yes. But I am in the minority. I am amazed at the number of supposedly well-bred people who do not know that one original hand-written sentence is more meaningful (and in better taste) than the most elaborately printed or engraved message.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "RELIEVED": The letter to which you refer could not have concerned your husband. It did not come from any of the cities you mentioned.

CRACK IN CANYON STARTS TO WIDEN

HOPE (CP)—Mountaineer Laimon Kanders said Tuesday a fissure in a rock wall beside the Fraser Canyon near Hell's Gate appears to be moving slowly.

The fissure is between 400 and 500 feet long and the crack is between eight and 12 inches wide in places.

The crack was brought to light when Highways Minister Gaglardi told the legislature that engineers were seeking an alternate route for the highway. Engineers said the rock face could break away and destroy a new section of road.

ADULTERY WOULD BE NO CRIME

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Adultery and acts of sexual deviation performed by adults with mutual consent no longer would be considered crimes in New York State under recommendations made Monday by a state study commission. Such acts now are misdemeanors under present state law.

The commission chairman said the recommendations on adultery and sexual deviation were based on the principle that such conduct "falls within the area of private morals" and is not a matter for public concern.

FOR YEAR'S STUDY

Private Road Access Delayed

Legislation controlling public access to recreational areas through private roads has been shelved for at least a year.

The legislature's public access committee Wednesday night recommended further study of a draft act before action is taken.

But the committee suggested in the meantime:

UNIFORM SYSTEM

1. A uniform system of permits for public access on Vancouver Island roads through timber licence areas.

2. Formation of an arbitration procedure to decide disputes about access.

3. Joint development of picnic and camping grounds by the recreation department and industry.

This work was handed over to an inter-departmental committee of civil servants which drew up the draft legislation.

NEW REVIEW

The access committee report, submitted to the House by chairman William Speare (SC—Cariboo) asked for permission to review the situation again next year.

"It seems clear there is an increased awareness on the part of industry of the desirability of making provision for public access over privately-administered roads," Mr. Speare's report said.

"There seems every reason to believe that this co-operation on the part of industry will continue and expand."

WET SUMMER

Last year—with a wet summer—was not a fair guide to assessing the impact of proposed legislation, the committee said.

It recommended the legislation be delayed "at least one more year" for further study.

The committee said there is a multiplicity of private roads through forest areas on Vancouver Island with checkpoints and permit systems.

Ombudsman Measure Kept Alive

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada urgently needs a public official who could protect individual rights in the field of taxation, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson told the Commons Tuesday.

In reply, the government moved that the subject matter of Mr. Thompson's bill be sent to the committee on privileges and elecions for study.

This was an unusual step. Most privately-sponsored bills undergo an hour's debate and then lapse, usually until the next session of Parliament.

The parliamentary commissioner, Mr. Thompson proposed, would be similar to the ombudsman in the Scandinavian countries and New Zealand.

"The courts are no longer the bulwark of individual rights," said Mr. Thompson. "The protection of citizens is rapidly becoming inadequate."

Nasser to Free Reds

CAIRO (UPI) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser plans to end 12 years of martial law this week and release 100 imprisoned Communists, authoritative sources said today. The release of the Communists will help clear the atmosphere for Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit here this May.

VET HOSPITAL CHANGE HIT BY LEGION HERE

Britannia Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion has protested a move by the federal government to place veterans' hospitals under control and operation of community authorities.

In a telegram sent today to Victoria MPs George L. Chatterton and David Groos in Ottawa, the 2,800-member branch opposed "any change" in the administration of Victoria's Veterans' Hospital, and stated:

"Request full information of any proposal which would have the effect of curtailing present treatment facilities of veterans in all treatment classifications."

Sask. Medicare Cost Less Than Expected

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's compulsory universal medical care insurance plan cost less in its first full year of operation than a study committee estimated it would, the plan's annual report says.

The 1963 report of the Medical Care Insurance Commission, which administers the plan, was tabled in the legislature Tuesday.

"Because . . . it is the first full calendar year of operation . . . 1963 assumes importance as the baseline year for a program new to Saskatchewan and unique in North America," the report says.

A MEASURE

"Against it will be measured earlier estimates and later experience."

The Saskatchewan plan, which with a few exceptions covers all residents of the province, is the first state - run compulsory medical care insurance program in North America. It was implemented in July 1962, over opposition from much of the medical profession.

The annual report says the cost to the Medical Care Commission in 1963 for insured doctors' services totalled about $19,500,000. About 886,400 persons—95 per cent of the province's population — were covered.

AVERAGE COST

Thus the average cost of insured services per beneficiary was about $22.05.

The report notes that in 1961, the government - appointed Thompson advisory planning committee on medical care estimated that the cost per beneficiary of services under a medical care insurance scheme similar to that actually put into operation in 1962 would be between $22.39 and $23.06.

'Impertinent, Insolent . . . And Truculent'

A middle-aged man was acquitted in court Wednesday of drinking in a public place but only after the magistrate told him he was "impertinent, insolent and truculent."

Cecil J. Temple, 817 McClure, was charged after police found him sitting in a downtown cafe early on the morning of Feb. 11 with a glass containing an amber-colored liquid that a policeman said smelled like rye.

Magistrate William Ostler said the policeman's sense of smell was not enough to identify the liquid as liquor. He said the Crown could easily have arranged to have the liquid analyzed to discover exactly what it was.

The magistrate said the case was "extremely suspicious" against Temple but it hadn't been proved. Evidence showed Temple called the police "stupid" and refused to give his name and address.

It was obvious, said Magistrate Ostler, that Temple was smart, impertinent, insolent and truculent."

Plenty of Heroes In Canada's Story

By JACK HUTTON

Brook Watson, a 19-year-old orphan who lost a leg to a shark five years before, probably wasn't looking for glory in 1735 when he helped save a British fort on Canada's east coast.

The young man hobbled out of Fort Beausejour to round up cattle when his mates feared a French attack. And he had to swim part of the way to protect the food supply.

But don't look for Brook — later Sir Brook — in your history book. Legends still mention him on the east coast, but he earns at most two lines in most Canadian histories.

Dump Our Own

When it comes to recognizing our own heroes and heroines, we'll dump them every time in favor of such overblown fakes as Davey Crockett, Bat Masterson or Calamity Jane.

I'd like to hear who you would nominate for a list of colorful early Canadian. Here, to get you started, is my personal list of favorites. How many do you know?

(Disagree as violently as you like with any of my choices, but give me reasons for your disagreement. And try to back up any nominations that you would substitute.)

Puts TV to Shame

1—Pierre D'Iberville. Here's a fellow who would make any TV swashbuckler look tame. Born in 1661, he charted the St. Lawrence when he was 14, founded Louisiana and had enough adventures to fill 10 books.

I've never forgotten the account of D'Iberville taking on three English ships in Hudson's Bay in 1697. He sailed between two of the ships, sinking one and luring the second on to hidden rocks. The third fled.

2—Marie Madeleine Jarret de Vercheres was a 14-year-old French-Canadian who refused to panic when Indians attacked her local fort in 1692. She took charge of her two brothers, 12 and 10, an old servant, several women and two soldiers to hold off the attack.

A Real Scoundrel

3—Etienne Brule. Here was a chap who stirs up controversy after four centuries. He came to New France in 1608 with Champlain and was sent to learn Indian life a year or two later.

Brule, no doubt about it, was a scoundrel who sold himself to the English when they first captured Quebec City. And many disapproved of his adoption of Indian morals.

But he was our first "coureur de bois"—our first Canadian.

4 — Rene Robert Cavelier, Sieur de la Salle. Here's the man of whom I stand most in awe in early Canadian history. Compare yourself against La Salle, and you'll wonder how he found time to be scholar, explorer and dreamer.

Debunking Bunk

For years we preferred to not mention our own heroes or heroines. Lately, the sport has been to debunk our traditional history, pointing out small errors of fact in the original stories.

Prof. J. M. S. Careless, a University of Toronto historian, had this to say about the trend this week. "I would tell people not to worry about the debunking.

"It's just bunk itself, since we're only rediscovering that previous generations were as human as we are."

Likes Their Suits

At last, a young person who shares the feelings of most adult Canadians about the Beatles.

A correspondent from the Mennonite Collegiate Institute, Grenna, Man., who signed himself (???) "A Disgusted Teen-Ager," declared: "I have watched the Beatles perform on TV, and the only thing I could appreciate was the style of suits they wore.

"If they're so great why don't the fellows in the audience jump up and down, scream and tear at their hair the way the girls do?"

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second questior a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Bryan Whittaker, age 12, of Fredericton, N.B., Canada, for his question:

Where do bacteria live?

Countless hordes of bacteria swarm all over the human skin. Most of the miniature microbes do no harm at all, and unless someone told you, you would never guess they are there. A good soap-and-water scrubbing removes about 90 per cent of the bacteria from a pair of dirty hands.

A single bacterium can divide and become a pair of twins after an hour of good feeding. In another hour, each twin can become another pair of twins. At this rate, the original ancestor bacterium may become 18 million bacteria at the end of 24 hours. Suppose food runs out. Bacteria can form crusty spore cases around themselves and wait out hard times.

In the spore stage, they may be boiled or frozen for hours, or they may be doused with poisons, and chances are most of the bacteria spores will survive. When times change, they shed their hard crusts, thrive again and multiply. Such hardy creatures can survive almost anywhere on this planet. And that is just about where we find them—all over the world.

They come in endless varieties suited to life in different conditions. Some thrive in the air miles above the ground. Some thrive on the snows of lofty mountains in the frozen polar regions. There are bacteria in the deepest mines and millions of the midgets in every spadeful of soil. There are bacteria in the salty seas, in rivers and lakes, in every pond and creek.

Breaks Up Waste Material

Some bacteria thrive in steamy hot springs where the bubbling water boils day and night. There are swarms of bacteria in the human intestines. A few varieties can live without air, and others can manufacture their food from non-living minerals, such as sulphur. There are hordes of bacteria on the surface of every plant and animal.

There are bacteria in many places where no other living things can exist. It is hard to find a bacteria-free spot in the whole world, but there are a few such places. There are no living bacteria in the coals of a hot fire and none in the fiery throat of an erupting volcano. There are no bacteria inside the living cells of a healthy plant or animal.

Bacteria live on a wide assortment of foods. The most interesting feeders are the saprophyte bacteria that dine on decaying materials. These fellows are nature's garbage collectors. They break up the waste materials and the dead bodies of animals and plants and change them into simple chemicals. Without the saprophyte bacteria, the woods would be cluttered with ancient leaves and fallen trees. The wilds would be piled with fallen birds and the bodies of dead animals of all kinds.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Steve Allen will take over in September as new host of the CBS-TV panel show I've Got a Secret.

The network announced Allen has been signed for the spot vacated by Garry Moore. The show starts its 13th season next fall with Bill Cullen, Betsy Palmer, Henry Morgan and Bess Myerson as panel members.

Stephen

Moore left the show because the network dropped his hour-long weekly variety show due to poor ratings and he didn't feel working just a few hours a week was good for a serious broadcaster.

A spokesman said the new move with Allen as host will not affect his 90-minute nightly humor and interview program.

Allen fans will have noticed by now that the show is not seen on Channels 6 and 8. One main reason, it is said, is disappointment in the quality of the program for the past several months. Allen has even gone so far as to hire Canadian Darryl Duke to guide its future from here on.

If you look further into the recent cancellation you'll find it has more to do with Ottawa than with Allen. Finance Minister Walter Gordon has put a new interpretation on an import law upping the costs of bringing the syndicated package into Canada.

Representations are being made to Ottawa for some relief from the tax. According to Vancouver sources there is every hope for success in the battle with the revenue boys. If 6 and 8 win, Allen could return to the late night-time slot in the new fall season.

CHANNEL CHIT CHAT: Homicide and hilarity are to be the ingredients for "Jeremy Rabbitt, the Secret Avenger" on the Show of the Week, Sunday, April 5, Channel 5.

It's a farce comedy about a mild-mannered court stenographer who decides to put certain notorious mobsters out of circulation. The cast includes Frank Gorshin, Jim (Magoo) Backus, Brian Donlevy and Carolyn Jones.

CBC-TV announced the third season of its television golf series, CBC Championship Golf, will begin sometime next December, and originate from the Keltic Lodge at Ingonish, N.S.

Twelve of Canada's top pros will compete. Vancouver professional Stan Leonard has won the last two series held at Jasper Park Lodge in 1963, and the year before at the Pine Valley Golf and Country Club in Toronto.

ABC-TV has entered the "And James Was a Very Small Snail" segment of the Breaking Point series in the Cannes Film Festival next month. . . . Channel 5 sports director Rod Belcher has been voted the 1963 Outstanding Sportscaster Award in Washington State for the fourth consecutive year.

Battered Child Office Established

TORONTO (CP)—The office of Ontario's supervising coroner is considering setting up a central registry to help curb the phenomenon known with ugly preciseness as "the battered child syndrome".

"We are inquiring into the possibility of a central registry where all cases of unexplained death or injury to children can be recorded and filed for quick reference," Jack Mills, executive officer in the office of supervising coroner Dr. Harvey B. Cotnam, said Friday.

"We feel this could be an important factor in bringing to light cases of cruelty to children and preventing, in particular, cases of battered child syndrome."

Syndrome means all the symptoms of a disease, and the knowledge that such symptoms are common enough in the case of child-beating to merit classification is a recent development. The term has come into common usage only within the last five years.

Yet, Dr. Cotnam recently said for every child who dies of neglect, malnutrition or beating in Ontario, there are 100 others who are mistreated without it coming to the attention of the authorities.

The coroner's office cited the case of a woman, three of whose children died in different Ontario cities in unexplained circumstances—two of suffocation and the third of an overdose of sleeping pills.

CASE DISCOVERED

The office got onto the case because of the unusual surname involved. And, at the time of the discovery of the case, a fourth child of the woman was in a Northern Ontario hospital suffering from an overdose of headache tablets.

The mother has since spent time in a mental hospital and now is at home caring for the surviving child, under the supervision of the Children's Aid Society.

A psychiatrist and a radiologist in Toronto said in interviews Friday they both believe a tremendous number of children suffer broken bones and other permanent deformities through the brutality of parents. Many suffer to a lesser extent without even neighbors knowing about it, they said.

"There may be no clue in the outward behavior of a person to indicate whether he or she is capable of this sort of thing," said Dr. Edward J. Rosen, director of the child and adolescent unit of Toronto psychiatric hospital. And, Dr. John D. Munn, director of the Hospital for Sick Children's radiology department, said X-ray photographs are often the only evidence of injury.

Jessie Waters, a social worker with the Children's Aid Society here, said the surprising thing about the syndrome is that it took so long to come to light.

WEAK BONE BELIEF

At first, she explained, there was a tendency to assume that a child had particularly weak bones. "It took quite a long time to believe that children could be treated in this way deliberately."

Dr. Cotnam disclosed that cases of young children being battered to death in secret by a parent or custodian are being reported to his office at the rate of one a month. In January, there were three such cases in 10 days.

"Many parents involved in this problem are said to be psychopathic or sociopathic without any sense of good and evil, and alcoholism, sexual promiscuity, unstable marriages and minor and major criminal activities are common among them.

"They may be immature, impulsive, unstable emotionally, and have uncontrollable tempers . . ."

But the "battered child" is also found in so-called good homes among people with good education and background.

"In some cases, the extra child is not wanted in the family and causes considerable inconvenience with social activities or finances or perhaps a premature pregnancy hastened a marriage in the first place."

But one of the greatest problems about the battered child syndrome is the lack of knowledge about it. A central registry of victims is seen as a start toward preventing repetition of past beatings and a source of material to cast light on the problem.

PART OF BEAUTIFICATION PROJECT for the city's front entrance are the 1,000 evergreen and flowering shrubs and 80 trees being planted by Saanich parksmen at the intersection of Trans-Canada and Patricia Bay highways. Project is being financed by Capital Improvement District Commission and ties in with earlier Douglas Street beautification. Trees are poplar and tulip varieties.

Hopes Still Alive Here For Heavy Water Plant

Hopes that Western Canada may yet have a heavy water plant for the production of nuclear power were expressed here Wednesday night by an official of Western Deuterium Ltd., which is associated with Victoria Machinery Depot.

Trevor Davis, consultant chemical engineer with Western Deuterium, said the amount of heavy water (Deuterium Oxide) required within the next six years will be two or three times beyond the capacity of the plant to be constructed at Glace Bay, N.S.

"We still hope the federal government will see the wisdom of constructing its next heavy water plant in Western Canada, where fuel costs are a quarter less than in Nova Scotia," said Mr. Davis, interviewed at a meeting of the Association of Professional Engineers in the B.C. Hydro building.

STILL NEGOTIATING

Mr. Davis said the plant at Glace Bay is still in the stages of negotiation in many of its phases.

"The question is who will provide the $8,000,000 required to supply steam power at low cost. Presumably the Nova Scotia government will have to assume this liability."

Last year Western Deuterium, founded by VMD president Harold Husband, submitted a bid to Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., in Ottawa to build a $30,000,000 heavy water plant in Western Canada.

The company offered to supply 1,000 tons of Deuterium oxide for use in the generation of nuclear power in Canada and abroad. But the federal government awarded the contract to Deuterium of Canada Ltd., a subsidiary of the Deuterium Corporation of America.

LOSS OF WORK

Mr. Husband said this would mean loss of work in local shipyards, which would have built machinery and huge steel towers for the $30,000,000 heavy water plant.

"This would have meant two years work for 200 men at our plant and more jobs for other plants."

He said his firm had spent $75,000 on research work to equip it for the construction job.

Discussing the future of nuclear power, Mr. Davis said the time is approaching when it may be uneconomical to produce hydro power by damming rivers.

"While nuclear power is getting cheaper, labor rates for hydro development are on the increase. If this trend continues, such a development as the Peace River power project will become uneconomical.

"We are just getting under the wire as far as the Peace project is concerned and Premier Bennett was right in going ahead when he did."

Mr. Davis said the Peace project is expected to deliver power in Vancouver at the rate of four mills per kilowatt hour. Ultimately nuclear power may produce power at the rate of between 3 and 3.5 mills per kilowatt hour.

By 1985, he said, nuclear power generated in the United States may exceed the total amount of utility power now being generated in the U.S.

In his talk to the Association of Professional Engineers, Mr. Davis said heavy water in the United States now costs $28 a pound. In Canada it could be produced at $20 a pound.

"The Canadian program has been predicated on the use of natural uranium because uranium is plentiful in Canada. The United States has a major problem in that it does not have much uranium.

"It is calculated that, by 2010, there will not be enough uranium available from presently known sources."

Between 1970 and 2,000 it is expected that fushion plants will come into being which are capable of producing electric power by nuclear fushion.

"Deuterium will be the only possible fuel for these plants," he said. "When uranium and all other fuel resources have been exhausted, deuterium will be the ultimate fuel for power generation."

REZONING of the Lansdowne campus property will be discussed Friday night at a public meeting in Oak Bay Municipal Hall by Floyd Fairclough, member of the University Development Board. Mr. Fairclough will outline in detail the proposal made by the university board of governors to Oak Bay council to have the campus rezoned for high-rise apartments, residences and a church site. The meeting sponsored by the Oak Bay Board of Trade will begin at 8 p.m.

Mafia Likely In Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—Organized crime is active in a wide field in Ontario, and United States criminal syndicates have a "probable interest" in its operations, the Ontario police commission said in a special report tabled in the legislature today.

The commission found there is not enough evidence to indicate that crime has come under syndicate or monopoly control but says members of the Mafia or "Cosa Nostra" have tried unsuccessfully to gain control of certain criminal activities in the province.

RCAF Buys Planes

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF will purchase 16 American-made C-130 E Hercules aircraft, an advanced version of the long-range transport planes already in service here, the defence department said today.

Murphy Oil Shows Profits Increase

CALGARY (CP) — Murphy Oil Co. Ltd. of Calgary has announced a net income last year of $544,044, or 20 cents a share, more than twice the profit on the previous year's operation. Last year's profit was equal to 8.5 cents a share.

By FRANK RUTTER

The B.C. government was accused Wednesday night of setting up a new payoff to the Wenner-Gren interests.

New Democratic Party MLAs charged the government is playing Santa Claus and will fur-line the pockets of a Wenner-Gren company.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner countered by charging the NDP with a pathological hatred for a man even though he is dead—Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren, originator of the Peace River power plan.

Bitter words blew about the legislature during debate on a bill allowing the former owners of the Peace River power plans and surveys to appeal compensation they were paid for a 1961 government takeover.

EQUAL RIGHT

The Liberals, who supported the bill, said it gave the government an equal right of appeal against what has already been paid to Peace River Power Development Co.—a total of $8,020,328.

Mr. Bonner said that without the bill Peace River Power Development Co. would be able to launch an action against the government for wrongful seizure of the plans and surveys.

The company already has a case before the courts. The bill would limit court action to the actual amount of compensation by the bill.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said it was a special privilege bill.

AN INVITATION

Arthur Turner (NDP—Vancouver East) termed it "an invitation to sue" for Peace River Power.

He said the company had already done too well out of the government.

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said the Wenner-Gren interests agreed in 1956 to build a railway and power project and to plow profits into philanthropic enterprises.

If it came to a court case, he said, the company would be found guilty of breaking its agreements. He charged the government had defrauded the public by giving concessions to the company.

"I think this just another Santa Claus deal to help out some friends of the govern-ment," said Leo Nimsick (NDP—Cranbrook).

The NDP said that if Wenner-Gren interests want to sue the government they can get a fiat—permission from the attorney-general—the same as anyone else.

John Squire (NDP—Alberni) predicted British Columbians will pay for generations to come for the Wenner-Gren deal.

"The question is if the company has already got its pockets lined, is it going to get its pockets lined with fur this time?" he asked.

Mr. Bonner angrily hit back at the Opposition attacks.

"The Opposition has been going down all this season and tonight they are just about ready to be swept out of the door," he said.

EXPRESSING SCORN

"I'm simply expressing my scorn for the attorney-general," Mr. Strachan snorted.

Mr. Bonner said the bill simply re-enacts the principle of the 1961 takeover which was unanimously approved by the legislature.

The bill won approval in principle by a vote of 33 to 13.

It was scheduled to come up for detailed study, clause by clause, today.

AUSSIE NAVY HAS TROUBLE WITH BEARINGS

SYDNEY (Reuters) — An error in instructions following a naval collision in which 82 men died last month told rescue helicopters to rendezvous with survivors somewhere in the mountains of eastern Australia, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The admission was made at a royal commission inquiry into the Feb. 10 collision between the Australian destroyer Voyager and the aircraft carrier Melbourne off the New South Wales coast.

Rear Admiral O. H. Becker, flag officer commanding the Australian fleet, told the government inquiry a message relayed to rescue helicopters at Nowra in New South Wales contained a 180-degree error.

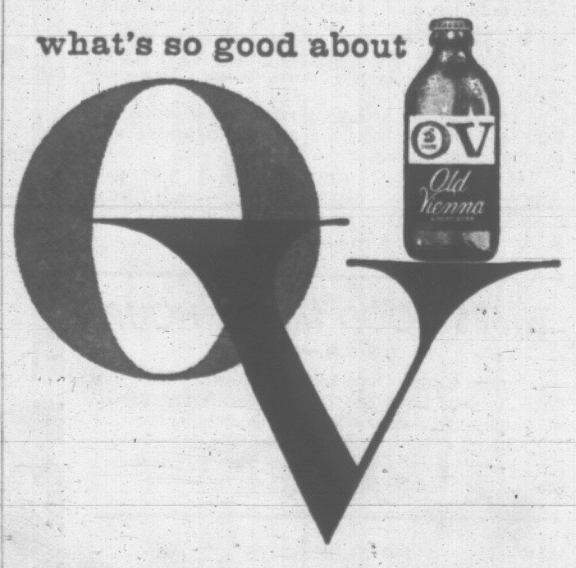

Agreement Signed To Develop Claims

VANCOUEVR (CP)—Buttle Lake Ltd. and Southwest Potash Corporation have signed an agreement for exploration and development of 69 molybdenum claims near New Hazelton, 120 miles northeast of Prince Rupert.

Under the agreement, Southwest will make an option payment this year of $7,500 and spend a minimum of $20,000 on exploration. Southwest must also drill a minimum of 2,000 feet in 1965 to keep the agreement in force.

'Mystic' Artist Slaves Away In Cold, Dark Basement Studio

By MARGE GILROY

"Mystic" describes the work of Canadian artist Pat Martin Bates. It also describes the artist.

Who but a mystic would keep on working in a cold, dark basement, day after day, to create a metal print collage that may never be sold?

Adding to the mystery Pat says she doesn't even enjoy doing it.

"I must be cuckoo—I keep asking myself what am I doing here?"

It is as though she were possessed with a demon or a fever and the only way to get rid of it is to sweat it out.

The result has been rewarding.

GRAND AWARD

Recently five of Pat's prints were among the Canadian selection which won the "grand award of honor" at the Primera Bienal De Grabado in Chile.

The selection is now on view at an exhibition in Lima, Peru, under the auspices of the Canadian Embassy.

Pat is a newcomer to Victoria, but her work is well known in many other parts of Canada, Europe and Washington. She is an exhibitor with the 25th national exhibition of printmakers at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington and is presently working towards a one-man show to take place in Montreal next month.

PENCIL IN HAND

Pat was born in St. John, N.B., with a pencil in her hand. At 12 she was studing art under Jessie Hart at Mount Allison University.

"I thought at the time I had won something," said Pat. Actually her teachers recognized her talent and arranged the whole thing.

Later she studied at the Modern Arts and Crafts in Moncton and in 1957 she graduated from the Royal Academie de Beaux Art in Belgium. She was the first Canadian to be a member of the Academie Institute.

Arthur Lismer and other artists Canada now claims as Canadian studied there, but the Belgians knew them only as Englishmen. They had yet to become Canadians.

LIFE-BLOOD

The wife of Lt. C. A. Al Bates, Queen's Own Rifles, Pat has lived in the Maritimes, Ottawa, Alberta and now at 959 Clent Street.

"Canada is my life-blood," said Pat who loved studying in Europe but prefers to paint far from the madding crowd.

On the prairies Pat was fascinated by the lack of color. This is reflected in her prints in which only the heavily embossed surface creates a play of lights and the brillant hues of her other prints are missing.

Pat believes strongly in an academic training for an artist. She said "I still draw a lot just to keep my hand in."

"I can always sell my drawings and paintings, but that doesn't mean I stop there, I have to keep on growing," said Pat.

Apartments, Marina Revived at West Bay

A multi-million dollar plan for developing four high-rise apartment buildings and a marina at West Bay is being revived by the developers, it appeared today.

Deposits toward purchase of two city lots, at Maitland and Esquimalt, will be sent in before next week's council meeting, City Hall was informed.

The plan was announced last year and options were taken on several blocks of private land overlooking West Bay—barely inside the city at the Esquimalt municipality border. But some of the options lapsed and it was feared that the project would be stalled.

Sawmill Sale Runs Into Snag

VANCOUVER (CP)—A $4,000,000 deal to sell a Canadian sawmill to Russia has run into another delay and may fall through says Norman Terry, president of Canadian Sumner Iron Works, which would have supplied about $2,000,000 worth of the order.

He says that Montreal export sales agents have asked his company what effect it would have on the deal to delay it another six months. Negotiations already have been under way for about a year.

Heathman in 'Peg 'Where Else to Go?'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Police Chief Robert Taft Wednesday night said that as far as his department is concerned the case of Charles Heathman is closed.

Heathman, twice tried for the 1960 murder of a Vernon, B.C., newsboy, is living in a Winnipeg rooming house under an assumed name.

Chief Taft said, "It would not be proper for a police force to put any private citizen under surveillance.

"As far as we're concerned he's just another citizen."

Heathman's married sister in Winnipeg said she has not seen him or heard from him since his reported arrival in the city last week.

In a television interview here, Heathman was asked why he came to Winnipeg. He replied: "I was born and raised in Winnipeg. Where else was I going to go? I know people here."

He said the terms of his probation required him to stay in British Columbia.

NO JURISDICTION

But he said authorities there have no jurisdiction outside the province if he wished to leave.

Asked if he thought he could get a job in Winnipeg, he said, "I don't think I can."

He suggested his name and person were too well known for him to find employment.

Asked what the future holds, Heathman replied:

"I don't know, I don't know."

ONE OF THE GREATS

Fabled Kirsten Voice Thrills

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Eyes and ears of a big Royal Theatre audience were taken by storm Wednesday night by the fabled voice and dazzling person of one of the great artists of modern operatic show business.

GRAND DIVA

From the moment of her superb entrance it was clear that one was in the presence of a diva of the grand manner. Her pose as she stood upon the stage and the movements of her white-gloved arms, the seconds of silent concentration between numbers, her signals to her pianist, all had a touch of flamboyance.

But all this is superficial, in comparison to the thrill of her voice; a rare virtuoso instrument, strong, rich, marvellously flexible.

Capable of considerable coloratura, Miss Kirsten can also produce beautiful mezzo coloration and the changes from one register to another are accomplished with silken smoothness.

In every technical aspect—attack, mezzo voce, portamento—there is complete mastery that results in all problems being handled with graceful ease.

ART SONGS

First half of her program was devoted to an assortment of art songs, early arias of Handel and Pergolesi, and American ballads.

Some of these, such as the Landon Ronald Southern Song, I felt had little to recommend them, apart from the fact that they showed off Miss Kirsten's technique.

But her ability to characterize was effectively revealed in the delicate, romantic charm of Rimsky-Korsakoff's The Nightingale and the Rose.

In singing five arias and excerpts from opera, one after the other, she proved not only the unique quality of her voice. It is, to a much greater extent, her perfect understanding of her instrument and control of it that permits such a tour de force.

CONTEXT CAUGHT

The arias—from Manon Lescaut, L. Boheme, Tosca, Madama Butterfly and Louise—were each captured in context so surely that Manon the voluptuary, Mimi, the simple young girl and naive, gentle Butterfly, achieved full dimension.

Speaking to her audience for the first time in commenting on her arias, Miss Kirsten broke through the image of remote enchantress to establish a warm, friendly personality.

At the end of the program she was recalled for five encores.

Her accompanist, Marcel Frank, not only supported her with a fine artistry, but provided a group of solos, which included Debussy and a composition of his own, a richly pianistic number which emphasized the impression of technical brilliance and authority.

Welfare 'Dole' Rapped

VANCOUVER (CP) — Government and private agencies should concentrate on getting welfare cases rehabilitated instead of merely doling out regular cheques to them, a special Community Chest report said Wednesday.

The recommendation was made in the report of a priorities committee which spent more than a year inquiring into all health, welfare and recreation services in the Greater Vancouver area.

It was charged with the job of determining the order of importance of the various services to the community and whether present services are adequate.

It delved into 79 services being provided by chest agencies, other voluntary organizations and by various government departments. Top priority was given sanitation services, inpatient medical care and communicable disease control but the report said they are "reasonably developed."

The field of social assistance was rated next in importance and the report found the quality of service inadequate.

The committee also called for a broad study of hospital accommodation to determine whether the best use is being made of available beds and said that Woodlands school for retarded children is badly overcrowded and some of the staff unqualified.

Tenders will be received by the Secretary, Mr. J. L. Martin, 10375 Rest Haven Drive, for the construction of an addition to Club premises, Br. 37, Royal Canadian Legion. Plans and specifications may be obtained upon presentation of a $25.00 cheque from J. Smith, Beacon Hardware. Phone 475-2712. Closing date, Sat., April 4, 1964. Lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

HITCHHIKER SOUGHT IN MURDER

KITCHENER (CP) — Police were searching today for a hitchhiker they believe may have robbed and killed an Anglican clergyman turned insurance salesman.

Joseph A. Armstrong, 45, of Waterloo was found shot to death Wednesday in his car parked on a highway on the outskirts of this city.

Inspector Wilfred Henrich, head of the detective division, said there were at least two bullet wounds in Mr. Armstrong's neck. No gun was found.

Mr. Armstrong, father of five children, became an insurance salesman 18 months ago because, he said, he could not afford to keep his family on a clergyman's salary.

Murder Try Charged In 'Triangle'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Leonard Nadu, 42, was charged with attempted murder Wednesday in a case police described as a love triangle shooting.

Nadu is accused of having twice shot David Van Duzen Tuesday night in a West End apartment occupied by Van Duzen and a woman who gave her name as Frances Van Duzen.

Van Duzen is in fair condition in hospital with bullet wounds in the abdomen and head. Doctors said he has lost the sight of one eye but the sight of the other may be saved.

Police said the shooting occurred after a man appeared at the Van Duzen apartment and threatened to shoot the woman.

Police later picked up a suspect who, they said, had tried to take his own life by putting the gun to his temple and pulling the trigger.

In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

★ ★ ★

Today we will leave the British Columbia Legislative Assembly to its flurry of late-session housecleaning while we investigate a proposal made Wednesday by NDP John Squire. The member for Alberni believes our provincial parliament should broadcast and televise its sittings.

This suggestion opens up some interesting vistas, one of which we will now explore.

SCENE: A suburban living room, half an hour before dinner. The family—Mummy, Daddy, Dick and Jane—are disposed in chairs and on rug. Mummy wears a church-bazaar apron, Daddy reads The Times with a dry martini at his elbow. In a corner squats a television set with 23-inch screen. It is tuned to the new show, "In My House."

MUSIC: A clever arrangement borrowed from "The Smile You Gave to Me," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and "Happy Talk."

Smiling Face

ON SCREEN: The Hon. William Andrew Cecil Bennett, full-face, smiling.

VOICE: Your premier . . . and mine.

JANE: He looks like Daddy.

DADDY: Snorts, inhales rest of martini at a gulp.

MUMMY (gazing at screen): That's Mr. Bennett, dear. In a sort of way, he's everybody's daddy.

DADDY: Thank God! If I had my way . . .

MUMMY: Please, not in front of the children. I think we should all try to be . . . well . . . a little more parliamentary.

DICK: Hey! Golly! That guy, the one flapping his arms, he just called those other guys in the far corner little runts.

Not 'Guys, Dear'

MUMMY: Not 'guys,' dear. Men. That is Mr. Perrault, starting to get up.

DICK: Those other guys . . . I mean men . . . the ones making the funny noises . . . they're telling him to sit down and he's yelling back at them, and Mr. Bennett's shaking both arms now . . . Oh, boy

MUMMY (Pink in the face): Don't call me Toots! And if you'd put down that old paper . . .

JANE: Mummy, you get after us when we tell each other to shut up. That man said it two times, real loud.

MUMMY: This is different. This is parliament. Janey, why don't you get your coloring book?

DICK: Heck, she wants to watch parliament. It's fun: Look . . . look . . .

Restoring Order

JANE: See . . . see . . .

MUMMY: The trouble with some people, they just don't want to broaden their horizons. They don't care how our province is governed: Watch this, children. The man in the black hat banging with the gavel is the Speaker. He's restoring order. Everything will be nice now.

On SCREEN: An honourable member rises. He begins to speak. He keeps on speaking.

Ruby's Kin Name Texan To Ousted Belli's Job

BELLI
. . . out of work

HOUSTON (AP)—Jack Ruby's brothers and sisters employed Percy Foreman of Houston Thursday as chief defence counsel for the slayer of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused presidential assassin, Foreman announced.

Foreman is one of the top Texas lawyers specializing in criminal cases.

The appointment followed the Wednesday night dismissal of Melvin Belli. Ruby at that time expressed dissatisfaction with Belli's services and shock over the lawyer's bitter tirade Saturday against Dallas.

Soon after the jury sentenced Ruby to death for the slaying of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy, Belli declared the verdict a "Kangaroo railroad" by a jury that was "shoved down our throats."

Over television networks, he called Dallas a "festering sore" District Attorney Henry Wade a "hog caller," and said "now we see the shame of Dallas in all its glory."

His remarks have brought widespread criticism from state officials. The president of the American Bar Association called them "a discredit to him and to his profession."

DISREGARDS CODE

Walter C. Craig of Phoenix, Ariz., the bar association head, said Wednesday in San Francisco Belli's "unrestrained comments" were a "flagrant disregard of the code of professional ethics and his oath as an attorney." He said many unethical conduct complaints about Belli's remarks have been received.

Eva Grant, sister of Ruby, told the Dallas Morning News she sent a letter airmail Wed-

U.S. Arms Proposal 'Trick by Pentagon'

GENEVA (AP)—The United States proposed today that it and the Soviet Union each destroy 480 strategic bombers over a two-year period. The Russians immediately rejected the proposal as a Pentagon trick.

The proposal for destruction of American B-47 and Russian TU-16 Badget bombers was made before the 17-nation disarmament conference by U.S. negotiator Adrian S. Fisher.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin replied that the proposal was an attempt to dress up as disarmament a "routine military decision taken inside the Pentagon to scrap obsolete planes and replace them with A-11s and other new multi-purpose planes being ordered and tested by the defence department."

The Russian repeated his demand, made Jan. 29, for destruction of all bomber planes, both old and new.

Fisher suggested that the two big powers should each destroy 20 planes a month during a two-year period. In addition, he said, the United States is prepared to destroy an additional agreed number of planes in its inactive reserve fleet.

Fisher stressed that the destruction of planes would have to be carried out under strict observation by the other nation.

SIU Chief Blasts Ouster of Banks

CYPRUS FIGHTING RENEWED

NICOSIA (AP)—Heavy fighting with bazookas and machine-guns broke out at a village 28 miles west of Nicosia today in the first clash between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots in a week.

UN officials managed to arrange a temporary cease-fire as Turkey dispatched a new warning that violence must be stopped on Cyprus.

One Turk was reported killed in the fighting at Ghaziveran which began shortly after dawn and lasted about five hours.

The Ankara government sent messages to UN Secretary-General U Thant, President Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus and to the commander of the peace force on Cyprus, calling attention to the outbreak of fighting at Ghaziveran.

SAME LINE

The contents of the note were not immediately disclosed here but a government spokesman said the warning took "the same line" as Turkey's warning of last weekend, that it would intervene if killings of Turkish-Cypriots were not stopped.

It was the first fighting since Canadian troops arrived to join in the UN peace foce. With the UN force not yet fully constituted, peacekeeping duties remain in the hands of British troops.

EXTENDED

The temporary cease-fire became effective at 11 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) to permit the peace talks to get under way. It later was extended.

The Greek-Cypriot police and auxiliary forces launched an attack in the early morning hours after 500 Turks in a village refused to obey an ultimatum to lift the roadblocks around Ghaziveran.

A Greek-Cypriot government spokesman also accused the Turks of cutting communications between Nicosia and the coastal areas.

The Turkish-Cypriots said the attack was premeditated and that the village had been surrounded by Greek-Cypriots for days.

PROBE VIOLENCE

Greek - Cypriot Interior Minister Polycarpos Georgadjis and several Turkish-Cypriot leaders went to Ghaziveran to investigate the new violence.

In Ankara, Turkish information minister Ali Ihsan Gogus denied reports that Turkey was planning reprisals against the Greek community in Turkey if Greece failed to change its Cyprus policy.

Gogus described as "exaggerated" Turkish press reports to the effect that the Ankara government's notice it was abrogating the 1930 Turkish-Greek treaty of settlement, commerce and navigation was meant as a warning to Greece not to continue support for President Makarios of Cyprus.

TURKS PART?

Gogus also said it was "absolutely natural" that the Turkish battalion stationed on Cyprus under the island's independence treaty should form part of the United Nations peace force there.

In Nicosia the build-up of the UN peace force continued with the arrival Wednesday of additional Canadians troops, bringing the Canadian contingent on the island to 446.

The aircraft carrier Bonaventure slipped out of Halifax Harbor Wednesday night, the bulk of her obscured by wet, driving snow.

ANOTHER CLAIM that Hitler aide Martin Bormann is still alive popped up in Brazil today. A man claiming to be his brother told police Bormann is living in Matto Grosso State. Bormann disappeared in 1945 and was sentenced to death in absentia by the Nurenberg war crimes tribunal.

Surveyors Rescued In Peru

LIMA (AP) — Rescued by jungle - trained rangers, a haggard party of road engineers was escorted out of danger today after fighting off a week-long attack by Indians in Peru's wild Amazon River basin. One engineer had been killed and two injured.

The 50 - man rescue detachment reached the besieged men Wednesday. The Indians slipped silently back into the rain forests without a fight.

The rangers planned to lead the survivors back to the Yavari River, where a gunboat dispatched from Iquitos, 830 miles northeast of Lima, awaited them. The trip back to civilization was expected to take two or three days.

The road party was made up of 30 engineers and surveyors and eight armed guards. The men held out on a knoll.

The party suffered its casualties when it stumbled on a village of hostile Indians eight days ago, then conducted a running fight to the knoll.

Before the relief column hacked its way through the jungle to the party Wednesday, the aviation ministry here received a radio message that "the Indians are closing in on us."

Charles Departs

MEXICO CITY (AP)—President de Gaulle of France wound up a four-day visit to Mexico today and departed for the French island of Guadeloupe. He will spend the night there before touring French Caribbean possessions.

Appeal to Court Expected Next

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union of North America, arrived in Montreal today following the dismissal of Hal Banks and fired off an angry telegram to the Maritime Board of Trustees.

The trustees, appointed by the federal government, ousted Banks Wednesday as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) and replaced him with Charles Turner, 40, a trustee employee, for the last two months and formerly an officer of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC).

Hall said he would visit the SIU headquarters later today and invited the trustees to meet him there. The telegram was sent from Hal Banks' swank residence in suburban Pointe Claire.

The telegram charged the removal of Banks was arbitrary and denied him the right to a fair hearing "in accordance with the principles of fundamental justice.

The trustees replied in a telegram:

"We consider the matters mentioned by you are not appropriate for discussion between you and us but if you wish to say anything further to us you may do so at our office tomorrow morning.

Hall objected to the naming of Turner as Banks' replacement on the grounds he had never been a member of the SIU. He charged the trustees had confiscated hundreds of thousands of dollars of property and asset of the international union.

NOW BEFORE COURTS

The telegram claimed police forces were used unnecessarily and came at a time when the constitutionality of the federal act setting up the trustees was before the courts. This action was taken by SIU treasurer Don Swaite and is before the Quebec courts.

The Hall intervention follows objections to Banks' firing voiced in New York by Peter McGavin, secretary - treasurer of the AFL - CIO Maritime Trades Department.

The reaction of Hall, considered a power in the AFL-CIO, appeared to contradict reports that Banks had been fired as the result of an agreement among the Canadian and U.S. governments and the SIU of North America.

Meanwhile, Banks remained unavailable for comment.

Banks was reported in conference with his legal advisers. It is understood he plans to fight his ouster in the courts.

NEGOTIATE CONTRACTS

The dismissal came at a key time on the eve of negotiation of 42 contracts between the SIU and shipping companies. Some shipping firms reported they believed there would be no trouble manning their Great Lakes ves-

6 Charged In Hospital Death

TORONTO (CP) — Five doctors and the administrator of Toronto East General Hospital were charged today with a total of 40 counts under the Coroner's Act and Vital Statistics Act in connection with the last Nov 4 death of 32-year-old Patricia Morgan after surgery at the hospital.

All six men were charged with six counts each under the Coroner's Act. In addition, Dr. Kenneth Brown, who began the operation on Miss Morgan but did not finish it, was charged with four counts under the Vital Statistics Act.

A coroner's jury found that a surgical clamp left in Miss Morgan's abdomen during an operation for suspected cancer last Oct. 18 was the cause of her death 18 days later.

OTHERS CHARGED

The others charged were Dr. Burns Plewes, chief surgeon at the hospital, administrator Eric Willcocks, and three doctors involved in a pathological examination of Miss Morgan's body — S. F. Penny, Allan Noble and Alexander Kennedy.

Metropolitan Toronto homicide detectives laid the charges in suburban Scarborough magistrate's court on the orders of John Hollihan, special counsel for the attorney-general's department.

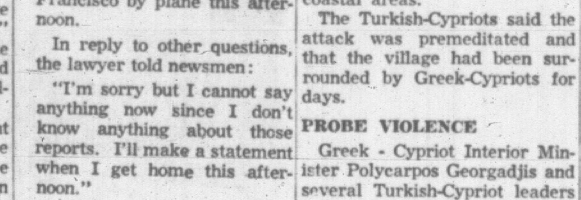

PROCEDURE BREACHES

Crown officials said the six charges against all six cover different breaches of procedure outlined in the Coroner's Act relating to the duties of persons to notify a coroner of deaths in certain circumstances.

The other charges against Dr. Brown allege that he falsified Miss Morgan's death certificate.

Hoffa Files Appeal

THE TREES IN THE FOREST

Perpetual Forest Yield Goal of Varied Licences

(Times reported Peter Loudon, in a six-part series, takes a look at British Columbia's sustained yield forestry policy; how it has worked since it began 17 years ago, and what future prospects appear to be.)

By PETE LOUDON

Do British Columbia's sustained yield logging laws really ensure a perpetual supply of timber for future generations?

Or do they merely create a system where monopolies gained perpetual control of our forest wealth?

Loudon

Almost 15 years after these laws were passed, the question is still debated. But before we can form opinions we must understand something about the methods adopted.

Four major steps have been taken to ensure that we won't deplete our forests before they can be replaced.

First came the creation of the public working circle or public sustained yield unit. Eighty such areas were set up, most of them surrounding communities dependent on logging and sawmill operations.

How Much

Within these areas, which had been inventoried by the forest service, the government decreed how much timber could be removed each year on a perpetual basis. This became the allowable cut.

Existing operators were told they might bid for timber sales. They were given quotas equal to the average volume they had cut in previous years. In some areas they had been cutting too much however and here they sometimes found their allowable consumption reduced greatly.

Their answer was to seek additional timber from private timber holdings which means some of them are still over-cutting.

Other problems arose, not all of them solved yet. The laws governing bidding were criticized. There were criticisms that new firms couldn't break into the timber business because they couldn't obtain quotas.

Quotas Traffic

Traffic in quotas became another source of headaches, as operators gobbled each other up and some speculators made fast profits. But generally, the government had accomplished its first aim with the SYUs — it had limited the cut to balance the new growth.

Within the SYUs the forest service assumed responsibility for fire control, scientific replanting and the war against insects and decay.

★ ★ ★

The second form of temporary tenure to be established was the forest management licence area, now called the tree farm licence area.

This was partly a move to bring back under government control the vast timberlands which over the years had passed into the hands of half a dozen large companies with sawmills

FORMER RACE HORSES WORK SADDLE RING

Happy Bunch of 'Also Rans' Living It Up at Carley's

By MARGE GILROY

A race horse can be a loser on the track and still be a favorite in the ring.

At Victoria Riding Academy there are many such horses as well as a fair number of retired winners.

Terry Tet, age 35, was one of the winners. For many years he was a consistent winner at the old Willows Race Track and won 33 races in all in B.C. At 14 he retired to the saddle.

Another retired winner is nine-year-old Stone-Love who raced up until last year. This year she turned the racing over to her foal Our Steve who is presently in training at Sandown.

PRICES REASONABLE

Thoroughbreds who have passed their peak at the races can usually be bought at a reasonable price and trained as hacks or jumping horses.

Six-year-old Beauvale was raised in California, won four races in Vancouver, then retired to the ring. He is now a trained jump and riding horse who makes a fine show in the hack classes.

Vino Jose also retired in good grace. For 12 years he was a top racer in California, and now takes life easy at the riding academy.

Ida's Boy was raised in Victoria, raced for two years, won one race and retired.

Glen-to-Glen is a stately chestnut who raced in Vancouver but never made the finishing line. Owner Pat Newman said "he always ran backwards."

GOING AHEAD

Now he moves forward with great strides as he approaches the jumping hurdles.

Worthy Miss was raised and raced in Vancouver but didn't live up to her name. She was never a winner.

Five-year-old Settle raced in California and B.C. and was known as a winner in his racing days. Last fall he was bought by Joe Weicker and trained to the saddle.

From Ireland came The Dustman. He was imported three years ago, was a good racer and now a good saddle horse.

Rogan, Temulac Bay, Burnaby Lad and Cinnamox are just a few more of the racers who have given up the hectic pace of the track for life at a riding stable.

OLD HAND

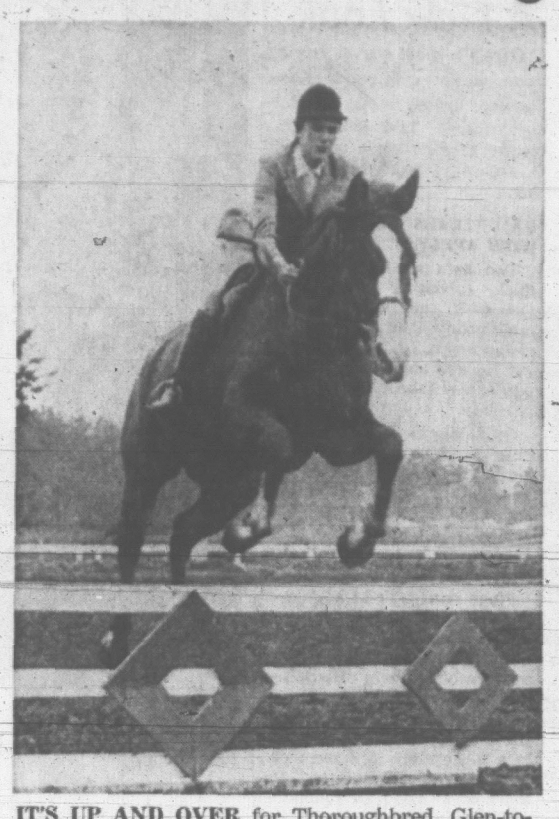

Mr. Carley, manager at the academy, is an old-hand at retraining horses for the saddle after they have been trained for the track.

"It means retraining the horses all over again as the race horse knows only one thing—the gallop" said Mr. Carley.

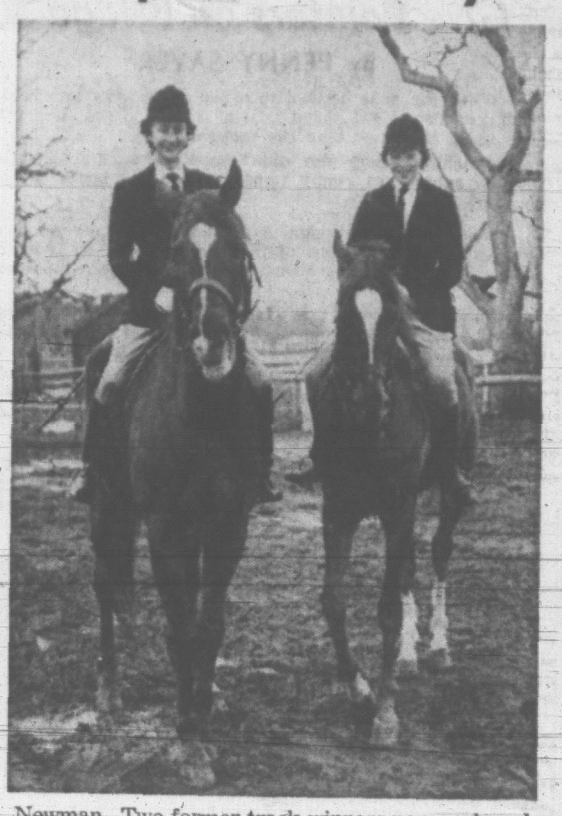

Rider Pat Newman said "It is no easy job to retrain a Thoroughbred, they are so high spirited and used to much different treatment."

Friday, March 27, the retired race horses at the academy will be cantering and jumping alongside other saddle horses at an Easter Gymkhana.

Weather permitting there will be three events in the morning and eight in the afternoon with equitation and child's hunter class featured in the two special children's events.

Aldermen today met with Police Chief J. F. Gregory behind closed doors to discuss an appeal by an ex-convict for a taxi driver's permit.

She will be carrying 8,000,000 board feet of lumber for Japan which she left here in early January when repairs to her bottom plates were cancelled due to the shipyards' strike.

Repairs were completed in February in Seattle by Todd Shipyards. Cost was estimated at $500,000.

Her speech was titled "Don't Just Sit There."

Runner-up was Evan Mitchell of Woodward's Speecheraft course.

They will advance to city speak-offs April 3 at St. John's Ambulance Auditorium.

Golden Gavel competitions are sponsored by area council of Toastmasters International and is open to all residents of lower Vancouver Island who have less than 15 months' public speaking experience.

Service Clubs, NES Arrange 'Career' Nights

What job to look for, how to find it and how to progress in a chosen field?

An estimated 900 students due to graduate from high school will get answers to these questions next month as annual career counselling nights are held again.

The question-and-answer nights will be April 28, 29 and 30 under auspices of the National Employment Service, Victoria office, and two city service clubs.

Rotary and Kiwanis will provide counsellors and all district high schools now are participating, NES officers advise.

NES officers here extend the same counselling to youngsters who leave school to seek work, before attaining high school graduation. In the past year 810 boys and 306 girls were counselled, the emphasis being on persuasion to further school training.

At the same time interviews were held with 157 handicapped persons in an effort to fit their capabilities into the community's labor force.

Lumber Firm Hopes to Keep Mill Running

City Operation Depends on Logs

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. has switched plans and now hopes to keep its recently-purchased Moore-Whittington sawmill in operation—if it can find an assured supply of logs and overcome the smoke problem.

"We are endeavoring to continue to operate it now but we have two problems to overcome—finding a firm supply of logs and also strict enforcement of the city's smoke bylaw," Mr. Barnes said.

REASONS FOR SALE

Mr. Williston said both these problems were the reason the 40-year-old Moore-Whittington operation was sold to BCFP.

"If it has to be rebuilt because of the smoke problem and so on, then the business will disappear," he told John Squire (NDP—Alberni) who asked what would happen to the jobs provided by the plant.

City Manager Dennis Young said he understood there was a possibility the sawmill could be kept going—if logs were found—without using the burner.

"Certainly, we would be loathe to take any action through our smoke bylaw which is going to lose the city a 125-man payroll," he said.

FORESEE SOLUTION

"We are confident that a solution to the problem can be reached without such drastic steps as closing down the plant."

Mr. Barnes said that if a supply of logs is found, "I think we would just go ahead and continue operating, trying of course to co-operate with the city's anti-smoke position as best we can and see what happens."

He said he did not think the company would approach the city in advance to ask for relaxation of the smoke bylaw regulations.

The sawmill's log supply was cut off when the CPR decided to develop its own timber operations in the E & N Railway land holdings instead of selling logging rights.

Concert, Display By Artillerymen Set for Saturday

Sixty-five militiamen of Five Independent Medium Battery, RCA, will take part in a national survival exercise and band concert Saturday morning at Mayfair shopping centre.

The battery's 105 m.m. saluting guns will be displayed, along with vehicles.

Music will be by the battery brass and reed band.

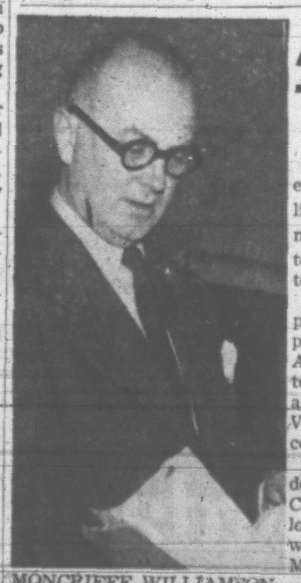

Capt. Al Hill will be in charge of the exercise from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON . . . gallery curator

Art Expert, Writer Taking P.E.I. Post

Appointment of Victoria art expert Grahame Moncrieff Williamson as art gallery and museum curator in Charlottetown, P.E.I., was announced today.

Mr. Williamson leaves three posts in this area to accept the position. He is curator of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, Professor of Fine Arts and Sciences at University of Victoria and Saturday art columnist for The Times.

Dr. Frank MacKinnon, president of the new Fathers of Confederation Centre at Charlottetown, said Mr. Williamson will begin his new duties in May.

Opening of the new $6 million arts centre and museum at that time will highlight celebration of the province's centenary.

Mr. Williamson is Scottish born and has travelled extensively. He is a former director of the Glenbow Foundation art department at Calgary and remains a consultant.

He is a director of Greater Victoria Art Gallery extension services and a director of the Art Exhibitions Bureau of London, Eng., a free lance writer and an administrator.

Mr. Williamson also is a council member of Canadian Museums Association, a member of the International Council of Museums (Paris) and a Fellow of the International Institute of Arts and Letters (Germany).

FIREMEN COOL HOT COFFEE AT MARKET

Coffee was double-roasted at Lake Hill Food Market, 3949 Quadra, shortly after 10 a.m. today.

Saanich fireman called to the store found fire smouldering in a stockroom, burning cartons and bags of coffee on a shelf against a chimney with a disused opening.

New owner Glen Thors was unaware the chimney was still used for heating an adjoining apartment.

New Hospital For Elderly Planned Here

Plans for construction of a $400,000 private hospital on Hillside Avenue were announced today.

Neil De Macedo, 29, administrator, said the 75-bed hospital which will cater to elderly persons, will commence construction in June or July and will open in December.

The 22,000 square foot, one-storey building will be located on two-and-a-half acres near the Gosworth intersection. It will be built in the shape of a cross, affording a maximum of natural light to private and semi-private rooms and four-bed wards.

FULL SERVICE

Patients, both private and municipally placed, will receive 24-hour care from graduate nurses, said Mr. De Macedo. The hospital will specialize in physical, occupational, recreational and creative therapy. A trained social director will have charge of events such as birthday observances, sewing bees, Sunday drives and movies.

Mr. De Macedo, whose family has operated private hospitals for 15 years, said facilities include a modern 900-square foot stainless steel kitchen, a generous lounge and dining room and a two-way nurse-patient address system. All patient rooms will be wired for television.

On the grounds, patients will have full use of a putting green and greenhouses.

Four District Burglaries

In Saanich, police reported juveniles responsible for house entries at 1265 and 1269 Union and 3371 Maplewood, where 50 cents was stolen from one house.

Garbage Dump Probe Ordered

FIRST ENTRANT in Miss Victoria Pageant sponsored by Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce is hazel-eyed honey blonde Sandy Evans. Sandy, 20, is a file clerk in the credit department of a local department store and lives at 1705 Carnegie Crescent. Jaycees will accept entries up to April 11.

Committee Heeds Local Complaints

City health committee today ordered medical health officer Dr. John Whitbread to make an official investigation and report on complaints about the Hartland Road garbage dump.

A letter from the Prospect Lake and District Community Association claimed the dump had created a serious rat and seagull problem, pollution in Killarney and Prospect Lakes and a smoke nuisance.

Health committee was told that a preliminary report by the city engineer's department showed that drainage from the dump flows away from Prospect Lake towards Heal Lake.

ABIDING BY RULES

City manager Dennis Young added that the privately operated dump is abiding by commitments to have a rodent control service at the site twice a week, daily burning of dumped garbage and provision of a round-the-clock watchman service.

"Well, if the situation is anything like that described in the complaint, it certainly is time that something be done," said Ald. A. I. Curtis.

"But we've got to get someone who knows what he's talking about to ascertain the facts."

Committee decided to ask Dr. Whitbread for a report although committee chairman Ald. Lily Wilson said the problem was for Saanich council to grapple with.

Private contractors use the dump for garbage hauled from Victoria, urban Saanich, Central Saanich and Sidney. It is actually in unorganized territory, barely outside the Saanich municipal boundary running through part of the Highlands district.

METRO SOLUTION

Mr. Young suggested the only realistic alternative to the dump-and-burn disposal system would be construction of a metro garbage incinerator to serve all of Greater Victoria.

"But this would approach a cost of $2,000,000 just for the plant," he said.

Mr. Young also said a Victoria Labor Council suggestion that the city use its garbage for a profit-making compost sideline was not practicable because there is an insufficient volume to justify the cost of establishing such a system.

OH THAT VICTORIA IMAGE!

Luxury Sedan Here For Auction Tonight

By PETE LOUDON

If any of Victoria's "landed gentry" are interested, there's a car suited to royalty going on the auction block tonight.

The auctioneers say it cost $22,000 new and its looking for a palace to park beside.

It's a 1956 prestige model sedan, so exclusive that it wears a label "hand made"—which means it didn't come off an assembly line but was custom built for the original owner.

The auctioneers say there are only four like it in the province.

Curiosity piqued, we made some enquiries and learned the car was brought here from Toronto and that this is a growing practice.

WEALTHY BUYERS

George Hankinson, president of Victoria Auto Dealers' Association, says some distant dealers have the opinion that this city is peopled with wealthy connoisseurs.

"These people have some fixations about Victoria that aren't true. In nine cases out of 10 these cars go back whence they came," he stated.

Another dealer said it is becoming a popular practice in the Eastern car marts, however, to pay someone $75 to drive a premium car out here.

SALT IN EAST

Some of the people who have looked into the trend say buyers should remember that Eastern driving conditions mean use of road salt, which can mean rust damage.

But Mr. Hankinson says it isn't worth the risk for a dealer to send a rust-eaten car out here.

"Even an amateur can recognize rust," he states. So only top-quality cars are moved.

He pointed out that 70 per cent of the auto business in Canada is done east of Manitoba and as a result there is a broader selection of models there.

There are cars on the market there, specialty makes which ordinarily would'nt appear in the west.

So it's really a tribute to our reputation as the home of the wealthy recluse that is creating the situation. "Those cartoons do get around," chuckles Mr. Hankinson.

Report Asked

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday expressed "regret" with a city council decision to stick to the single polling station system for civic elections.

Delegate Fred Bevis suggested the VLC, which asked council to switch to a multiple polling station system, should write to City Hall for the report on which the council decision was based.

Musical Arts

Victoria Musical Arts Society's studio group will meet Friday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Niederman, 8557 East Saanich Road.

Vocal selections will be given by Mrs. Frank Waelti, duets by Mrs. Winnifred Snape and Miss Yvonne Muir and piano solos by Allison Marshall. Flute and piano selections will be performed by Larry Forbes and Marion Matcham.

WEEK-LONG SIEGE

Engineer Party Rescued in Peru

LIMA (AP) — Rescued by jungle - trained rangers, a haggard party of road engineers was escorted out of danger today after fighting off a week-long attack by Indians in Peru's wild Amazon River basin. One engineer had been killed and two injured.

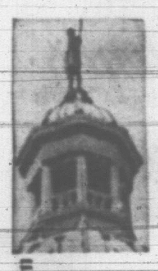

The 50 - man rescue detachment reached the besieged men Wednesday. The Indians slipped silently back into the rain forests without a fight.

The rangers planned to lead the survivors back to the Yavari River, where a gunboat dispatched from Iquitos, 830 miles northeast of Lima, awaited them. The trip back to civilization was expected to take two or three days.

The road party was made up of 30 engineers and surveyors and eight armed guards. The men held out on a knoll.

The party suffered its casualties when it stumbled on a village of hostile Indians eight days ago, then conducted a running fight to the knoll.

Before the relief column hacked its way through the jungle to the party Wednesday, the aviation ministry here received a radio message that "the Indians are closing in on us."

Today we will leave the British Columbia Legislative Assembly to its flurry of late-session housecleaning while we investigate a proposal made Wednesday by NDP John Squire. The member for Alberni believes our provincial parliament should broadcast and televise its sittings.

This suggestion opens up some interesting vistas, one of which we will now explore.

Mummy wears a church-bazaar apron, Daddy reads The Times with a dry martini at his elbow. In a corner squats a television set with 23-inch screen. It is tuned to the new show, "In My House."

MUMMY (gazing at screen): That's Mr. Bennett, dear. In a sort of way, he's everybody's daddy.

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union of North America, arrived in Montreal today following the dismissal of Hal Banks and fired off an angry telegram to the Maritime Board of Trustees.

ANOTHER CLAIM that Hitler aide Martin Bormann is still alive popped up in Brazil today. A man claiming to be his brother told police Bormann is living in Matto Grosso state. Bormann disappeared in 1945 and was sentenced to death in absentia by the Nurenberg war crimes tribunal.

The trustees, appointed by the federal government, ousted Banks Wednesday as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) and replaced him with Charles Turner, 40, a trustee employee, for the last two months and formerly an officer of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC).

Hall said he would visit the SIU headquarters later today and invited the trustees to meet him there. The telegram was sent from Hal Banks' swank residence in suburban Pointe Claire.

The telegram charged the removal of Banks was arbitrary and denied him the right to a fair hearing "in accordance with the principles of fundamental justice.

"We consider the matters mentioned by you are not appropriate for discussion between you and us but if you wish to say anything further to us you may do so at our office tomorrow morning."

Hall objected to the naming of Turner as Banks' replacement on the grounds he had never been a member of the SIU. He charged the trustees had confiscated hundreds of thousands of dollars of property and assets of the international union.

NOW BEFORE COURTS

The telegram claimed police forces were used unnecessarily and came at a time when the constitutionality of the federal act setting up the trustees was before the courts. This action was taken by SIU treasurer Don Swaite and is before the Quebec courts.

The reaction of Hall, considered a power in the AFL-CIO, appeared to contradict reports that Banks had been fired as the result of an agreement among the Canadian and U.S. governments and the SIU of North America.

Meanwhile, Banks remained unavailable for comment.

Banks was reported in conference with his legal advisers. It is understood he plans to fight his ouster in the courts.

NEGOTIATE CONTRACTS

The dismissal came at a key time on the eve of negotiation of 42 contracts between the SIU and shipping companies. Some shipping firms reported they believed there would be no trouble manning their Great Lakes ves-

U.S. Arms Proposal Said 'Trick'

GENEVA (AP)—The United States proposed today that it and the Soviet Union each destroy 480 strategic bombers over a two-year period. The Russians immediately rejected the proposal as a Pentagon trick.

The proposal for destruction of American B-47 and Russian TU-16 Badget bombers was made before the 17-nation disarmament conference by U.S. negotiator Adrian S. Fisher.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin replied that the proposal was an attempt to dress up as disarmament a "routine military decision taken inside the Pentagon to scrap obsolete planes and replace them with A-11s and other new multi-purpose planes being ordered and tested by the defence department."

The Russian repeated his demand, made Jan. 29, for destruction of all bomber planes, both old and new.

Fisher suggested that the two big powers should each destroy 20 planes a month during a two-year period. In addition, he said, the United States is prepared to destroy an additional agreed number of planes in its inactive reserve fleet.

Fisher stressed that the destruction of planes would have to be carried out under strict observation by the other nation.

BELLI OUSTED

Texan Selected As Ruby Counsel

HOUSTON (AP)—Jack Ruby's brothers and sisters employed Percy Foreman of Houston today as chief defence counsel for the slayer of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused presidential assassin, Foreman announced.

Foreman is one of the top Texas lawyers specializing in criminal cases.

The appointment followed the Wednesday night dismissal of Melvin Belli. Ruby at that time expressed dissatisfaction with Belli's services and shock over the lawyer's bitter tirade Saturday against Dallas.

Soon after the jury sentenced Ruby to death for the slaying of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy, Belli declared the verdict a "kangaroo railroad" by a jury that was "shoved down our throats."

Over television networks, he called Dallas a "festering sore" District Attorney Henry Wade a "hog caller," and said "now we see the shame of Dallas in all its glory."

His remarks have brought widespread criticism from state officials. The president of the American Bar Association called them "a discredit to him and to his profession."

DISREGARDS CODE

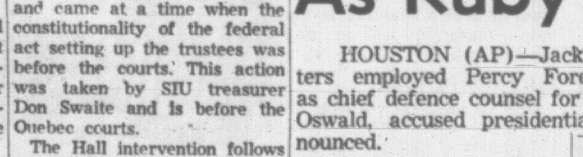

Walter C. Craig of Phoenix, Ariz., the bar association head, said Wednesday in San Francisco Belli's "unrestrained comments" were a "flagrant disregard of the code of professional ethics and his oath as an attorney." He said many unethical conduct complaints about Belli's remarks have been received.

Eva Grant, sister of Ruby, told the Dallas Morning News she sent a letter airmail Wed-

Administrator In Ont. Named

TORONTO (CP)—Five doctors and the administrator of Toronto East General Hospital were charged today with a total of 40 counts under the Coroner's Act and Vital Statistics Act in connection with the last Nov. 4 death of 32-year-old Patricia Morgan after surgery at the hospital.

All six men were charged with six counts each under the Coroner's Act. In addition, Dr. Kenneth Brown, who began the operation on Miss Morgan but did not finish it, was charged with four counts under the Vital Statistics Act.

A coroner's jury found that a surgical clamp left in Miss Morgan's abdomen during an operation for suspected cancer last Oct. 18 was the cause of her death 18 days later.

OTHERS CHARGED

The others charged were Dr. Burns Plewes, chief surgeon at the hospital, administrator Eric Willcocks, and three doctors involved in a pathological examination of Miss Morgan's body — S. F. Penny, Allan Noble and Alexander Kennedy.

PROCEDURE BREACHES

Crown officials said the six charges against all six cover different breaches of procedure outlined in the Coroner's Act relating to the duties of persons to notify a coroner of deaths in certain circumstances.

The other charges against Dr. Brown allege that he falsified Miss Morgan's death certificate.

CYPRUS FIGHTING RENEWED

NICOSIA (AP)—Heavy fighting with bazookas and machine-guns broke out at a village 28 miles west of Nicosia today in the first clash between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots in a week.

UN officials managed to arrange a temporary cease-fire as Turkey dispatched a new warning that violence must be stopped on Cyprus.

One Turk was reported killed in the fighting at Ghaziveran which began shortly after dawn and lasted about five hours.

The Ankara government sent messages to UN Secretary-General U Thant, President Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus and to the commander of the peace force on Cyprus, calling attention to the outbreak of fighting at Ghaziveran.

SAME LINE

The contents of the note were not immediately disclosed here but a government spokesman said the warning took "the same line" as Turkey's warning of last weekend, that it would intervene if killings of Turkish Cypriots were not stopped.

It was the first fighting since Canadian troops arrived to join in the UN peace force. With the UN force not yet fully constituted, peacekeeping duties remain in the hands of British troops.

EXTENDED

The temporary cease-fire became effective at 11 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) to permit the peace talks to get under way. It later was extended.

THE TREES IN THE FOREST

Perpetual Forest Yield Goal of Varied Licences

(Times reporter Pete Loudon, in a six-part series, takes a look at British Columbia's sustained yield forestry policy; how it has worked since it began 17 years ago, and what future prospects appear to be.)

By PETE LOUDON

Do British Columbia's sustained yield logging laws really ensure a perpetual supply of timber for future generations?

Or do they merely create a system where monopolies gained perpetual control of our forest wealth?

Loudon

Almost 15 years after these laws were passed, the question is still debated. But before we can form opinions we must understand something about the methods adopted.

Four major steps have been taken to ensure that we won't deplete our forests before they can be replaced.

First came the creation of the public working circle or public sustained yield unit. Eighty such areas were set up, most of them surrounding communities dependent on logging and sawmill operations.

Within these areas, which had been inventoried by the forest service, the government decreed how much timber could be removed each year on a perpetual basis. This became the allowable cut.

Cut Too Much

Existing operators were told they might bid for timber sales. They were given quotas equal to the average volume they had cut in previous years. In some areas they had been cutting too much however and here they sometimes found their allowable consumption reduced greatly.

Their answer was to seek additional timber from private timber holdings which means some of them are still over-cutting.

Other problems arose, not all of them solved yet. The laws governing bidding were criticized. There were criticisms that new firms couldn't break into the timber business because they couldn't obtain quotas.

Quotas Traffic

Traffic in quotas became another source of headaches, as operators gobbled each other up and some speculators made fast profits. But generally, the government had accomplished its first aim with the SYUs — it had limited the cut to balance the new growth.

Within the SYUs the forest service assumed responsibility for fire control, scientific replanting and the war against insects and decay.

The second form of temporary tenure to be established was the forest management licence area, now called the tree farm licence area.

This was partly a move to bring back under government control the vast timberlands which over the years had passed into the hands of half a dozen large companies with sawmills

$100 MINIMUM

Basic Fee Urged For Timber Bids

A $100 minimum bidding fee on Crown timber sales to curb blackmail threats was recommended Wednesday by the legislature's forestry committee.

Legislation allowing Forests Minister Ray Williston to impose a fee was given second reading earlier in the House.

The legislation does not set a specific amount, but the committee recommended between 1 and 5 per cent of the bid with a minimum of $100.

QUOTA TRADE

The committee, headed by Omineca Socred Cyril Shelford, said it was concerned about trafficking in timber quotas. During public hearings loggers complained that quotas were being bartered at high prices.

The report suggested a thorough study of quota trading and the possibility of a government fee each time a quota is sold.

Threats of blackmail bidding on timber sales to force up prices on timber sales were also charged by loggers before the committee.

The bidding fee is aimed at curbing this practice, and the committee said it was not recommending any further action pending more study.

The committee asked the legislature to give it power next year to study pulp harvesting licences and to review methods of appraising logs.

It also proposed further study next year of sub-contracting logging within the big tree farm licence areas.

Licence holders at present must allow independent loggers to cut between 30 and 50 per cent of their timber.

The committee said loggers are not taking full advantage of their opportunities, and recommended no changes in the present regulations.

INFLEXIBLE CLIMATE

However, the committee asked for more representations from the forest industry and suggested further review of the situation next year.

It also suggested that written contracts be made available for study.

The committee said that forest policy based on royal commission recommendations created "an inflexible climate" which was not in the public interest.

However, policy discussions through the committee have resulted in a frank and open climate which is more effective, it suggested.

sels. While most of the companies regarded Banks as a tough union leader, some officials thought he had brought a certain amount of order into the system of hiring sailors.

TURNER
. . . in charge

The trustees were in conference and were not immediately available for comment on whether they would meet Hall.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, about 100 angry seamen gathered Wednesday around John Meredith, newly-appointed local representative of the trusteeship, as he walked into their downtown hiring hall.

At one point, Mr. Meredith, an official of the New Westminster national employment office, was greeted by a shout of "Heil Hitler." He took the name of the man who did the shouting.

HAD NO COMMENT

Mr. Meredith conferred briefly with Rod Heineky, Seafarers' local vice-president. Mr. Heineky had no comment following the meeting.

Mr. Meredith denied suggestions by seamen that Mr. Heineky had been "muzzled" or that his dismissal was imminent.

He said the wire was signed by 150 of his mates and read: "We protest the arrogant, overbearing action in dismissing our president without consulting the membership. We demand an explanation of this vicious act."

Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labour Congress, said in Ottawa the trustees would not have fired Banks "without good and sufficient reasons."

"This confirms the opinions expressed by our Congress that democracy can only be established in the SIU in Canada by removal of the present leadership," he said.

HOFFA TELLS MEMBERS:

'If I Lose—You Will Pay'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Convicted Teamsters' President James R. Hoffa is seeking to quell any budding revolt in his giant union by personal appeals to its 1,700,000 members. There are 37,200 members in Canada.

His approach, in a previously unpublicized letter, is that he will eventually upset his eight-year federal jury tampering conviction — and that if he doesn't, all Teamsters would have as much to lose as he does.

Hoffa's letter to all Teamsters' officials and members seeks to identify the unions' interests with his own in his long battle against justice department efforts to put him behind bars.

Hoffa told his members:

"I have never backed away from a fight in my life. In all my 32 years in the labor movement, I have consistently refused to 'conform' as a price of peace, for the simple reason that I have always known that the price would come out of the pockets of the rank-and-file I was elected to represent."

Hoffa apparently was not referring to the thousands of dollars in legal fees piled up on his trial at Chattanooga, Tenn., and numerous previous court battles.

THINKS HE'S BEST?

Rather, the reference appeared to be an attempt to persuade Teamsters' members that no one can represent them better than he at the bargaining table, or run the huge union as well as he has in the last seven years as its president.

"Even though the vendetta of the justice department against me personally has occupied a great deal of my time, the business of the international union has gone forward in such a manner that we are the envy of the labor movement, both in gains which have been made for you, the members, and in the administration of the union," his letter said.

There has been no open move among high - ranking Teamsters to dump Hoffa, but the 51-year-old labor chieftain is worried and eager for reassurance from his members.

"The business of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters will be conducted as usual. Whenever possible, I will be in the field talking with you, the rank and file, finding out first-hand what your problems are and working with you to come up with solutions," Hoffa's letter said.

'DOOR STILL OPEN'

"The open - door policy in Washington headquarters will continue. I am still available to any one of you desiring to speak with me," he added.

Most of Hoffa's top fellow Teamsters officials who have commented publicly on Hoffa's March 4 conviction have urged members to reserve judgment until appeals are completed.

But Hoffa was reported to be furious at one union official's statement to reporters that "something will have to be done" if Hoffa goes to jail.

Charles Bell, president of the Washington joint council, made the statement at a recent press conference called by the Teamsters' eastern conference to try to improve the union's public image.

The eastern conference includes some 500,000 of the Teamsters' members.

nesday night to Belli's California office saying that his services were no longer wanted. She said Ruby signed the letter.

EXPRESSED SHOCK

The Ruby family and the defendant "were dissatisfied with the defence presented by Belli and expressed shock at the tirade he delivered after Saturday's verdict," Mrs. Grant said.

Belli's televised bitter comments have brought wide criticism from Texas officials and from officials of the American Bar Association.

Ruby's brother, Hyman Ruby of Chicago, said "the opinions this man expressed about Dallas, the jury, Judge Joe B. Brown and District Attorney Henry Wade are not shared by Jack or any member of his family."

As early as Jan. 22, the letter maintained, Ruby "tried to disengage" Belli after a disagreement over tactics used by the lawyer. Belli "bitterly opposed and forced himself" on Ruby and "would not consent at that time to any local adequate, competent counsel," the letter said.

PLEADED NOT GUILTY

Ruby pleaded not guilty of shooting Oswald by virtue of insanity. In the month-long trial, Belli tried to prove that the bolding night club operator was a victim of a form of epilepsy and not in control of himself Nov. 24 when he lunged forward and shot the manacled Oswald in the Dallas police jail basement.

Ruby signed the two - page letter. Copies were sent to the two other defence lawyers, Joe Tonahill of Jasper, Tex., and Phil Burleson of Dallas, but it was not immediately known how their status was affected.

"My brother has been disturbed and upset by reports of Mr. Belli's action both in and out of court," said Ruby's brother, Hyman Ruby of Chicago.

Hyman said Belli "never consulted us about anything regarding the case so he certainly wouldn't consult us before he blasted all those people Saturday afternoon . . . I had the feeling he was evading the whole family."

The letter outlined the family's disagreement with Belli's "constant bitter criticism of Dallas and the people of Texas" that it contended were aimed at "promoting only Belli's personal fame and fortune."

OFFERED FREE DEFENCE

The family said it has a note Belli wrote Ruby, saying the lawyer's defence would not cost anything.

Hyman Ruby, however, said "he has put all of us deeply in debt . . . there was no communication between Belli and the Ruby family except when he wanted to discuss finances and his expenses—which were considerable."

The family also said Jack Ruby told Belli he wanted "no part" of a movie or a book or anything for profit.

They quoted Belli as telling the defendant, "I can sign my own contract — I don't need you."

NEWSPAPER SERIAL

The convicted slayer gave permission to a California author to write a newspaper serial based on his life up to the time of the trial. The $24,000 it produced for Ruby helped finance the trial, a relative said.

One member of the family said Ruby predicted the outcome of the trial in a sealed note 10 days ago.

DOCTORS ACCUSED

Cigs, Medicare 'Deal' Charged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. (D—N.J.) accused the American Medical Association today of siding with the tobacco industry against U.S. government efforts to label cigarettes a health hazard in return for support in its fight against medicare.

The accusation was vigorously denied by the AMA. A spokesman for the organization said: "It's a ridiculous charge. There is not any truth in it whatsoever."

Thompson said the AMA opposed the regulation, proposed by the Federal Trade Commission, as part of a deal to get tobacco state congressmen to vote against the administration's proposal for a health insurance plan for the aged under social security.

SURPRISE TURN

"It's an outrage and it's an obvious ploy," Thompson said, adding that the AMA position was not sound medical logic and did not "reflect the thinking of its constituent doctor members."

The AMA's opposition was one of the surprise developments of the Federal Trade Commission's hearings this week on the proposed cigarette advertising and labeling regulations.

Dr. F. J. L. Blasingame, AMA executive vice-president, in a letter to the commission, said that the health hazards of "excessive smoking have been well-publicized for more than 10 years and are common knowledge." He said the answer to removing the hazards from cigarette smoking lay in more research, not in any labeling rules.

Tanker Blast Not Caused By Bomb

SEATTLE (AP) — A Coast Guard investigating board says the explosions which sank the tanker Bunker Hill were not caused by a bomb.

Five men died when the 504-foot vessel went down off Whidbey Island March 6 after a series of three explosions. Twenty-five men were rescued.

The board ended a seven-day hearing Tuesday. Rear Admiral R. D. Schmidtman, chairman, said more testimony might be taken after the board reviews the record.

But Schmidtman added: "Any further testimony referring to bombs will be ruled out as irrelevant."

Edward C. Biele, attorney for the Keystone Shipping Corp., operater of the tanker, had suggested the tanker might have hit one of the "unexploded bombs" marked on some coast and geodetic survey charts of the area.

Navy spokesmen said the notation refers to three 750-pound bombs jettisoned last May by two bombers from the Whidbey Island naval air station. They said the bombs were unfused and a passing ship could not have actuated them.

Not Guilty of Rape

NANAIMO — Eighteen-year-old Robert Joseph Hicks of Parksville was found innocent of a rape charge by an Assize Court jury late Wednesday. The youth had been charged in November with the alleged rape of a 21-year-old Parksville woman.

Dictaphone Corp. Profits Decline

TORONTO (CP) — Dictaphone Corp. Ltd. reports higher sales but lower profits for the year ended Dec. 31, 1963.

The firm said sales were $38,237,777 compared with $37,151,936 in 1962, and net earnings fell to $1,159,086 or $1.90 a share from $1,246,912 or $2.05 a share the previous year.

Tree Farms

Where these firms would place some of their own holdings into a managed area, the government was willing to include crown lands so that both would be managed as tree farms. The Goliaths of the industry obtained a 21-year tenure where they agreed to build access roads, provide fire protection, guard forests against disease and insects and replant as they cut under forest service supervision.

The farms were big enough to provide a perpetual timber supply for huge sawmills, plywood mills and pulp mills and subsidiary industries which would ensure fullest use of all the raw materials our forests could supply. As it worked out mostly big boys got tree farms. Only the big boys could afford their upkeep.

A third approach to sustained yield came in a government offer to give tax concessions to privately-held Crown-granted timber lands where the same conservation practices were carried out.

Pulp Areas

Finally, last year, to attract more pulp and paper producers to B.C., the pulp harvesting area was set up. The first was located in the area surrounding Prince George, the second at Kamloops and other licence applications are pending.

Pulp harvesting areas were superimposed on groups of sustained yield units where the independent loggers and sawmillers were chopping out their lumber. But in so doing, they had been largely overlooking trees that were too decayed or too small for sawmill use. In some areas there had been a sale for this material, but in other parts of the province 40 per cent of every logged patch was being left to rot in the woods and a further waste occurred at the sawmills, where trimmings, bark or edgings, burned.

Permanent

It is intended to ensure a perpetual supply, just as the trees suited for lumber may only be cut on a perpetual yield basis. Knowing that this pulp log supply is assured, a PHA operator could plan a stable operation if he could also find firm markets and the tremendous financial backing needed for constructing a modern, economic mill.

This measure of security of supply for the small operator, the large sawmill, pulp mill and plywood mill gradually began to affect the industrial pattern of the province.

Where once the logging camps were transient things moving ever farther from the communities they nourished, they could now be built with permanence.

First Benefits

The first benefits of the Sloan recommendations began to appear—stability of employment, large sawmills and pulp mills and plywood plants which paid school taxes and contributed to stable towns and cities.

Perhaps it was undesirable to create a monopolistic form of renewable long-term tenure. But to attract the heavy investment required for fullest utilization of the forests on a planned basis, the forest service had to offer assured supplies of raw materials.

Later chapters explore the benefits of the system further.

HARD HATS

"Well, what do you say to a brush cut instead?"

. . . MAYSE

had my way . . .

MUMMY: Please, not in front of the children. I think we should all try to be . . . well . . . a little more parliamentary.

DICK: Hey! Golly! That guy, the one flapping his arms, he just called those other guys in the far corner little runts.

Not 'Guys, Dear'

MUMMY: Not 'guys,' dear. Men. That is Mr. Perrault, starting to get up.

DICK: Those other guys . . . I mean men . . . the ones making the funny noises . . . they're telling him to sit down and he's yelling back at them, and Mr. Bennett's shaking both arms now . . . Oh, boy

MUMMY (Pink in the face): Don't call me Toots! And if you'd put down that old paper . . .

JANE: Mummy, you get after us when we tell each other to shut up. That man said it two times, real loud.

Restoring Order

JANE: See . . . see . . .

MUMMY: The trouble with some people, they just don't want to broaden their horizons. They don't care how our province is governed: Watch this, children. The man in the black hat banging with the gavel is the Speaker. He's restoring order. Everything will be nice now.

ON SCREEN: An honorable member rises. He begins to speak. He keeps on speaking.

MUMMY (After 10 minutes, patting back a yawn): This is very interesting and instructive, and it's wonderful not to have to depend on the reporters for our news. But I suppose I'd better go see about supper. (Exit Mummy.)

DICK and JANE: Daddy, can we switch to Jungle Jim?

FLEW MAIL

Captain Brian Peck made the first air transport of mail in Canada in 1918, flying 120 letters from Montreal to Toronto.

. . . CYPRUS

The Greek-Cypriot police and auxiliary forces launched an attack in the early morning hours after 500 Turks in a village refused to obey an ultimatum to lift the roadblocks around Ghaziveran.

A Greek-Cypriot government spokesman also accused the Turks of cutting communications between Nicosia and the coastal areas.

The Turkish-Cypriots said the attack was premeditated and that the village had been surrounded by Greek-Cypriots for days.

PROBE VIOLENCE

Greek - Cypriot Interior Minister Polycarpos Georgadjis and several Turkish-Cypriot leaders went to Ghaziveran to investigate the new violence.

In Ankara, Turkish information minister Ali Ihsan Gogus denied reports that Turkey was planning reprisals against the Greek community in Turkey if Greece failed to change its Cyprus policy.

Gogus described as "exaggerated" Turkish press reports to the effect that the Ankara government's notice it was abrogating the 1930 Turkish-Greek treaty of settlement, commerce and navigation was meant as a warning to Greece not to continue support for President Makarios of Cyprus.

TURKS PART?

Gogus also said it was "absolutely natural" that the Turkish battalion stationed on Cyprus under the island's independence treaty should form part of the United Nations peace force there.

In Nicosia the build-up of the UN peace force continued with the arrival Wednesday of additional Canadians troops, bringing the Canadian contingent on the island to 446.

The aircraft carrier Bonaventure slipped out of Halifax Harbor Wednesday night, the bulk of her obscured by wet, driving snow as she headed for the warmer climate of Cyprus.

But for the ship's crew and 96 soldiers aboard the 20,000-ton carrier, the voyage is no vacation. The soldiers of the Royal Canadian Dragoons and Royal 22nd Regiment, were on their way to join the United Nations peace-keeping force on the Mediterranean island.

Supplying and loading the ship was done in a record 3½ days.

Edmonton Snowbound

EDMONTON (CP)—Residents of northern Alberta shivered and skidded to work today after a short but vicious snow storm hit during the night. Driving conditions in Edmonton were the worst of the winter.

Tenders Called for $7 Million Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert Ship

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett's dream of a car and passenger ferry service linking Vancouver Island with Prince Rupert on the northern B.C. coast should be a reality next year.

Specifications now are out for an 18-knot ship with accommodation for more than 400 passengers and 120 cars. She may cost up to $7,000,000.

The new ferry will be a long-haul vessel, differing radically from the present provincial fleet of short-haul vessels. It is based on a successful Baltic Sea design.

20-HOUR TRIP

It is planned to operate the proposed vessel vetween Kelsey Bay, northern terminus of the Island Highway, and Prince Rupert, where she will link up with the Alaska State Ferry system. The passage is expected to take about 20 hours.

The specifications call for a ship with streamlined funnel and mast, 325 feet long and a breadth of 56 feet nine inches, and fin stabilizers for the benefit of queasy passengers.

There will be cabin space for 100 passengers on the lower deck, 80 double-berth cabins with baths on the promenade deck, and 16 de luxe cabins on the bridge deck.

There will be a dining salon with accommodation for 200 passengers, and a cafeteria with seating for 150. The forward lounge will have 250 seats.

There will be no cargo accommodation apart from the car deck.

She will have twin screws and a bow propeller, and specifications call for four Mirlees National diesels developing 8,000 shaft horsepower. She will be 3,500 tons gross and will have a crew of 56, with 13 officers.

Bids have already been called for the new ship.

The federal subsidy will account for 35 per cent of the cost, and it is likely that the provincial government will seek a further grant on the grounds that the ferry will be an extension of the Trans-Canada Highway system.

Urban Living an Impossibility While Cars Blight City Centres

By GENE OISHI

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Victor Gruen is a Vienna-born architect who, having achieved monetary success, has set himself a goal of reshaping the major cities of the United States to banish the automobile.

As Gruen sees it, the city is "a living organism which is dying from deadly foreign particles injected into its veins and arteries."

The intruders?

"Automobiles — space - eating monsters from Detroit," he says.

"We considered a city more civilized when it moved its sewage from the middle of the streets to underground; when it removed cables and telephone lines from sight; and when it banished railroad trains from main street. But we still allow the automobile to clog our streets and sap the life from our cities."

Downtowns, he says, are fast becoming blighted areas inhabited only by workers who must waste hours fighting freeway traffic to get to their jobs. And the suburbs, from where they come, must move farther and farther out to escape the sprawl of commercial activity.

NEED CENTRE

No true urban life is possible, Gruen says, without an easily accessible, compact centre. Such a centre is not possible, he says, when two-thirds of the downtown space is taken up by auto traffic and parking lots, which is the case in Los Angeles.

His plan for Fort Worth, Tex., commissioned by a Texas utility company and presented as a gift to the city, has never been translated into steel and concrete, but has been widely acclaimed, discussed and imitated.

"I hope it will never be realized," said a Gruen aide. "As it is, it's a classic. It has been included in architectural textbooks. If the plan were implemented, there would be compromises."

The plan calls for the transformation of the downtown core into a pedestrian island from which all motor travel would be banished. Space recovered from auto traffic and parking lots would be used for green areas, pedestrian malls, lined with trees and shrubbery, theatres, sidewalk cafes, kiosks and little shops.

"The talk about the desirability of the low density in urban areas is utter nonsense if we recall that the city's foremost function is to facilitate intimate human communication," Gruen says.

Gruen was born in Vienna in 1903, and in Vienna, it would appear, seeds of the "Gruen plan" were first planted in his mind. The inner city is encircled by the Ringstrasse, a broad boulevard fringed with splendid parks. Within this city core is the stately St. Stephen's Cathedral, the University of Vienna, the opera house, little shops, theatres and numerous museums.

Gruen studied architecture at the Vienna Academy of Fine Arts. Then began what Gruen calls his "life of many cities"—Hamburg, Prague, Budapest, Paris, London and then, in 1938, to New York with a T-square and $8 in his pocket.

He formed his own firm in 1951. Today it has about $80,000,000 worth of construction in place. The firm has a staff of 200 architects, engineers and draftsmen at its main office in Beverly Hills, with 30 others scattered in New York, Chicago, Boston and Rochester.

"Some say there is no need for a city, a centre," Gruen says. "They say you can communicate in the future with television phones. You may be able eventually to talk to your girl friend by television, but you can't kiss her that way."

Although the Fort Worth plan was never realized, Gruen's concepts have taken form—to a more modest degree—in other cities.

HELPS ROCHESTER

A notable example is the mid-town plaza in Rochester, N.Y., designed by Gruen's firm. It is a 10-acre shopping complex in the heart of downtown, containing more than 40 stores at two levels. It includes an enclosed, air-conditioned pedestrian mall the size of a football field.

Economically, the plaza has been a boon for downtown Rochester. Even the sidewalk cafe, Gruen's pet undertaking, has been a smash success.

Gruen's other projects in the works include an ambitious plan for revamping a 160-acre downtown core in Boston.

The midtown plaza has caught the attention of medium-sized cities, where Gruen believes the breakthrough in downtown revitalization will come. In Fresno, Calif., his firm has designed a plan to convert 12 blocks in the heart of the city into an auto-less business centre.

The Boston project, however, if it can survive the obstacles in its path, would provide a touchstone for the country's big cities, caught in a trend of the ever-expanding sprawl.

Old B.C. Bank No Model

VANCOUVER (CP) — The planned new Bank of British Columbia has a namesake in provincial history but little else in common with it.

The new bank will have a federal charter and the provincial government will be a minority shareholder. The old bank, founded by royal charter, was run by a rather cranky crew in London.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett isn't expected to look to the past for inspiration. He's a teetotaller, for one thing.

There is in the history of the old Bank of B.C. the story of the keg of beer stashed away in the vault — and there is the case of the bank safe that became a grocery refrigerator and the centre of a lawsuit.

Reporter-historian Bruce Ramsey traced the history of the original bank in a story in the Vancouver Province.

The bank was founded in 1862 during the Cariboo gold rush. Until it merged in 1900 with the Canadian Bank of Commerce, it operated branches throughout the province.

The beer episode occurred when bank inspector Frank Townsend looked in on the branch in the interior community of Greenwood.

One evening Townsend arrived unexpectedly and began working on the books. Upon completion of his task, he asked the clerk to open the safe to check the cash.

The clerk was a bit hesitant, the manager looked a bit unhappy, and the bank inspector became irritable. Finally, the doors swung open, and there before the startled bank official was a keg of beer!

Unfortunately, no record has been preserved of the words which passed from the mouth of the flabbergasted inspector. But when the manager had time to explain the situation, there was a party.

Ramsey tells of the bank's move in 1887 to new premises at Hastings and Seymour Streets in Vancouver.

This building was built around the huge steel safe. After the bank vacated the premises it was occupied by a grocery firm which used the safe as a refrigerator.

Once the Victoria branch bought a typewriter without first obtaining permission from the "court," and the honorable Ramsey, did not take gentlemen in London were outraged.

Upon receipt of the first typewritten letter they promptly replied—in longhand—to the manager of the Victoria branch requesting him to tell the offending clerk that if he could not write a legible hand, then he had better resign.

PARKING THIEF

Fender Banger Makes It

DETROIT (AP)—Richard C. Rich's career as a parking lot attendant was not very successful. He banged up too many fenders.

But he went on to become one of the leading garage designers in the United States. More than 100 cities in the United States, Canada and Mexico now have Rich - designed garages.

Rich, 33, who lives in suburban Grosse Pointe Woods, said that his interest in parking problems began when he was an undergraduate at Marquette University in Milwaukee.

PART TIME

"I got a part-time job at a parking lot to help pay my way through college," he said. "I banged up a few fenders and pretty soon they promoted me to night supervisor of the firm's parking lots. I guess they wanted to get me out from behind the wheel."

Rich, who has some definite ideas about multi-level garages and the role they can play in easing traffic congestion, became active in the garage planning field in 1949.

He became chief designer for national garages and made numerous studies of building design and traffic flow.

SELF SERVE

Rich is a firm believer in the self - service parking garage. This is the type where a motorist picks up a ticket as he enters the garage, finds his own parking place and pays for the ticket when he leaves.

He is convinced that the average housewife who comes downtown on a shopping trip does not want to pay $1 for parking but rather would prefer a garage where she could park for about a dime a half hour.

Rich says parking garage operators faced with rising costs of land, construction and labor are looking for ways to obtain more parking space per dollar. He believes the low-cost, multi-deck, self-service garage is the answer.

Trade Union Activity Increases Slightly

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade union strength increased slightly last year in seven of the 10 provinces.

This was disclosed in a special survey of union membership in Canada, made by the federal labor department and published in the latest edition of the Labor Gazette, an official departmental journal.

Behind the two central provinces are British Columbia, with 168,600 union members, up 3,600; Alberta, 63,000, up 2,600; Manitoba, 62,400, down 2,000; Saskatchewan, 43,400, up 1,000; Nova Scotia, 41,100, down 1,200; New Brunswick, 27,400, up 1,400; Newfoundland, 20,300, up 3,600, and Prince Edward Island, 1,600, down 200.

In addition, there are about 22,200 union members in jobs that span two or more provinces.

FLED FIVE YEARS AGO

Dalai Lama Forgotten

By V. M. NAIR

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The Tibetan Dalai Lama is leading a lonely, almost forgotten life in an obscure village high in the Himalaya Mountains nearly five years after he fled from the Chinese Communist invasion of his country.

With him are most members of his cabinet, many of them in their 60s or 70s, but still hoping for a political miracle which will enable them to return to Tibet.

Scattered all over India, Nepal, Sikkim and Bhutan are an estimated 70,000 Tibetan refugees who escaped with the Dalai Lama in the spring of 1959. They, too, dream of the day when they can go back to their homes on the windswept Tibetan plateau.

The Dalai Lama, now 28, devotes most of his time to the welfare and resettlement of these loyal followers who preferred life in exile with him to living under Chinese rule.

SURE OF RETURN

While the young Tibetan ruler is practical enough not to raise the Tibetans' hopes of an early liberation of their land, he does seize every opportunity to stress his undying faith in the ultimate success of his efforts to regain his lost land.

The modern bungalow, called Heavenly Abode, set against the picturesque backdrop of peaks, where the Dalai Lama now lives is a far cry from his great Potala Palace in Lhasa.

The lama has drawn up a comprehensive plan of reforms to be introduced inside Tibet on his return home?

Despite India's border dispute with China, authorities have not permitted the Dalai Lama to launch campaign activity against the Chinese occupation of Tibet because they feel such a campaign would be a breach of diplomatic propriety.

The Indian government meets all expenses connected with his presence in the country, including the cost of maintenance of his entourage.

FEARSOME GIANTS, the Watutsis, no longer scare the little Bahutu tribesmen who were their slaves for centuries. The Watutsis, who live in the African country of Rwanda, often reach seven feet in height, but they are outnumbered 10 to one by the Bahutu who are only half their size, and who are threatening to exterminate them. GUARDIAN FOR FOUR DECADES

Swallows Return to Zotique

By JOE DUPUIS

STE. GENEVIEVE, Que. (CP)—When spring comes and the swallows again dot the skies over Ste. Genevieve a short, stout, red-faced man with white goatee will watch through binoculars.

In pairs and in droves, the birds will descend on Zotique Rivard, 82, their benevolent caretaker for four decades.

As many as 125 pairs will find shelter in the aviary he has built over the years in his back garden, only 125 feet from the fast - flowing Riviere des Prairie.

Other swallows will flock to other backyards where the people of this quiet northwest Montreal suburb following the example of Rivard — have provided similar if less extensive accommodations.

The story of Ste. Genevieve's swallows is the story of an unusual man, Zotique Rivard — who looks like the typical Kentucky colonel—is an amateur naturalist described by Montreal wildlife director Albert Courtemanche as "one of those very rare persons."

Observations put down on paper by Rivard in 50 years of following the fish, birds and animals of his area are in files that take up a corner of Courtemanche's Montreal office.

Rivard has been an observer of Ste. Genevieve's wildlife — and a lover and guardian of it —since a hot summer day in his youth when he climbed a tree and found a bird's nest.

"From his work of recording what he saw and did, we have been able to compile a pretty complete record of wildlife patterns on Montreal Island in the past half-century," says Courtemanche. "His records are the only ones we have."

Rivard springs into action at the faintest bird-call, racing for his binoculars.

"But today, civilization is killing bird-watching," he says.

"Birds have no more place to go. Where once there were fields and forests, today there are none. The fields are getting filled up with buildings. There are trees here and there, but man is nature's enemy. The children go around with rifles shooting birds."

Zotique hasn't seen a bluebird in Ste. Genevieve for 10 years. When he was young, they were plentiful. He believes that only man can save the birds, by doing what he and the people of Ste. Genevieve have done—building places for them to live.

But if observing nature and keeping records is a labor of love for Rivard, muskie fishing is his obsession.

Rivard has caught 148 muskellunge in his lifetime, and Courtemanche says this must make him the all-time Quebec muskie champion.

Japanese Reap N.Z. Fisheries

By J. C. GRAHAM

WELLINGTON (CP) — For years New Zealanders have watched a bountiful harvest being won from the seas around their coasts and then disappearing over the horizon.

The fishing is done by Japanese craft which come 6,000 miles for it from their home ports. So good is the fish supply in New Zealand waters that no fewer than 17 Japanese companies have sought permits from their local authorities to send fleets to these fishing grounds.

Until now New Zealand has offered little competition. New Zealand fishing boats are small and they do not work at long distances from their home bases. They supply only the local market and a small export trade.

The New Zealand fishing industry claims that its high wage structure makes it impossible to compete on the world markets with fishing vessels from low wage countries like Japan. It has bitterly complained of "poaching" by Japanese vessels, but as long as these craft remain outside the three-mile limit there is no legal barrier to their presence.

And as long as New Zealand was so inadequately exploiting the fishing waters, it had a weak case for demanding that the government take action to keep the Japanese away.

In spite of many charges of Japanese fishing inside the three-mile mark, few authenticated cases have been found.

Photographic proof of violations was obtained recently by New Zealand Air Force planes, resulting in official protests to Japan. This brought apologies and assurances of disciplinary action. But it has done nothing to reduce the busy fleets of Japanese craft working just outside the limits.

New Zealand now is planning activity on several fronts.

The government placed a vigorous fisheries development policy high among the policy points at the election when it won a new term of office last November.

A fishing industry board to foster the industry will begin operations in April. It will have power to make loans for larger vessels and more modern equipment.

WHAT MADE NAZIS TICK?

Auschwitz SS Trial Reopens Old Debate

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—The farther the Second World War recedes into the mists, the closer Europe seems drawn to examine the mentality of the men who caused its descent into the pit 25 years ago.

A new generation ponders the problem of Nazi psychology, trying to analyse what could have brought apparently civilized men to such depths. Last year a television program revealed the terrible mental block between the generations in modern West Germany — a block caused by political sympathies the fathers wished to forget, the sons could not begin to understand.

The psychological problem has been working away in people's minds since 1945, while on another subterranean level the public prosecutor in Bonn was burrowing after escaped war criminals. Both operations broke ground in 1961 with the trial of Adolf Eichmann, opening a public debate on what made Nazis tick.

A similar eruption may come after the Frankfurt trial of the Auschwitz guards — an event that seems to arouse far greater revulsion among ordinary Britons, though less prominent in the newspapers, than the story of Eichmann the colorless SS (Elite Guard) administrator.

PERSONAL SADISM

The essential difference in the Frankfurt evidence is the personal sadism involved in acts that simply blunt belief, like the throwing of babies alive on a fire. Unlike Eichmann, the men of Auschwitz did not merely sign death-warrants—they carried them out with their own hands and with a brutality that made little children glad to die.

A Viennese doctor testified that Auschwitz guards behaved "like beasts in the stone age," and an observer writes in The Guardian that the men now on trial seem to have "moral amnesia."

The issue on Nazi guilt and conscience will probably obsess writers for generations. In the last two years, since Eichmann was executed, several have been posing the uncomfortable question that maybe Nazi guilt for the slaughter of Europe's Jews should be shared by some non-Nazis.

POPE PIUS

The German play The Deputy, now on Broadway, accuses Pope Pius XII of a moral failure to speak out. There was a London play about the return of Hitler which implied that West Germany was still riddled with the virus of fascism.

BITTER WRANGLING

And there was—and still is—the bitter wrangling among Jews in the United States and Europe over Hannah Arendt's book on the Eichmann trial, a book that questions the role played by some of the Jews themselves in their path to mass destruction.

Miss Arendt, a German Jew who emigrated to the U.S. the year Hitler came to power, based her book—a Report on the Banality of Evil on two explosive themes:

1. That Eichmann was little more than a conscientious bureacrat carrying out orders, as the defence claimed; and that he was "terribly and terrifyingly normal."

2. That at least part of the blame for the pre-war genocide should be laid on the Jewish leaders, without whose co-operation — even collaboration— the Nazis could hardly have disposed of 6,000,000 souls.

The Arendt book has aroused furious resentment among survivors of the death camps who feel the author has, through ignorance or misinterpretation, cast an unforgivable slur on her own race.

BOOK DISCUSSED

On the platform sat survivors of the Jewish communities in Nazi Germany, Austria, Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. One by one they asserted passionately that Eichmann wielded immense power, was far from being just a cog in a machine, and that the Jewish leaders had done everything within their "painfully restricted abilities" to save as many of their people as possible.

Popular Press

One copy of a daily British newspaper is printed for every two Britons. In West Germany, the figure is one copy daily for every two and one-half Germans; in the United States, one copy for every three people and in France, one copy for every four.

People Smuggled

NEW YORK (AP)—Organized rings overseas are trying harder than ever to smuggle people into the United States.

But in the process they're collecting millions of dollars from their hapless victims at fees ranging from $50 to $2,000.

The rings try to sneak most of them into the United States by ship. A few are sent by plane and by land across the borders of Mexico and Canada.
